BIN STRIKE UNION'S IRON GRIP OVER LABOUR MINISTERS

Revealed: 28 of Starmer's team belong to militant Unite

EXCLUSIVE

A QUARTER of Keir Starmer's ministers belong to the militant union behind the Birmingham bin strikes crisis, it can be revealed.

Of the Labour Government's 108 ministers, 28 are card-carrying members of the hardline Unite union.

They include Local Government Secretary Angela Rayner, Home Secretary Yvette Cooper, Foreign Secretary David Lammy and Business Secretary Jonathan Reynolds.

It means their membership fees are helping to fund the strike pay which Unite is doling out to refuse workers.

Workers lose pay for every day they strike. But sources say Unite is handing striking workers as much as £100 for each day they keep the crippling six-week campaign going.

Meanwhile, a Mail analysis reveals nearly a quarter of Labour's 403 MPs have pocketed cash from Unite barons. The 92 MPs have
