

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

DOW JONES | News Corp.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 2025 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVI NO. 90

WSJ.com

★★★★ $5.00

DJIA 46270.46 ▲ 202.88 0.44% NASDAQ 22521.70 ▼ 0.8% STOXX 600 564.54 ▼ 0.4% 10-YR. TREAS. ▲ 8/32, yield 4.022% OIL $58.70 ▼ $0.79 GOLD $4,138.70 ▲ $30.10 EURO $1.1610 YEN 151.83

What's News

Business & Finance

- ◆ Dealmaking, trading and corporate lending are fueling profits at the nation's biggest banks, with Goldman Sachs, JPMorgan Chase, Citigroup and Wells Fargo all beating third-quarter profit and revenue forecasts. A1
- ◆ New York City's office market is enjoying its biggest boom in nearly two decades, leaving the rest of the U.S. in its dust. A1
- ◆ Trump's surprise tariff announcement against China on Friday triggered a cryptocurrency selloff, but two accounts that bet against the market minutes before the news broke scored a $160 million windfall. B1
- ◆ U.S.-China trade tensions sent stocks on another roller-coaster ride. The Dow gained 0.4% while the S&P 500 and Nasdaq fell 0.2% and 0.8% respectively. The Russell 2000 rose 1.4% to a record close. B10
- ◆ AMD is partnering with Oracle to bring online a large data-center cluster that uses tens of thousands of AMD's newest AI chips. B1
- ◆ The U.S. retreat from its EV ambitions is spreading around the globe. A1
- ◆ Ford is temporarily cutting production of at least five models after a devastating fire at a crucial aluminum supplier's plant. B1
- ◆ Johnson & Johnson plans to separate its artificial hip and knee business into a stand-alone company. B1
- ◆ Two big U.S. timberland owners, Rayonier and PotlatchDeltic, plan to combine to create a more than $7 billion forestry giant. B1

World-Wide

- ◆ After a U.S.-brokered cease-fire paused the war between Hamas and Israel, a fight between Hamas and other armed Palestinian groups in the Gaza Strip is now under way. A1, A8, A9
- ◆ Hamas handed over the bodies of four more hostages to Israel, after both sides accused each other of violating the cease-fire that was part of the deal that released all 20 living detainees from Gaza. A8
- ◆ The U.S. designated a Cambodian conglomerate as a transnational criminal organization, accusing it of running online scam operations that have victimized people across the U.S. A3
- ◆ The man who set fire to the Pennsylvania governor's residence, forcing Josh Shapiro and his family to evacuate, was sentenced to 25 to 50 years in prison. A3
- ◆ Trump honored the late conservative activist Charlie Kirk with the Presidential Medal of Freedom. A4
- ◆ The State Department said it has revoked the visas of at least six people for their comments on Kirk's death. A4
- ◆ Maine's Democratic Gov. Janet Mills launched a bid to unseat GOP Sen. Susan Collins in next year's Senate race. A4
- ◆ Trump announced another military strike on an alleged drug-trafficking boat off the coast of Venezuela. A6
- ◆ Trump directly tied the $20 billion lifeline the U.S. is extending to Argentina to President Milei's success in the coming midterm elections. A6
- ◆ Died: D'Angelo, 51, Grammy-winning soul singer. A4

CONTENTS	Markets Digest..... B9
Arts in Review..... A15	Opinion..... A17-19
Business & Finance B2-35	Personal Journal A13-14
Business News..... B6	Sports..... A16
Crossword..... A16	Technology & Media B4
Heard on Street..... B10	U.S. News..... A2-4
Markets..... B10	World News..... A6,8-10

© 2025 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved

Military Steps In After Madagascar Leader Flees

REVOLT: Members of an elite army unit patrolled in front of City Hall in Antananarivo, the capital, during a rally Tuesday calling for President Andry Rajoelina to resign. He fled to an undisclosed location as a coup capped weeks of youth-led protests. A10

Hamas Cracks Down on Rivals After Truce With Israel Begins

In Gaza, firefights, public executions follow cease-fire, spreading fear

A U.S.-brokered cease-fire has hit pause on the war between Hamas and Israel. In its place, a fight between Hamas

By Suha Ma'ayeh, Abeer Ayyoub and Benoit Faucon

and other armed Palestinian groups in the Gaza Strip is now under way. As Israeli troops pulled back last week to facilitate a deal that freed the living hostages still held in Gaza, Hamas surged security forces in behind them—a public assertion of authority intended to make clear the group remains the enclave's governing power. Those forces immediately began cracking down on rival militias controlled by prominent Palestinian families, engaging in firefights and conducting public executions that have spread fear and raised concerns that a spiral of internecine violence could bring new pain to a long-suffering population. Clashes around a hospital in Gaza City on Sunday left dozens dead, according to the Hamas unit that conducted the raid and members of the family it was fighting. Videos that emerged Monday—verified by Storyful, which like The Wall Street Journal is owned by News Corp—show Hamas fighters dragging a number of men from the family into a public square in broad daylight, forcing them to kneel and executing them in front of a crowd of onlookers. The violence points to the challenges ahead as talks around President Trump's peace plan move beyond the hostage deal to the more complex task of disarming Hamas and replacing it with new administrative and security functions. The U.S.-designated terrorist group's assertion of authority, if it persists, will be at odds with the requirements of Trump's plan. Israel, which has provided arms to some anti-Hamas groups, is closely monitoring the fighting to see how it develops, an Israeli official said. "Hamas is re-establishing Please turn to page A8

