

Chicago Tribune

QUESTIONS? CALL 1-800-TRIBUNE

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 2025

BREAKING NEWS AT CHICAGOTRIBUNE.COM

ICE facility puts politics in focus

Detainee killed in shooting at Dallas immigration office

By Jamie Stengle
Associated Press

DALLAS — A shooter with a rifle opened fire from a nearby roof onto a U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement location in Dallas on Wednesday, killing one detainee and wounding two others before taking his own life, authorities said.

The suspect has been identified by a law enforcement official as 29-year-old Joshua Jahn. The official could not publicly disclose details of the investigation and spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity.

The exact motivation for the attack was not immediately known. The head of the FBI, Kash Patel, released a photo on social media that shows a bullet found at the scene with the words “ANTI-ICE” written in what appears to be marker.

The attack is the latest public, targeted killing in the U.S. and comes two weeks after conservative leader Charlie Kirk was killed on a college campus by a rifle-wielding shooter on a roof.

“The shooter fired indiscriminately

Turn to Shooting, Page 2

Kat Abughazaleh, left, candidate for Illinois' 9th Congressional District, is confronted by federal agents as protesters block a vehicle from entering the Immigration and Customs Enforcement facility in Broadview on Friday. STACEY WESCOTT/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

FENCE DRAWS IRE: Broadview is demanding the Department of Homeland Security take down an “illegally built” fence erected outside the ICE facility. Chicagoland, Page 6

2026 candidates draw attention by joining Broadview protests

By Olivia Olander and Dan Petrella
Chicago Tribune

Since the administration of President Donald Trump launched an immigration crackdown in the Chicago area nearly three weeks ago, a nondescript industrial street in the western suburbs has become a flashpoint for protests against “Operation Midway Blitz” — and the place to be seen for candidates running in next spring’s primary elections.

Protests have been a regular occurrence outside the two-story brick U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement processing center on Beach Street in Broadview, with federal officials at times deploying chemical agents, shooting pepper balls and using physical force to disperse demonstrators who’ve blocked the street in front of the facility’s gate. Lately, though, a growing number of mostly Democratic politicians have joined the crowd.

This past Friday, at least five Democrats campaigning for federal office made appearances at the facility, including an activist who for weeks has been promoting her presence at the spot, a north suburban

Turn to Broadview, Page 6

Trump administration policy halts Afghan family’s bid to reunite with daughter left behind when Taliban closed in on Kabul 4 years ago

‘WE GOT OUT. SHE DIDN’T’

By Nell Salzman
Chicago Tribune

On a recent video call, Bahara’s face flickered in and out — her sharp cheekbones barely visible in the dark. The power was out again in Kabul.

The 19-year-old spoke for a few minutes with her family in Illinois before the screen went black and an eerie quiet settled over the room.

It has been four years since Bahara’s family of seven was together, and since they last saw their youngest daughter. In their living room, half a world away from her, they relive their separation from her.

“We are very, very worried all the time,” her father said, curled up on the floor, weeping. “We always think about her.” The Tribune has withheld Bahara’s parents’ names for security reasons.

Bahara, 19, appears from Afghanistan in a FaceTime call with her family in the Chicago area on Aug. 14. It has been four years since the family was together. In the months since President Donald Trump took office, progress on her immigration case has seemingly stopped altogether.

E. JASON WAMBSGANS/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

In August 2021, shortly after American troops withdrew from Afghanistan and as the Taliban advanced on Kabul, Bahara’s family joined thousands of others racing to the airport.

For nearly 20 years, Bahara’s father served as a security guard providing protection for U.S. military personnel and now feared retribution from the Afghan government. He and his wife had never considered leaving their country, but one of their sons had already been shot in the leg by the Taliban and they felt a need to protect the family.

But at the airport, a flash bomb exploded in the crowd. Bahara’s mother was hit in the face and began bleeding badly. Petite Bahara, then 15 years old, was swept away in the chaos.

Bahara’s father tried to return to the blast

Turn to Bahara, Page 5

CHICAGO CITY COUNCIL

Cost controls for area near Obama center move forward

Scaled-back plan features affordable housing pilot, property tax debt relief

By A.D. Quig
Chicago Tribune

After a four-year fight, residents worried about skyrocketing rents and property values south of the Obama Presidential Center cleared the first hurdle Wednesday to secure new housing protections in the area.

Following months of stop-and-start meetings with Mayor Brandon Johnson’s administration and last-minute changes, advocates won passage in the City Council Housing Committee of a more modest proposal than they originally hoped for.

Despite pushback from other neighborhood groups, including business interests, supporters’ hopes are high that the ordinance will pass the full City Council on Thursday before aldermen are mired in budget talks that will likely distract them from other matters.

The package was whittled down from its original proposal up to the last minute: The committee recessed more than once for huddled meetings with proponents and opponents.

The deal creates a pilot program that would set aside 30 city-owned lots for affordable homes to purchase and new rental units. It would also create a $3 million property tax debt relief program, giving out grants of up to $5,000 for residents of South Shore, Englewood and the Lower West Side and expand a “fair notice” pilot currently active in Woodlawn, giving renters a longer heads up when their leases are not being renewed.

The pilot area spans from 60th Street on the north to 71st Street to the south, Martin Luther King Jr. Drive on the west to DuSable Lake Shore Drive to the east, and South Chicago Avenue on the south-west.

That cuts out the 7th Ward, which was part of the original ordinance. Local Ald. Gregory Mitchell did not back the ordinance. Other homeowners in the area, and the former alderman of the 5th Ward, argued the neighborhood already had affordable rental stock — including federally subsidized housing — and

Turn to Housing, Page 5

Uncertainties looming over CPS

In the month since the high-stakes battle over a $10.25 billion budget, Chicago Public Schools continues to face financial and other challenges. Chicagoland, Page 3

Illinois issues vaccine guidance

Illinois has diverged from the federal government, offering its own recommendations on COVID-19 and other shots, and allowing care providers to act accordingly. Business

Cubs tangled in wild card drama

With the season in its final week, a Cubs skid has opened up the possibility of beginning the postseason on the road, writes columnist Paul Sullivan. Chicago Sports

TODAY'S WEATHER

High 74 Low 56

Complete Chicagoland forecast on Page 14

$4.00 city and suburbs and elsewhere
178th year No. 268 © Chicago Tribune

