

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

DOW JONES | News Corp *****

FRIDAY, AUGUST 1, 2025 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVI NO. 27

WSJ.com

★★★★ $5.00

DJIA 44130.98 ▼ 330.30 0.74%

NASDAQ 21122.45 ▼ 0.03%

STOXX 600 546.11 ▼ 0.8%

10-YR. TREAS. ▲ 4/32, yield 4.360%

OIL $69.26 ▼ $0.74

GOLD $3,293.20 ▼ $2.60

EURO $1.1416

YEN 150.77

What's News

Business & Finance

◆ Apple iPhone sales blew past Wall Street's expectations in the June quarter, helping to lift the company's overall revenue by about 10% from a year earlier. A1

◆ Shares of software company Figma soared in their stock-market debut, rising 250% in one of the splashiest IPOs in years. A1

◆ Amazon.com reported revenue and profit growth of 13% and 35%, respectively, results fueled partly by the company's swelling cloud-computing business. B1

◆ Rising anxiety about the economic outlook weighed on U.S. stock indexes, with the S&P 500 and Dow falling 0.4% and 0.7%, respectively, and the Nasdaq shedding less than 0.1%. B9

◆ Microsoft became the second company to reach $4 trillion in market capitalization, as investors drove its cloud-computing growth and took up its AI offerings. B1

◆ Comcast had a solid second quarter, driven by slower losses of broadband and video customers, growing ranks of Xfinity Mobile subscribers and a theme park opening in Orlando, Fla. B1

◆ CVS reported earnings that beat Wall Street's expectations and raised its projection for 2025. B3

◆ Ray Dalio sold his last remaining stake in Bridgewater and left its board, capping a protracted transition at the hedge-fund firm he founded. B9

◆ Fox Corp. acquired one-third of Penske Entertainment, owner of auto racing's IndyCar Series and Indianapolis Motor Speedway. B4

World-Wide

◆ The U.S. will raise tariffs on nearly all its trading partners, effective at 12:01 on Aug. 7, according to an executive order signed by Trump, who extended a deadline from Aug. 1. It will result in significantly higher levies around the world. A1

◆ Lawmakers in both houses of Congress introduced bills targeting China, a reminder of Capitol Hill's deep-seated desire to punish Beijing over human rights even as Trump pursues a trade deal. A4

◆ Family, friends, fellow police officers and dignitaries paid tribute to the NYPD's Didarul Islam, who was among the four people killed in the attack at a Manhattan office tower. A3

◆ U.S. Middle East envoy Steve Witkoff is set to visit the Gaza Strip on Friday to develop a new aid-distribution plan, the White House said, part of the administration's push to alleviate the humanitarian crisis there. A8

◆ El Salvador's ruling-party legislators pushed through constitutional changes eliminating presidential term limits and allowing President Nayib Bukele to run an unlimited number of times. A8

◆ Sellers of condominium homes are contending with declining prices, ample supply and buyers able to wring concessions from owners anticipating higher condo association dues. A3

◆ Trump is building a Mar-a-Lago style ballroom at the White House, a $200 million addition to the East Wing that marks his latest makeover of the complex. A4

CONTENTS	Market Data..... B6
Arts in Review A10-11	Markets..... B9
Business & Finance... B2	Opinion..... A13-15
Business News..... B3	Sports..... A12
Crossword..... A11	Technology..... B4
Heard on Street... B10	U.S. News..... A2-5
Mansion..... M1-10	World News..... A7-8

© 2025 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved

Russian Barrage on Kyiv Kills at Least 13

TETIANA DZIHAFAROVA/AGENCE FRANCE PRESSE/GETTY IMAGES

DESPERATE SEARCH: A Russian missile-and-drone barrage Thursday on Kyiv destroyed an apartment building and left 13 people dead, including a 6-year-old boy. It left the highest number of children injured by a single attack in the war. A7

Ford's Made-in-U.S. Strategy Hurts It in Trump's Tariff War

Automaker says latest trade deals put it at a disadvantage to its competitors

By SHARON TERLEP

There is an irony in Detroit right now: The automaker most reliant on U.S. manufacturing is among the hardest hit by tariffs. Ford Motor, the second largest American carmaker, prides itself on making the majority of its vehicles in the U.S. Some 80% of the cars Ford sells in the U.S. are built here—it makes more vehicles in the U.S. than any other automaker.

But the Dearborn, Mich., automaker says the Trump administration's latest trade deals with Japan, the European Union and South Korea have put it at a disadvantage to foreign rivals. Those deals now set a 15% tariff rate, which is lower than the 25% auto tariff that went into effect this spring.

Yet Ford faces steeper tariffs on many parts as well as higher costs for imported aluminum which is subject to 50% duties. The automaker, one of the industry's biggest users of aluminum, buys the material from U.S. suppliers who pass on a chunk of their tariff costs.

Ford executives say they've been in near-daily talks with administration officials, who they say have been receptive to the company's argument. "Ford is a leading auto producer in the U.S. and the leading exporter with the most UAW workers," Chief Executive Jim Farley said in a call with analysts. "We're very clear with the administration."

Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent said in a CNBC interview that Ford's predicament is due to "idiosyncratic" factors such as the company's F-series pickups are made with aluminum, which isn't readily available in the U.S., and not steel. He said the administration hopes to cut a deal with Canada to address aluminum costs in particular. "I admire Ford," he said.

When Trump rolled out his tariff plan in April, he railed against the tariffs other coun-

Please turn to page A2

Trade Fight Reverses Gains for Millions

Export manufacturing helped countries narrow the wealth gap with the West

By JON EMONT

PEKALONGAN, Indonesia—When modern textile factories opened in this small city on the Java Sea in the 1990s, life was transformed overnight. Rice farmers and buffalo herders earned enough money sewing clothes for Americans to swap thatch houses for concrete ones and send their kids to universities.

