

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

What's News

Business & Finance

- ◆ Historic turmoil in financial markets left investors with few places to hide as Trump's challenge to world trade intensified stock losses from Hong Kong to France. U.S. indexes ended mixed, with the S&P 500 and Dow falling 0.2% and 0.9%, respectively, while the Nasdaq rose 0.1%. A1
- ◆ Some Wall Street leaders are speaking out against Trump's tariffs after a three-day market meltdown that erased trillions of dollars in value from U.S. stocks. A1, A4, A6, B1, B2
- ◆ Apple plans to send more iPhones to the U.S. from India to offset the high cost of duties on China while the company tries to win an exemption from Trump's tariffs. B1
- ◆ PNC appointed former BlackRock executive Mark Wiedman as the financial-services firm's president, where he will be a top contender to succeed CEO Bill Demchak. B3
- ◆ MicroStrategy said it expects to report a loss for the first quarter and warned of more losses to come as the value of its cryptocurrency holdings falls. B1
- ◆ Shell lowered its integrated gas production estimate for the first quarter as volumes were hit by unplanned maintenance. B3
- ◆ Republic Airways and Mesa Air agreed to merge, creating a publicly traded regional airline that will operate under the Republic name. B3
- ◆ Nancy Dubuc, known for leading A+E Networks and Vice Media during challenging times, was named executive chair of Togethrx, a startup focused on women's sports. B4

World-Wide

- ◆ A 5-4 Supreme Court lifted a judge's order that had blocked the deportation of suspected Venezuelan gang members to an El Salvador prison, granting the Trump administration's request to expedite the removals under an 18th-century law known as the Alien Enemies Act. A2
- ◆ Chief Justice Roberts paused a lower court deadline for returning to the U.S. a man deported in error and sent to an El Salvador prison. A2
- ◆ Trump adviser Elon Musk leveled veiled critiques at the White House's trade agenda, exposing tensions within the administration over the president's far-reaching tariffs. A4
- ◆ JPMorgan Chase chief Jamie Dimon said he is concerned about how Trump's new tariffs will affect America's long-term economic alliances. A4
- ◆ The U.S. and Iran said they would convene nuclear talks beginning Saturday. A7
- ◆ The Trump administration will substantially increase payment rates for Medicare insurers next year, generating more than $25 billion in additional revenue for the industry. A3
- ◆ Days of unrelenting heavy rain and storms filled rivers to near record levels across Kentucky, submerging neighborhoods and threatening a famed bourbon distillery. A3
- ◆ Closed-door government questioning of Columbia's former interim leader indicates the Trump administration's relationship with the university remains strained as they negotiate over federal funding. A3
- ◆ Died: Jay North, 73, television's Dennis the Menace. A2

CONTENTS	Markets Digest..... B6
Arts in Review..... A13	Opinion..... A15-17
Business & Finance B2-10	Personal Journal A11-12
Business News..... B3	Sports..... A14
Capital Account..... A6	Technology & Media B4
Crossword..... A13	U.S. News..... A2-4,6
Heard on Street..... B10	World News..... A7-8

Market Turmoil Spreads Across Globe

Hong Kong index posts largest decline since 1997; Trump escalates tariff war

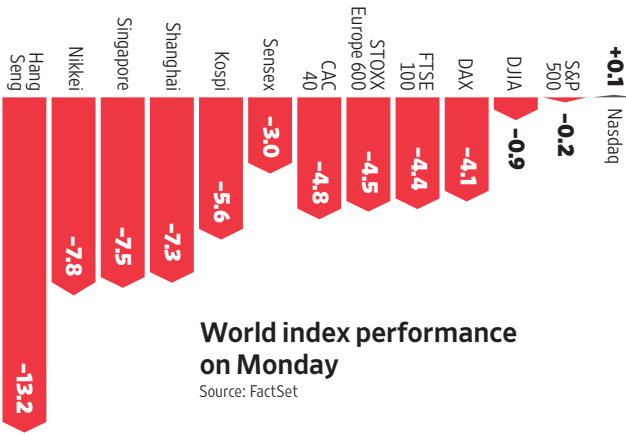

By SAM GOLDFARB

U.S. stocks took a heavy beating for two days in a row last week. On Monday, it was the rest of the world's turn. Historic turmoil in financial markets left investors with few places to hide as President Trump's challenge to world trade intensified stock losses from Hong Kong to France. Hopes that the White House would ride to the rescue over the weekend, pausing the tariffs, were dashed. Trump actually escalated the trade war, saying Monday he planned to add an additional 50% tariff on China starting Wednesday if Beijing doesn't withdraw its planned 34% retaliatory tariff increase on the U.S. Other countries across the globe were scrambling to see if they could negotiate a deal with the administration.

