detail the Crown's case against the missing peer, suspected of bludgeoning his children's nanny to death and trying to kill his estranged wife.

It will be the basis for a world-exclusive, week-long True Crime podcast event, The Trial Of Lord Lucan. Two eminent barristers will argue whether Lucan was innocent or guilty using the bombshell dossier and other evidence. Listeners will then be asked to act as jurors and give their verdicts on MailOnline.

Lucan never stood trial and the Mail's ground-breaking podcast series will test the
