A YOUNG Labour MP can be revealed as the second Westminster member of a WhatsApp group in which racist, sexist and anti-Semitic messages were exchanged.

The vile posts led to the dramatic sacking of health minister Andrew Gwynne after The Mail on Sunday brought them to the attention of Downing Street on Saturday.

Now it can be revealed that Oliver Ryan, the 29-year-old MP for Burnley, was another leading member of the group, where he has posted more than 2,000 messages.

The Daily Mail has also learned that Greater Manchester Police are now assessing a number of complaints made about the WhatsApp group's offensive content.

In the private chat, called Trigger Me Timbers, Mr Ryan takes part with others in apparently homophobic banter as they joke about a fellow Labour MP being gay. In a
