THE freebie row engulfing Sir Keir Starmer deepened last night as it was revealed that he shared lavish football hospitality with a powerful lobbyist who backed the hated breakaway Super League.

The Prime Minister and his embattled chief of staff Sue Gray enjoyed a corporate box at Tottenham Hotspur last Sunday, just hours after fresh 'Wardrobegate' allegations emerged about clothes Sir Keir and his wife had taken from Labour donor Lord Alli.

Tickets were funded by Spurs, one of the six clubs which mounted the 2021 attempt to leave the Premier League – a plan that was abandoned following a furious reaction from fans.

And sitting next to Ms Gray – who is facing open revolt in No10 over her management style – was Katie Perrior,