◆ Four more bodies are returned to Israel..... A8

◆ Nepali parents learn son died while held hostage... A9

Wall Street Soars as Trading, Deals Rise

Big banks' earnings beat forecasts with the help of markets and boardrooms

By AnnaMaria Andriotis, Alexander Saeedy and Ben Glickman

Goldman is now on pace for its best year ever in its main investment-banking and markets division. JPMorgan is on track to make more than $50 billion in annual profit for the second year in a row. BlackRock is sitting on a record $13.5 trillion in assets under management. The strength is evident across many of the banks' businesses, reflecting the enthusiasm in the stock market and corporate boardrooms. Record high stock markets fueled increased trading and borrowing by hedge funds and others to buy even more securities. President Trump's policymaking is adding volatility that keeps traders eager to move, but not so much to spoil the punch. Financing activity is surging, with mergers on the rise. Then there are the massive investments in the rise of artificial intelligence, building out data centers and other Please turn to page A2

◆ Stocks gyrate on trade crosswinds..... B10

INSIDE

PERSONAL JOURNAL
How Taylor Swift and 'The Life of a Showgirl' turned the tables on album sales. A13

JASON GAY
Indiana is supposed to be a basketball state, but it has become a football paradise. A16

U.S. Shift Against Electric Cars Swells Into a Global Reversal

By Sharon Terlep and Stephen Wilmot

The U.S. retreat from its electric-vehicle ambitions is spreading around the globe. In Canada, Prime Minister Mark Carney paused an electric-vehicle sales mandate that was set to take effect next year. In the U.K., Prime Minister Keir Starmer has allowed for a more flexible timetable to hit the country's EV targets. And the European Union last month bowed to pressure from automakers to rethink—a year earlier than planned—its 2035 target for eliminating carbon-dioxide emissions from cars. "There's this realization that, 'Hey, this transformation isn't going as fast as we want,'" said Patrick Schaufuss, a partner at consulting firm McKinsey & Co. "EVs aren't smartphones." The reality is hitting hard in the U.S. General Motors said on Tuesday it would take a $1.6 billion charge due to sinking EV sales, a shift it blamed on recent moves by the U.S. government to end EV subsidies and regulatory mandates. The automaker has lobbied heavily this year to loosen electric-vehicle requirements. That might just be the beginning of a financial reckoning from automakers that poured billions of dollars into new electric models—from sports cars and sedans to big pickups and SUVs—to try to get ready for the government-backed EV mandates. Automakers have been saying that consumers aren't adopting EVs as quickly as Please turn to page A12

◆ GM takes $1.6 billion charge on EV pullback... B5

Gone Digging: Gold Fever Breaks Out

Record prices turn amateurs into prospectors

By Te-Ping Chen

Two weeks ago, Mike Hewlett struck gold. Sort of. The California welder has plenty of hobbies, including snowboarding, skiing and dirt biking. But with gold prices reaching record highs, he's taken up a new one: prospecting. While hiking in a forest in the Mount Shasta area with a metal detector, browsing over rocks and dirt, his machine began to beep. Hewlett had detected metal buried inside some gravel—digging it up, he found a chunk of gold about half the size of his pinkie fin- Please turn to page A12

NYC's Office Market Sees Prices Roar Back

By Peter Grant

New York City's office market is enjoying its biggest boom in nearly two decades, leaving the rest of the U.S. in its dust. Businesses leased 23.2 million square feet of additional Manhattan office space during the first nine months of 2025, according to real-estate services firm CBRE Group. That is the largest amount of new workspace rented for that period in 19 years. A combination of factors is fueling the recovery, from more New York workers heading back to the office regularly to the financial sector's increasing appetite for more modern office space. Accounting and consulting company Deloitte signed one of the biggest leases this year when it rented nearly three-quarters of a new Hudson Yards skyscraper under development on Manhattan's West Side. Technology, media and advertising companies also gobbled up space this year, extending a recent run. Amazon.com, for one, expanded its New York presence by purchasing a Fifth Avenue building and leasing an additional 330,000 square feet. New York is setting the pace for the rest of the country. Manhattan leasing activity in 2025 has now surpassed its 2018-2019 levels. Nationwide, office leasing remains about 11% below its prepandemic average, according to CBRE. Competition for prime space in Manhattan has grown so intense that many large tenants have to choose between a great location or a top-quality building. "In most other cities, landlords only wish they had that kind of problem," said Michael Slaterry, CBRE's re- Please turn to page A12

What if your company could solve problems before you even knew they existed?

It can with Agentforce.

Find out how at agentforce.com.