

Lucy Letby GUILTY of trying to kill Baby K

SEE
PAGES
4-5

Ex-PM answers Sunak's call and electrifies activists at final Tory rally to warn of Labour supermajority 'pregnant with horrors'

BORIS AND RISHI UNITE TO STOP STARMERGEDDON

By Jason Groves
Political Editor

BORIS Johnson dramatically intervened in the election campaign last night to urge disaffected voters to stop a Labour supermajority.

Appearing at a late-night Tory rally with Rishi Sunak, the former prime minister called on supporters to return to the fold and stem a Labour landslide 'pregnant with horrors'.

Although he hinted at past 'differences' with his successor, the Daily Mail columnist insisted he 'could not say no' when Mr Sunak asked for his help.

In an impassioned speech in London, Mr Johnson urged voters flirting with Reform to 'draw back from the brink' and prevent Keir Starmer securing a 'sledgehammer majority'. He said: 'Too many good, kind, moderate Tories are about to vote for other parties

Turn to Page 6

Call to arms: Boris Johnson addresses last night's rally with a plea to voters to prevent a Labour landslide

INSIDE: 8-PAGE TACTICAL VOTING GUIDE