

Would you swallow a balloon the size of a grapefruit to help shed the pounds?

SEE PAGE 31

Good Health

Who's raising eyebrows at Paris couture week?

FIND OUT ON PAGES TWO AND THREE

STARMER WADES INTO CULTURE WARS – ON THE SIDE OF THE WOKE

KEIR Starmer was accused of 'relentlessly politicising' British life yesterday, as he pledged to defend organisations that go woke.

The Labour leader said

By Jason Groves
Political Editor

the Government was engaging in a 'kind of weird McCarthyism' by trying to root out 'woke agendas' at major institutions.

Sir Keir claimed it was now Labour that was on the side of groups such as the National Trust, which has been criticised by some Conservatives for re-writing history and playing up links between Sir Winston Churchill's former home and the slave trade.

But Tory MPs yesterday said it was Labour that was waging

Turn to Page 6

BRITAIN AND US BOMB HOUTHIS

SEE
PAGE
TWO