

Woman whose husband had a vasectomy because she won't have a baby in a world she's convinced faces climate oblivion

SEE PAGES 20-21

Death note: Kiena Dawes blamed 'abusive' boyfriend

'I WAS MURDERED
SLOWLY'
Mum's devastating accusation from beyond the grave

SEE PAGE FIVE

LABOUR'S NET-ZERO ELECTRIC CAR PLAN IN CHAOS

Ministers set to water down sales targets as Vauxhall plant closure blamed on eco policy

LABOUR'S net-zero plans were in chaos last night after electric car sales targets were blamed for the closure of a Vauxhall factory.

Downing Street said an

By David Churchill
Chief Political Correspondent

urgent review of the policy will be launched in the coming weeks after repeated warnings that it was putting jobs and investment at risk.

Ministers are now expected to drastically water down the plans, aimed at accelerating EV sales in the push to net-zero.

But the shift came too late to stop the owner of Vauxhall announcing plans to close its van-making factory in Luton yesterday, putting around 1,100 jobs

Turn to Page 2