REEVES: WE CAN'T BOOST UK DEFENCE WITHOUT MAKING CUTS

RAISING defence spending will mean squeezing other parts of government, Rachel Reeves has warned.

In an exclusive interview with the Daily Mail yesterday, the Chancellor also revealed she will launch the biggest audit of government spending in almost two decades in a drive to slash waste and drive up efficiency.

The review, which will not be completed until June, will involve a 'line-by-line' examination of every item of Whitehall spending, with whole projects set to be axed to focus cash on
