FLIGHTS to Rwanda will take off by July, Rishi Sunak vowed yesterday.

Planes have already been booked and migrants will soon be detained ahead of deportation, he revealed.

The Prime Minister admitted he had missed the spring deadline for his flagship policy to stop the boats, blaming Labour peers in the House of Lords for delays to the necessary legislation.

But as he forced Parliament to sit late into the night until the bill was finally passed just after midnight, he promised there would be a 'regular rhythm' of flights taking off over the summer to deter others from trying to cross the Channel in dinghies.

For the first time, he set out the extensive preparations that have already been made to get the first planes in the air within ten to 12 weeks, in what he said was 'one of the most complex operational endeavours the Home Office has carried out'. These include
