

I believe death is not the end.
That's the only explanation for so many things I've seen

NADINE DORRIES

DOUBLE BLOW FOR SUNAK

RISHI'S DARKEST HOUR...

4PM: Farage stuns No 10 by revealing that he WILL lead Reform and stand as an MP

5PM: Bombshell poll shows Labour heading for biggest election victory in its history

RISHI Sunak suffered the darkest hour of his election campaign yesterday afternoon.

During a dramatic 60 minutes, the Prime Minister suffered a double blow as Nigel Farage

By Jason Groves, David Churchill and Claire Ellicott

entered the fray and a new poll predicted a Tory wipeout.

At 4pm, Mr Farage stunned Westminster by announcing he would return as leader of the Reform Party and stand for Parliament in the Essex seaside town of Clacton. The veteran Brexiteer declared he would lead a 'political revolt' – and predicted his party could overtake the Tories.

An hour later, the largest poll of the election predicted Labour was on course for its biggest win in history, with the Tories reduced to just 140 seats. Chancellor Jeremy

Turn to Page 6

In the saddle: Prince Andrew yesterday

So much for a slimmed down monarchy!

SEE PAGE 5