By 2022, the transformation stalled and factories were closing down. Cheaper Chinese competitors were boxing Indonesian producers out of foreign markets.

Now, President Trump's trade fight with Beijing means those low-cost Chinese imports are ending up in Indonesia—as China unloads excess stuff it can't sell in the U.S. It's the final shove that is pushing factories over the edge, and many workers are returning to rice fields for meager pay.

"I try not to think too far into the future, it makes me dizzy," said 47-year-old Tabi'in, who like many Indonesians goes by one name. He used to be a union leader at a sarong factory that shut down last year. He and his wife, who also lost her factory job, can't afford university bills for their 19-year-old son, who hangs around the house.

For a few months, their only relief was a temporary paycheck Tabi'in received to guard the closed factory, making sure copper electrical wires weren't stolen and sold for scrap. Now he's trying to make do with odd jobs, like freelance sewing assignments and preparing snacks made of fried flour for peddlers to sell.

The U.S. global trade war is threatening to close the door on an era of free

Please turn to page A9

Roaring Debut Is Sign of IPO Revival

By CORRIE DRIEBUSCH

Shares of software company Figma soared in their stock-market debut Thursday, rising 250% in one of the splashiest initial public offerings in years.

The stock opened at $85 a share, more than twice its IPO price and the best first-day showing in recent memory for a major offering. The stock was paused temporarily for volatility shortly after it began trading. Shares closed at $115.50, more than triple the company's IPO price, giving the company a market value of about $47 billion.

The enthusiastic reception from investors adds momentum to the U.S. IPO market's recovery and suggests it could be a busy fall. IPO activity has been at a standstill for years and volatility from President Trump's initial tariff announce-

Please turn to page A4

INSIDE

KIN CHEUNG/AP

SPORTS

Britain's Lottie Woad just turned pro—and she's already taking over golf. A12

MANSSION

Buffalo, N.Y., natives who left and are returning give the real-estate market a jolt. M1

Summer Camps Are Fed Up With Parents Smuggling Snacks

Mom and dad get crafty to sneak in food

By TARA WEISS

To the untrained eye, there was nothing nefarious about the packages that arrived at Camp Kennebunk containing a Harry Potter book, tampons and a flashlight.

Stacey Landman knew better. All of the items were vehicles used by parents to smuggle food into the Monticello, N.Y., camp she owns with her family—something that's strictly forbidden since the contraband can attract bugs and mice and cause allergic reactions.

Please turn to page A9

Fear of Higher Prices Powers iPhone Sales, Lifting Apple Results

By ROLFE WINKLER

Apple iPhone sales blew past Wall Street's expectations in the June quarter as some U.S. consumers rushed to buy their devices before potential price increases from tariffs.

The robust sales growth for the company's signature product was the highest increase in years, exceeding 13%, a testament to tariff-related spending habits and the popularity of its latest devices, including a cheaper iPhone released earlier this year.

Shares rose by about 3% in after-hours trading. Overall sales came in at $94 billion, about 10% higher than the same period a year ago.

The iPhone sales offer an example of the unexpected impacts of tariffs on many companies. The change in consumer buying habits, which helped Apple in the quarter, was partially offset by the tariff hit the company absorbed from

President Moves To Raise Tariffs Aug. 7

Order sets broadly higher rates but extends deadline for deals by six days

WASHINGTON—The U.S. will raise tariffs on nearly all its trading partners, effective at 12:01 a.m. on Aug. 7, according to an executive order signed by President Trump on Thursday night.

By Gavin Bade, Louise Radnofsky and Jess Bravin

Trump had pledged to raise tariffs on Aug. 1—the end of an extended pause on duties first imposed in April and then put on hold to allow for negotiations. The new effective date is needed to allow Customs and Border Protection time to update the Harmonized Tariff Schedule for the higher levies, a senior administration official said.

When the action is taken, the result will be significantly higher tariffs on about 100 countries the U.S. trades with, bringing overall U.S. tariffs to their highest level since the Great Depression.

Trump has set a 15% tariff with major industrialized economies, including the European Union, Japan and South Korea. Other nations where the U.S. has a small trade deficit would also get 15% tariffs, the senior administration official said. Countries with which the U.S. runs a trade surplus would be hit with 10% tariffs, the official added.

Some of the tariff rates are set regionally, the official said. Southeast Asian nations such as Indonesia and the Philippines face 19%, and Vietnam 20%, although goods with Chinese content—the amount still unspecified—would get higher duties, the White House has said.

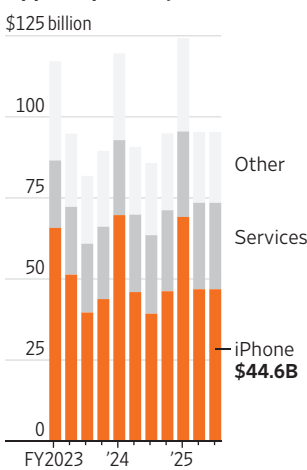

U.S. officials have already settled on a number for how much Chinese content would be allowed before higher duties of 40% are imposed, the senior administration official

Please turn to page A2

Where Burden Of Levies Falls

Some of the cost is passed on to consumers as prices rise on cars and other items..... A2

Apple's quarterly revenue

Note: Latest fiscal quarter ended June 28
Sources: S&P Capital IQ; the company

a 20% levy on imports from China. Apple softened the blow by shipping more U.S.-bound iPhones from India, and gross profit margins also exceeded Wall Street expectations.

Apple Chief Executive Tim

Please turn to page A4