

THURSDAY, AUGUST 22, 2024

dailymail.co.uk

£1.10 85p to subscribers

SUMMER SALE

ONLY 99P

a month for a whole year*

SCAN TO SUBSCRIBE
AND SAVE

*TERMS APPLY

SEE PAGE TWO

TAKE THE MAIL ON HOLIDAY

JUST 5 DAYS TO GO

MAILSUBSCRIPTIONS.CO.UK OR CALL 0800 083 5000

SUPERYACHT HOPE LOST AS DIVERS FIND FIVE BODIES

Tycoon Mike Lynch and daughter thought to be among those discovered in wreck of £30m vessel after desperate 3-day search

A DESPERATE search of the sunken superyacht Bayesian ended in tragedy yesterday with the discovery of five bodies.

Italian authorities believe two of those recovered from the wreck on the seabed are British tech tycoon Mike Lynch and his teenage daughter, Hannah. Four bodies were found on the lower deck of the yacht and brought into port at Porticello, where a bell rang out each time.

From Inderdeep Bains in London and Nick Craven in Sicily

Efforts to retrieve a fifth body had to be called off last night, while a sixth passenger remains missing.

Formal identification will take place in the coming days.

Under Italian law, a body must be identified by a family member or someone close to the victim. Yesterday's heart-breaking discovery was made by divers who have been scouring the wreckage since the £30million yacht sank off the coast of Sicily early on Monday morning.

The search teams were yesterday joined by a remote-controlled submersible robot and divers who worked on the 2012 Costa Concordia disaster. Those unaccounted for include Morgan Stanley International chairman Jonathan Bloomer

Turn to Page 6

SHOWBIZ EXCLUSIVE

How J-Lo and Ben's dream unravelled

SEE PAGES 18-19