Governor sees memo for military deployment claiming need to protect ICE agents

Gov. JB Pritzker on Monday said he had received a report that federal officials are seeking to deploy troops to Illinois in support of President Donald Trump's surge in immigration enforcement.

"Moments ago, the Illinois National Guard received word that the Department of Homeland Security has sent a memo to the Department of War seeking the deployment of 100 military troops to Illinois, claiming a need for the protection of ICE personnel and facilities," Pritzker said at an afternoon news conference.

"What I have been warning of is now being realized," Pritzker said. "One thing is clear: None of what Trump is doing is making Illinois safer."

Pritzker said he did not know whether the federal government wants to deploy troops from the Illinois National Guard or some other branch of the military. "It's unclear what troops are being requested or potentially could be sent by the Department of War," he said, using Trump's new name for the Department of Defense. Pritzker later added that he does not know where the troops would be sent or when they could arrive.

The Tribune obtained a copy of the memo, addressed to Col. Anthony Fuscclaro, "Executive Secretary of the US Department of Defense," by Homeland Security Executive Secretary Andrew Whitaker. It alleges that ICE and Federal Protective Service agents "have come under coordinated assault by violent groups intent on obstructing lawful federal enforcement."

Mother and children detained by ICE at Millennium Park now held at O'Hare

Dasha Ramirez, 8, and her little brother were playing with the water at the Crown Fountain in Chicago's Millennium Park when federal agents approached their parents on a sunny Sunday afternoon.

She ran toward her father, Jaime Ramirez, who was suddenly surrounded by a group of heavily armed agents in full camouflage. A second group encircled her mother, Noemi Chavez, who had been sitting quietly on a nearby bench, helping her 3-year-old son put on his shoes.

"They approached me and asked me if I had my documents," said Noemi Chavez during a phone call to the Tribune Sunday night following their detention. "I told them I was not going to answer any questions and demanded a warrant."

Her request, she said, was ignored.

Cradling her son in her arms, Chavez was escorted toward her husband, who remained surrounded by agents. Dasha clutched her doll, crying at the sight of her parents under arrest. Bystanders watched silently. No one intervened, Chavez recalled.

US, Israel agree to Gaza peace plan

Unclear if Hamas will accept terms of 20-point proposal

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said Monday they've agreed on a plan to end the war in Gaza, but it's unclear whether Hamas will accept the terms.

Trump on Monday laid out a 20-point plan for ending the Israel-Hamas war and establishing a postwar governance in the war-battered Palestinian territory. Trump's plan would establish a temporary governing board that would be headed by Trump and include former British Prime Minister Tony Blair and other heads of state still to be announced.

The plan says that Gaza will be governed by an "apolitical Palestinian committee, responsible for delivering the day-to-day running of public services and municipalities for the people in Gaza" under the supervision of the "Board of Peace" directed by Trump.

The plan does not require people to leave Gaza and calls for the war to end immediately if both sides accept it. It also calls for all remaining hostages to be released by Hamas within 72 hours of Israel accepting the plan.

During a joint appearance with Netanyahu, Trump said Israel would have the "full backing" of the United States to take

Ill. Democrats stoke fight over federal shutdown

But anger over health care cuts not clear-cut win

By Daniel C. Vock
Chicago Tribune

WASHINGTON — Chicago-area Democrats in Congress, many of them spoiling for a fight with President Donald Trump, are preparing for a high-stakes showdown with Republicans that could indefinitely halt most of the day-to-day work of the federal government starting Wednesday.

The combative stance toward the Trump administration is familiar ground for Illinois progressives, but now U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin, a longtime Senate institutionalist who regularly praises bipartisan-ship in the upper chamber, seems ready to join them.

Durbin could be key to how long a shutdown lasts or whether it happens at all. Illinois' senior senator reluctantly sided with Republicans on a spending bill this spring, saying shutting down the government would do more damage than agreeing to the GOP's demands. That vote outraged many liberal activists and the 80-year-old Durbin announced weeks later that he would not seek reelection.

But with Republicans needing seven Senate Democratic votes to avoid a filibuster, Durbin this time around — just days before the shutdown
