

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

DOW JONES | News Corp

*****

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 2025 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVI NO. 77

WSJ.com

★★★★ $5.00

DJIA 46316.07 ▲ 68.78 0.15% NASDAQ 22591.15 ▲ 0.5% STOXX 600 555.53 ▲ 0.2% 10-YR. TREAS. ▲ 12/32, yield 4.140% OIL $63.45 ▼ $2.27 GOLD $3,820.90 ▲ $44.70 EURO $1.1728 YEN 148.60

What's News

Business & Finance

- ◆ Boeing is quietly planning a new single-aisle airplane that would succeed the 737 MAX, a long-term bid to recover business lost to Airbus as it dealt with safety and quality problems. A1
- ◆ YouTube agreed to pay $24.5 million to settle a 2021 lawsuit that Trump brought against the company and its chief executive over its suspension of Trump's account after the riot at the Capitol. A1
- ◆ OpenAI plans to release a version of its Sora video generator that creates videos using copyright material unless copyright holders opt out of having their work appear. A1
- ◆ Major U.S. stock indexes rose, with the S&P 500, Nasdaq and Dow industrials advancing 0.3%, 0.5% and 0.1%, respectively. B9
- ◆ Bad Bunny will headline the Super Bowl LX halftime show in Santa Clara, Calif., on Feb. 8, the National Football League said. B1
- ◆ Charlie Javice was sentenced to more than 7 years in prison for defrauding JPMorgan Chase when she sold her startup to the bank for $175 million. B1
- ◆ First Brands filed for bankruptcy after the market lost confidence in the auto-supplier's financial disclosures and use of off-balance-sheet debt. B1
- ◆ Lufthansa said it would cut about 4,000 jobs by 2030, mostly in Germany, as the airline continues to roll out artificial intelligence and automation of tasks. B4

World-Wide

- ◆ Trump and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu agreed to a 20-point plan to end the war in Gaza, and Trump told Hamas it had 72 hours to accept the deal or suffer complete annihilation. A1
- ◆ Top Democrats said they made their case to Trump for restoring billions of dollars in healthcare spending as part of any deal to avoid a government shutdown. A4
- ◆ Moldova's ruling pro-European party claimed victory in parliamentary elections that became a referendum on its efforts to pull the former Soviet republic closer to the West. A6
- ◆ The Pentagon, alarmed at low weapons stockpiles ahead of a potential future conflict with China, urged its missile suppliers to double or even quadruple production rates on a breakneck schedule. A5
- ◆ The American released by the Taliban on Sunday was the fifth to be let go this year as Kabul and the U.S. discuss economic and security issues. A6
- ◆ The Trump administration escalated its fight with Harvard by starting a process that could make the nation's oldest and wealthiest university ineligible for federal grants. A3
- ◆ The Trump administration said it would open 13 million acres of federal lands for coal mining and provide $625 million to recommission or modernize coal-fired power plants. A4
- ◆ Trump said he is slapping a 100% tariff on films made outside the U.S., reiterating a threat he made earlier this year. A2

JOURNAL REPORT

College Rankings: The Best Colleges in America. R1-6

CONTENTS Markets..... B9-10
Arts in Review..... A11
Opinion..... A13-15
Business & Finance..... B2
Personal Journal A9-10
Business News..... B3
Sports..... A12
Crossword..... A11
Technology..... B4
From Page One..... A8
U.S. News..... A2-5
Heard on Street..... B10
World News..... A6-7

© 2025 Dow Jones & Company, Inc.
All Rights Reserved

Relatives and supporters of hostages Hamas holds in Gaza rallied in Tel Aviv on Monday for their release and an end to the war.

Trump Outlines Plan to End Gaza War, Threatens Hamas

President offers 20 points, tells militants to accept in 72 hours or face annihilation

WASHINGTON—President Trump and Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu of Israel agreed to a 20-point plan to

By Anat Peled, Summer Said and Alexander Ward

end the war in Gaza, and Trump told Hamas it had 72 hours to accept the deal or suffer complete annihilation. If Hamas doesn't accept, or the plan falls apart, "Israel would have my full backing to finish the job of destroying the threat of Hamas," Trump said as he stood next to Netanyahu at the White House. For months, President Trump warned Hamas that it had to release all remaining hostages or face Israel's wrath. But on Monday, he essentially threatened the prospect of more war to end nearly two years of fighting. The move ranks among the riskiest diplomatic gambles for Trump, which he delivered next to Netanyahu to show that at least one warring party agreed to his vision to end the war. If Hamas doesn't support the proposal, then the U.S. would back Israel as it targeted the U.S.-designated terrorist group in its last remaining strongholds. "Israel will finish the job by itself," Netanyahu said during a joint statement following the White House meeting. "This can be done the easy way, or it can be done the hard way, but it has to be done." Trump's plan, if adopted, would see the president chair a "Board of Peace" to oversee the interim governance of Gaza. Aid would flow into the enclave and an Arab-led stabilization force would swiftly keep order. Israeli forces would, over time, withdraw from the battlefield while maintaining a security buffer zone around Gaza. Hamas would lay down its arms while forever renouncing its leadership role. In response to the Trump plan, the foreign ministers of Saudi Arabia, Jordan, the UAE, Indonesia, Pakistan, Turkey, Qatar, and Egypt said they supported the U.S. efforts and called for full withdrawal of Israeli forces from Gaza, as well as for the enclave's reconstruction. They said they would work with the U.S. to end the war and called for the renewal of peace negotiations that would lead to a Palestinian state. Israel helped shape the Trump plan, officials said, and pushed for several amendments that appeared in the fi

