Tories accuse Yvette Cooper of handing an 'effective amnesty' to illegal arrivals

NOW LABOUR OPENS DOOR TO GIVING ASYLUM TO 70,000

TENS of thousands of illegal migrants will get asylum in the UK after Yvette Cooper scrapped the Rwanda scheme.

The Home Secretary said

she would allow officials to process the claims of up to 120,000 people who the last government said would never be allowed to settle here.

The Refugee Council said it could result in 70,000 people being granted asylum, but the Conservatives said the figure could be as high as 90,000.

Former home secretary James Cleverly accused Ms Cooper of introducing an 'effective amnesty' which would only
