Starmer's deputy used Maggie's flagship policy to buy discounted home – but now she threatens to cut subsidy for others

'HYPOCRITE' RAYNER'S £48k PROFIT ON COUNCIL HOUSE SALE

ANGELA RAYNER has been accused of hypocrisy after it was discovered she made a £48,500 profit on her ex-council house thanks to the right-to-buy policy she now wants to reform.

Critics say Labour's deputy leader wants to 'pull up the ladder' to make it harder for other social housing tenants to benefit in the same way she did. Ms

Rayner is also Shadow Housing Secretary, and has spoken out against those who get 'loads and loads of discount' when purchasing their properties under the right-to-buy policy first introduced by Margaret Thatcher, and long despised by the Left.

But she bought her own former council house in Stockport, Greater Manchester, with a 25 per cent discount in 2007 –