Please turn to page A7

OpenAI Video to Test Copyright Guardrails

OpenAI is planning to release a new version of its Sora video generator that creates videos featuring copyright material unless copyright holders opt out of having their work appear, according to people familiar with the matter.

By Keach Hagey, Berber Jin and Ben Fritz

OpenAI began alerting talent agencies and studios about the forthcoming product and its opt-out process over the last week and plans to release the new version in the coming days, the people said. The opt-out process for the new version of Sora means that movie studios and other intellectual property owners would have to explicitly ask OpenAI not to include their copyright material in videos the tool creates. The policy is emblematic of AI companies' aggressive stance on the content that underpins and is created by their fast-growing tools as they race to attract new users. It is part of a broader shift that new AI tools have heralded in the control that copyright owners wield over their work. While copyright characters will require an opt-out, the new product won't generate images of recognizable public figures without their permission, people familiar with OpenAI's thinking said. "Our general approach has been to treat likeness and copyright distinctly," said Jason Kwon, chief strategy officer of OpenAI.

Please turn to page A4

INSIDE

PERSONAL JOURNAL
What retirement after age 75 looks like in the U.S. A9

SPORTS
The Ravens were a Super Bowl favorite—until everything started going wrong. A12

You Tube to Settle President's Lawsuit For $24.5 Million

By Rebecca Ballhaus and Annie Linskey

WASHINGTON—YouTube has agreed to pay $24.5 million to settle a 2021 lawsuit that President Trump brought against the company and its chief executive over its suspension of Trump's account after that year's riot at the U.S. Capitol, according to court papers. The settlement makes YouTube, which is owned by Alphabet's Google, the final Big Tech company to settle a trio of lawsuits Trump brought against social-media platforms in the months after he left the White House. Meta Platforms agreed in January to pay $25 million, most of it to a fund for Trump's presidential library, and X agreed to pay $10 million, much of it going directly to Trump, The Wall Street Journal previously reported. Google executives were eager to keep their settlement smaller than the one paid by rival Meta, according to people familiar with the matter. Trump's share of the settlement—$22 million—will go to the nonprofit Trust for the National Mall, earmarked for the construction of a Mar-a-Lago-style ballroom Trump is building at the White House, according to the court documents. The

Please turn to page A2

Family Feud Rocks Mecca Of Barbecue

Texans take sides as beef gets uglier; dueling signs

By Jennifer Williams

LOCKHART, Texas—This town is a barbecue mecca, drawing people from around the state and beyond who are united by their love of smoked meat. But these days, the pride of this town about 30 miles south of Austin is also a source of deepening division. One of the area's most prominent meat-smoking fam-

Please turn to page A8

FEMA Revamp Paralyzes Recoveries

Plan to shift responsibilities to states delays federal disaster funds

By Scott Patterson and Tarini Parti

ST. LOUIS—Minutes after a mile-wide tornado struck this city on an otherwise beautiful day this spring, Ali Rand heard her husband shout as he surveyed the devastation surrounding their tony neighborhood of historical homes. "Everything is gone," Rand, 38, remembers him saying. The tornado, packing winds of 152 miles an hour, hit the city with blunt force, killing five people. In the weeks following the storm, Rand and other private citizens mobilized teams of residents whose neighborhoods had been destroyed to clean up debris, remove fallen trees and rebuild shattered homes. Largely missing from the recovery efforts, according to Rand, city officials and other residents: the Federal Emergency Management Agency. "I've never seen someone from FEMA out on the streets," Rand said. That is by design. St. Louis is a test case for the Trump administration's

Please turn to page A8

Game Deal Sets Buyout Record

Videogame maker Electronic Arts said it would go private in a $55 billion deal, the largest leveraged buyout of all time. B1

Top 10 global leveraged buyouts*

| Electronic Arts (pending) | $55.0 billion |
|---------------------------|----------------|
| TXU (2007)                | $31.8         |
| Medline Industries (2021) | 30.0           |
| First Data (2007)         | 26.4           |
| Alltel (2007)             | 25.7           |
| Mileway (2022)            | 23.8           |
| HJ Heinz (2013)           | 23.6           |
| FiberCop (2023)           | 23.3           |
| HCA (2006)                | 21.0           |
| Hilton Hotels (2007)      | 20.2           |

*Excluding debt
Sources: Dealogic (buyouts); the company (EA value)