BRITAIN'S BROKEN BORDERS

Watchdog reports expose shocking migration system failings, with airport passport checkpoints left unmanned

SHOCKING failures in Britain's immigration and border system were exposed last night.

Home Secretary James Cleverly was accused of trying to 'bury bad news' as he belatedly published an avalanche of critical reports by a sacked watchdog. The revelations emerged in 13 official reviews by David Neal, who was dismissed as independent chief inspector of borders and immigration on Mr Cleverly's orders last week.

Mr Neal said the findings were a 'stark wake-up call' for the Home Secretary and called for the UK Border Force to be 'properly shaken up'. Civil servants should be stripped of their responsibility for border security and replaced with a 'professional law enforcement agency', he added.

The reports revealed that:

- Border posts in the arrivals halls of major airports have been left unmanned;
- A flagship humanitarian scheme set up to help Afghans fleeing the
