

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

What's News

Business & Finance

- ◆ The U.S. will refrain from imposing additional tariffs on the EU until July 9, Trump said, walking back his threat to bring in the duties on June 1 if the two sides couldn't reach a trade deal. A2
- ◆ U.S. stock futures and European shares advanced after the president paused the new tariffs, which had been set at 50%. B8
- ◆ Investors have plowed a record $437 billion into U.S. exchange-traded funds so far this year, unfazed by the wildest markets since the Covid-19 pandemic. B1
- ◆ Disney's remake of "Lilo & Stitch" topped the weekend domestic box office with an estimated $183 million in ticket sales. B3
- ◆ SpaceX is shifting personnel and resources to its powerful new rocket, hoping to have the vehicle ready for a Mars mission next year. B1
- ◆ Volvo said it would cut around 3,000 jobs as part of a wider plan to slash costs and become more efficient amid a challenging global auto market. B3
- ◆ Arbitration began in London over Exxon's claim that it has a contractual right to pre-empt Chevron's bid for Hess's stake in a major oil project in Guyana. B5
- ◆ Salesforce is again in talks to acquire data-management software firm Informatica after a deal between the two fizzled last year. B4
- ◆ EU regulators said China-founded e-commerce platform Shein's sales tactics breach bloc rules and the company could face fines if it doesn't adjust its behavior. B3

World-Wide

- ◆ Trump is weighing new sanctions against Moscow amid frustration with the slow pace of talks to end the war in Ukraine and Russian President Vladimir Putin's escalating attacks there. A1
- ◆ The trade truce agreed between Washington and Beijing has prompted companies to rebook canceled orders and hasten to send products from China to the U.S. before the 90-day window closes in August. A1, A2, B1
- ◆ Trump said he was considering taking billions in grant money away from Harvard University and re-distributing it to trade schools across the U.S. A3
- ◆ The requirement that student borrowers again start repaying their education loans will redirect money spent elsewhere, creating fresh challenges for the broader economy. A6
- ◆ Israel's military said it plans to capture 75% of the Gaza Strip within two months and push Palestinian civilians into just a quarter of the enclave's territory as part of a new effort to rid Gaza of Hamas. A8
- ◆ Romania's new president was sworn in, potentially ending the worst political crisis to grip the EU country in decades after the annulment of a previous election. A8
- ◆ A 53-year-old British man drove his minivan into a crowd of Liverpool soccer fans who were celebrating the city's Premier League championship, injuring more than 45 people. A8
- ◆ Died: Charles Rangel, 94, veteran Harlem congressman. A5

CONTENTS	Markets & Finance B8
Arts in Review..... A13	Opinion..... A15-17
Business & Finance B25	Personal Journal A11-12
Business News..... B3	Sports..... A14
Crossword..... A13	Technology..... B4
Heard on Street..... B9	U.S. News..... A2-6
Markets Digest..... B6	World News..... A8-9

Tributes Are Paid to the Fallen on Memorial Day

NATIONAL SHRINE: A volunteer placed flowers at the gravestones of service members Monday at Arlington National Cemetery.

Tariff Truce Spurs 90-Day Rush To Move Products Out of China

By HANNAH MIAO AND JASON DOUGLAS

Adam Leeb is rushing to ship $700,000 of electronic typewriters from China while the trade truce holds. After forking over $23,000 for tariffs in March when President Trump hit Chinese goods with a new 20% levy, Leeb, a Detroit business owner, decided to pause shipments altogether when the administration then pushed tariffs to an eye-watering 145%. Now that a 90-day truce agreed between Washington and Beijing this month has brought that down to 30%, Leeb's company, Astrohaus, which makes typewriters, keyboards and other tools for writers, is taking the opportunity to restock. "I'm assuming this is probably the best-case scenario for a while," Leeb said. Sky-high tariffs pummeled U.S.-China trade, and now the cease-fire is causing a snapback. Firms across the U.S. are racing to rebook canceled orders and find space on con-tainerships to get products out of China and bring them state-side before the 90-day window closes in August. The turbulence comes as Trump over the weekend eased off his threatened 50% tariffs on the European Union, delaying until July 9 levies he said on Friday would take effect June 1. In the week beginning May 12, when the trade truce with Beijing was announced, bookings for containers to the U.S. from China more than doubled compared with the week before as the tariff rollback unleashed a wave of pent-up demand. Bookings surged to the equivalent of around 2.2 million 20-foot boxes, a level not seen in more than a year, according to data from Vizion, a container-tracking software company, and data provider Dun & Bradstreet. Please turn to page A2