In response, China is threatening to retaliate further against the U.S. if Trump carries out his latest threat. A statement from the Ministry of Commerce on Tuesday said that if the U.S. escalates tariffs, "China will resolutely take countermeasures to safeguard its own rights and interests." Previously China announced a blanket 34% tariff on American goods, matching the level of Trump's April 2 tariff on Chinese imports. On Monday, Japan's Nikkei

Please turn to page A4

Florida Rallies to Beat Houston for National Title

COMEBACK KIDS: The Gators celebrate after storming back to defeat the Cougars 65-63 in the NCAA men's basketball final in San Antonio Monday night. It is Florida's third national championship. Houston was attempting to win its first title. A14

Wall Street Executives Warn of Dangers Of Tariffs

In public and private, the big names of high finance are trying to get a message across to President Trump: Stop the madness.

By Gregory Zuckerman, AnnaMaria Andriotis and Gina Heeb

For weeks, as the contours of Trump's sweeping tariff plans came in and out of focus, Wall Street's leaders kept any concerns they had to themselves. Now, after a market meltdown that has erased trillions of dollars in value from U.S. stocks, some are speaking out, including those who have been vocal supporters of Trump. Bill Ackman, the billionaire hedge-fund manager behind Pershing Square, called for a 90-day pause in the tariffs to negotiate with other countries, warning that the alternative was "a self-induced, economic nuclear winter." "We are in the process of destroying confidence in our country as a trading partner, as a place to do business, and as a market to invest capital," Ackman wrote in a social-media post on X. Across Wall Street and in Washington, a growing number of people, including those who support tariffs in theory, were saying that the current plan is misguided and will cause irreparable damage. Some big-bank executives said they were feeling shut out and lectured at. Early Monday, they briefly

Please turn to page A4

Frustration Over Commerce Chief Mounts

By JOSH DAWSEY

WASHINGTON—Commerce Secretary Howard Lutnick has tried to sell President Trump's trade agenda to U.S. companies for months. Business leaders say they are often confused about what he wants. Lutnick has played a super-size role in Trump's first months in office, driving tariff discussions, meeting with dozens of business leaders, appearing on television and often standing alongside Trump. The former Cantor Fitzgerald chief executive has come to frustrate executives and senior White House officials, who have come away from interactions with Lutnick exasperated, about a dozen people who have interacted with him said.

In private meetings with business leaders, Lutnick has browbeat executives to support Trump's tariffs, while at other times expressing sympathy and telling them he wants to help their companies. Lutnick has taken contradictory positions on key issues, including on whether certain imports should be exempted from tariffs, executives said.

Lutnick, 63 years old, is running point on Trump's disruptive and combative trade agenda, which has rocked the stock market and unsettled governments around the world. When Trump unveiled his far-reaching tariffs last week it was Lutnick standing next to him in the Rose Garden, holding the large chart that ex-

Please turn to page A6

The Trade War's First Victim: Michigan

Auto industry shifts into battle mode; many locals hope cost leads to long-term gain

By JEANNE WHALEN AND CHRISTOPHER OTTS

DETROIT—If President Trump's trade war has a physical battleground, it is Michigan, where companies and workers are already feeling the beginning of an onslaught that could blow a hole in the state's economy.

Nearly 20% of the economy is tied to the auto industry, which has become increasingly dependent on parts and vehicles from Canada, Mexico and China—imports Trump hit with steep tariffs in recent weeks. This trade has grown so large that Michigan ranks fifth in the nation by the size of its imports and exports, even though its total economy ranks 14th. Detroit's automotive executives have shifted into battle mode. They are stockpiling imported components, wrestling with suppliers over price increases and setting up war rooms to

Please turn to page A10

Even Buddhists Can't Find Peace In the Florida Everglades

* * *

Army Corps project raises group's fears that noise, reptiles will disturb gatherings

By JAMES FANELLI

The path to enlightenment has a new roadblock. The leaders of a Buddhist organization say a construction project by the Army Corps of Engineers will ruin the serenity of their retreat center in the Florida Everglades and lead to Burmese pythons, panthers and other dangerous wetland wildlife interrupting spiritual gatherings.

While some Buddhists believe life is suffering, the retreat center's operators aren't ready to accept the intrusions they say the planned seven-story pump station and water-impoundment area 24 times the size of the Dallas Cowboys' stadium will bring to their slice of earthly Nirvana.

They've filed a lawsuit seeking to block the Corps from proceeding, saying it violated the law by not properly studying the project's impact on the surrounding area. The government's project will also interfere with the group's religious practice, the suit says. Followers of Soka Gakkai International—USA believe people are one with nature and their practices, including chanting a daily mantra, can lead to enlightenment. "One of the beautiful things about the center is that members are able to chant their mantras in various areas of the campus to their heart's content," said Abraham Uccello, a senior faith leader in

Please turn to page A12

INSIDE

CHICAGO TRIBUNE/ZUMA PRESS

U.S. NEWS

New national-security review ordered for Nippon's plan to acquire U.S. Steel. A2

PERSONAL JOURNAL

Scams mimicking the voice of a loved one in distress become more common. A11

ORACLE
Fusion Applications

Put AI agents to work across your business

Automate, analyze, and act faster with data-driven insights from AI agents.

See what AI agents can do for you oracle.com/AIagents