

Who Is Left Behind When Dementia Rewires the Brain?
REVIEW

WSJ

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL WEEKEND

ARI EMANUEL
WSJ. MAGAZINE

DOW JONES | News Corp  SATURDAY/SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 19 - 20, 2026 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVIII NO. 68 WSJ.com ★★ ★ $6.00

What's News

Business & Finance

- ◆ Warren Buffett stepped down as chairman of Berkshire Hathaway and appointed his son Howard to succeed him, the final phase of a succession plan at the $1 trillion conglomerate. A1
- ◆ Paramount is in advanced settlement talks with California aimed at resolving the antitrust lawsuit blocking its Warner Bros. Discovery deal, according to people familiar with the matter. B9
- ◆ Independent security researchers have used Anthropic's Claude software to access an OpenAI employee's ChatGPT account, giving them a way to read and suggest changes to the company's private cache of software. B9
- ◆ Anthropic plans to stage its blockbuster IPO in November, later than many investors expected. B9
- ◆ Google's Gemini model accessed the internet and hacked other companies during a test of its cybersecurity capabilities. B9
- ◆ Boeing and NASA are in talks about using the company's Starliner for a big batch of new missions. B10
- ◆ The Dow fell for the third straight week, declining 1.7%, while the S&P 500 had its second weekly loss in a row, falling less than 0.1%. The Nasdaq rose 0.7% for the week. B10

Worldwide

- ◆ Republican candidates in some of the toughest House and Senate races have begun to break from President Trump on central parts of his agenda ahead of the midterm elections. A1
- ◆ Trump is banning CNN, MS NOW and Politico from the White House over their coverage of his administration. A4
- ◆ The president said that Donald Trump Jr. reimbursed a Russian businessman who financed his son's lavish wedding afterparty in the Bahamas. A3
- ◆ An immigration officer pleaded not guilty to federal charges that he lied to the FBI about being attacked before he wounded a Venezuelan man in Minneapolis. A2
- ◆ Auto industry groups urged Trump to keep Chinese cars out of the U.S. ahead of a meeting with leader Xi Jinping. A2
- ◆ China's Xi skipped a dinner of world leaders in India this month because he was unwell, said people familiar with the matter. A6
- ◆ Malaysia's former leader Najib Razak can serve the remaining two years of his sentence in the 1MDB scandal under house arrest. A6
- ◆ A vehicle bomb exploded at a mosque near police offices in Pakistan as gunmen tried to storm the compound in an attack that killed at least 21 people and wounded 80 others. A6

PEGGY NOONAN

The sandbox at the end of the world. A13

CONTENTS	Markets Digest..... B6
Biggest Stocks..... B8	Markets & Finance B7
Books..... C7-12	Obituaries..... C6
Business & Finance B9-10	Opinion..... A11-13
From Page One..... A9	Sports..... A10
Heard on Street..... B12	U.S. News..... A2-5
Intelligent Investor B5	World News..... A6-8

© 2026 Dow Jones & Company, Inc.
All Rights Reserved

Vote Seeks to Boost Putin and War

AP/GETTY IMAGES

NO SURPRISES: A woman exits a voting booth Friday in Donetsk in Russian-controlled Ukraine. Russia's parliamentary elections, whose results are seen as a foregone conclusion, are meant to jump-start flagging support for President Vladimir Putin and the Ukraine war. A8

Vulnerable Republicans Inch Away From Trump

Republican candidates in some of the toughest House and Senate races have begun to break from President Trump on central parts of his agenda, a sign of the weight

By Aaron Zitner,
Ken Thomas
and Meridith McGraw

they believe some of his policy stances have placed on their election prospects. The pushback by these candidates isn't a wholesale rupture with the GOP president. But it is a signal that voters in their states are rejecting elements of his policies on tariffs, the Iran war and data centers, among other issues. It also puts these candidates at odds with Trump's push to make himself the center of their party's appeal to voters this year, an approach that Trump promoted Wednesday at a rally in North Carolina, where he urged voters to "pretend I'm on the ballot just one more time." Sens. Susan Collins of Maine and Roger Marshall of Kansas have distanced themselves in recent days from Trump on tariff policies that they said hurt small businesses and rural communities in Maine and aircraft production in Kansas. In Nebraska, Sen. Pete Ricketts has questioned whether consumers would see lower prices from Trump's decision to temporarily allow more foreign beef imports into the U.S., a move that is opposed by ranchers. In the House, seven Republicans, including a group facing tough re-election races, Please turn to page A5

- ◆ Costs go up as voters look to November..... A2
- ◆ Three media outlets face ban by Trump..... A4

INSIDE

RODRIEGO FREITAS/NTB SCANPIX/ZUMA

U.S. NEWS

Trump says the U.S. and Denmark have set a security pact on Greenland. A3

OFF DUTY

Good manners matter more than ever. Check out our guide to model behavior. D1

Billionaire Ellison's Wife Quarterbacks Michigan Sports

The Wolverine grad wields a deep pocket and a powerful voice

By RACHEL BACHMAN AND EMILY GLAZER

Top donors and leaders of the University of Michigan gathered for a barbecue in May at the sun-soaked waterfront estate of Oracle co-founder and billionaire Larry Ellison in Palm Beach County, Fla. Then came a surprise, smaller meeting hosted by an intensely private and particularly powerful alumna and sports-team booster—Jolin Ellison, class of 2012, an international studies graduate and Larry Ellison's sixth wife. Among those summoned were members of the university's board of regents, athletic director Warde Manuel and real estate tycoon Stephen Ross, the school's biggest donor. Following an introduction by a leader of Champions Circle, a fundraising group supporting Michigan athletes, Jolin floated an idea to create a semi-independent entity to pay the university for the use of certain assets, such as premium seating, as a way to raise revenue for athletes, said Michigan regent Michael Behm, who was at the meeting. The idea was met with some skepticism. Please turn to page A9

A Class War Rages Over Hamptons-Bound Helicopters

* * *

The uber-rich rankle the not-rich-enough with their constant flights

By DAVID UBERTI
AND AARON KURILOFF

LARCHMONT, N.Y.—Jay Davis can't escape them. He hears helicopters while working in his home office. He hears them when walking through a nearby park overlooking Long Island Sound. Most annoyingly, he hears them when he and his wife share meals in the enclosed porch adjoining their house in this New York City suburb, interrupting them mid-sentence and drowning out dinnertime viewing of "Wheel of Fortune." Forget buying a vowel. Davis thought he had already bought some peace and quiet. "I have to put the closed captions on so I can see what's happening on the screen," the 53-year-old realtor and attorney said. "I don't want to continue to live like this."

Davis knows the noise is a champagne problem. In Westchester County, home to bedroom communities for Wall Street and Big Law, many problems are. But that dynamic—coupled with where the surge in traffic has been going—is part of what is spurring finger-pointing toward the skies. Many of the choppers are heading to the Hamptons. Flyers' attempts to beat traffic and get a few more hours at the exclusive summer enclave are rattling the windows of people who believed they had earned a slice of suburban tranquility. "One time I thought I had a helicopter in my driveway," said Nancy Monzidelis, a Larchmont resident who has Please turn to page A9

Noise machine

EXCHANGE

AWKWARD PROBLEM

At elite law firms, senior partners aren't retiring. Firms are hiring consultants to help find ways to get them to exit and make way for the next generation. The bottleneck is compounding problems retaining talent. B1