PRINCESS OF COURAGE

KATE: I'M SO TOUCHED BY EVERYONE'S OUTPOURING OF LOVE

THE Princess of Wales has revealed she feels 'extremely moved' by the overwhelming deluge of love and sympathy which greeted her courageous announcement that she has been diagnosed with cancer.

Messages of support have come from all over Britain and across the world, with Kensington Palace declaring the princess and her husband William are 'enormously touched' by the public's kindness.

Yesterday, flowers were laid by well-wishers outside royal palaces, with a heartfelt note attached to a bouquet left at Windsor Castle capturing the sentiments of many. 'I wish you from the depths of my heart a certain and lasting recovery,' it said. Meanwhile, in an attempt to restore a semblance of normality following the turbulence of recent months, King Charles signalled his hope to attend 'some form of Easter service' at Windsor next Sunday.

Last night, Kensington Palace released a statement saying: 'The prince and princess are both enormously touched by the kind messages from people here in the UK, across the Commonwealth and around the world in response to Her
