

WIN the ultimate dream holiday

Online access, Mail account and Unique Number required. Terms apply.

WORTH
£15,000
See page 24

The Mail

SCAN TO SUBSCRIBE
AND SAVE

ON SUNDAY

AUGUST 4, 2024

£2.10 £1.85 to subscribers

TINDERBOX BRITAIN

Knuckle-dragging morons – egged on by social media liars hijacking the killing of three little girls – wreak havoc in EIGHT English towns and cities. But instead of leadership, says our columnist, all we get are shiny new Labour ministers spouting student platitudes. No wonder we are facing a...

SUMMER OF DISCONTENT

MANCHESTER YESTERDAY

By SARAH VINE

ALMOST half a century ago, a Labour government led by Jim Callaghan presided over the so-called 'Winter of Discontent'. Now, barely weeks after winning power, our shiny new Labour Prime Minister, Sir Keir Starmer, faces what can only be described as a 'Summer of Discontent'.

In no particular order: Huw Edwards, erstwhile Voice of the Nation, turns out not only to be Auntie's creepy uncle, but also a paedophile, plunging the BBC into yet another existential crisis.

The idea the man who announced the death of our Queen, presided over the coverage of her funeral and then the Coronation of King Charles was at the same time part of a WhatsApp group sharing the most depraved images of young children is beyond repulsive.

God only knows what his poor wife and five children must be going through.

In Southport, a knife-wielding madman storms a playgroup, slaughtering tiny children at a Taylor Swift-themed dance class and bracelet-making workshop. In a bizarre twist, the 17-year-old accused turns

➤ Turn to Page 4