EXCLUSIVE

By Ian Gallagher and Glen Owen

PRINCE Harry faced a growing backlash from ministers, the Royal Family and the public last night over his bitter attack on King Charles.

The Duke of Sussex caused widespread disbelief when he complained in a BBC interview that his father 'won't speak to me' and that he was the victim of an 'Establishment stitch-up'.

He also accused the Royal Household of interfering in his battle to have his UK police security reinstated – an allegation dismissed yesterday by both the Government and Buckingham Palace.

Government insiders flatly rejected the Duke's extraordinary demand that the Home Secretary Yvette Cooper 'urgently' investigate the committee behind the decision to downgrade his security – with Whitehall sources pointing out that the
