Children as young as seven on pro-Palestinian rallies, reveals report

THOUSANDS SKIP SCHOOL TO GO ON GAZA MARCHES

By Connor Stringer and Andy Jehring

CHILDREN as young as seven are skipping school to join pro-Palestine marches, a report warns today.

Hardline groups are advising parents on how to avoid fines from schools and on setting up protests, according to the Policy Exchange think-tank.

The wave of truancy comes amid a school absence crisis triggered by the pandemic. Education Secretary Gillian Keegan said last night that it was unacceptable for pupils to put activism ahead of study.

The report claims some parents were allegedly told by teachers they would not be penalised over the protests.

The Policy Exchange also says that:
■ The hard-Left Stop the War Coalition co-ordinated parents and children to strike together across the country;
■ Young activists were directed to material
