THE police marksman who shot Chris Kaba dead now faces a lifetime under threat.

Martyn Blake was this week cleared of murdering the 24-year-old during a police stop two years ago.

But the 40-year-old has had to flee his home after criminals put a £10,000 bounty on his head in revenge for the shooting.

Yesterday details of Kaba's criminal past were laid bare as it emerged he was one of London's most feared gangsters with a history of violence.

Insiders say Sergeant Blake is now 'living in a nightmare', fearing that Kaba's associates will kill those he loves.

To protect the firearms officer, a judge yesterday extended a ban on the publication of his address, photos or even a description of what he looks like. Policing leaders and MPs also called for a change in the law to