- ◆ Trade war dents California's port economy..... A2
- ◆ Latest threat against the EU is delayed..... A2
- ◆ Buying 'Made in America' can be hard..... A6

Bad Year for Cook Keeps Getting Worse

By ROLFE WINKLER

For Tim Cook, the hits keep coming. On Friday, President Trump targeted Apple with new demands that the company make iPhones in the U.S., threatening 25% tariffs if the company doesn't comply. "Rise and shine Tim Cook," Trump whisperer Laura Loomer posted on X, reminding the Apple chief executive he is at the center of the president's trade bull's-eye. That is just one of the threats Cook has confronted in what has appeared to be a no good, very bad year for Apple. Aside from Trump, Cook is facing off against two U.S. judges, European and worldwide regulators, state and federal lawmakers and even a creator of the iPhone, to say nothing of the cast of rivals outrunning Apple in artificial intelligence. Each is a threat to Apple's hefty profit margins, long the company's trademark and the reason investors drove its valuation above $3 trillion before any other company. Shareholders are still Cook's most important constituency. The stock's 25% fall from its peak Please turn to page A6

INSIDE

SPORTS

For Novak Djokovic and his record 24 Grand Slam titles, time is running short. A14

Judges Weigh Security Changes

Trump's stepped-up criticism sparks talk of managing their own protection

Amid rising tensions between the Trump administration and the judiciary, some federal judges are beginning to discuss the idea of managing their own armed security force. The notion came up in a series of closed-door meetings in early March, when a group of roughly 50 judges met in Washington for a semiannual meeting of the Judicial Conference, a policymaking body for the federal judiciary. There, members of a security committee spoke about threats emerging as President Trump stepped up criticism of those who rule against his policies. Dozens of judges and Please turn to page A10

These Drinks Will Sober You Up

* * *
$15 mocktails are a real buzzkill;
◆ 'definitely gouging' ◆

By HEATHER HADDON AND LAURA COOPER

Clara Choi gets a funny feeling from the drinks she sips when she goes out with friends. The fruity, brightly colored concoctions typically incorporate juices and syrups. They contain no alcohol, but they still make Choi wince and leave her with a different kind of hangover. "It looks pretty, but it's literally a layer of grape juice and orange juice," said Choi, a 30-year-old Southern California foodie working in higher education. "They are definitely gouging." Please turn to page A10

Ozempic for Everyone? Doctors Hail 'GLP-1s'

By PETER LOFTUS

Should Ozempic be added to the water supply? That is the kind of half-joking question that doctors kick around when a new class of drugs begins to help a big chunk of the population. Cardiologists used to quip about spiking water systems with cholesterol-reducing statins because of their ability to prevent heart attacks. Now, Ozempic and others in the "GLP-1" category of drugs are approaching that critical mass. They are showing promise for an ever-expanding list of diseases, beyond today's most common uses of weight loss and treating diabetes. Heart, kidney and liver diseases. Sleep apnea. Arthritis. Alzheimer's disease. Alcohol addiction. Even aging. Some of these are potential benefits that need further study. "It is getting to the point of wondering what GLP-1 agonists aren't good for," pharmaceutical researcher and blogger Derek Lowe wrote in the journal Science last year. If this trajectory continues, doctors say millions more people would benefit from them—maybe even one-third to a majority of adults. But they also caution about use of the drugs in people who don't medically fit the bill because it could cause malnourishment. Doctors would have to figure out ways to guard against excessive weight loss in people who aren't overweight, perhaps putting them on special diets, said Dr. Scott Isaacs, an endocrinologist in Atlanta. The drugs—which also include Wegovy, Mounjaro and Zepbound—mimic naturally occurring gut hormones such as GLP-1. The medicines promote production of insulin, which helps control blood-sugar levels in people with Please turn to page A4

ORACLE

Oracle Cloud Database now runs everywhere

- ✓ AWS
- ✓ Azure
- ✓ Google
- ✓ Oracle Cloud
- ✓ Your data center

Autonomous Exadata powered Pay with cloud vendor credits Advanced AI included for FREE

oracle.com/data

