

WSJ

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL WEEKEND

DOW JONES | News Corp.  SATURDAY/SUNDAY, JANUARY 18 - 19, 2025 ~ VOL. CCLXXXV NO. 15 WSJ.com ★★★★★ $6.00

What's News

Business & Finance

- ◆ The Supreme Court unanimously upheld a federal law requiring TikTok's Chinese owners to sell or shut down the app by Sunday. A1
- ◆ Paramount Global executives have held internal discussions about settling a lawsuit filed by Donald Trump over a CBS News interview with Kamala Harris. A1
- ◆ Goldman Sachs gave CEO David Solomon an $80 million bonus to stay at the bank for five more years. A1
- ◆ All three major indexes rose Friday. The Dow, S&P 500 and Nasdaq gained 0.8%, 1% and 1.5%, respectively. B11
- ◆ The FTC sued PepsiCo, alleging that the beverage giant forced many consumers to pay higher prices by giving Walmart unfair pricing advantages. B9
- ◆ CNN agreed to pay a U.S. Navy veteran an undisclosed sum after a Florida jury found the network liable for defaming him in a segment. B9
- ◆ A group representing 100 large employers sued the Labor Department over Biden administration rules aimed at ensuring mental-health treatment is covered like conditions such as cancer. B9

World-Wide

- ◆ A new WSJ poll finds that most voters support many of the goals Donald Trump has set for his second term, but want a tempered, less assertive set of policies than promised in his campaign. A1
- ◆ The incoming Trump administration plans a large-scale immigration raid in Chicago beginning Tuesday. A4
- ◆ The GOP-led Senate voted to move forward with a bill that would require the Department of Homeland Security to detain undocumented immigrants arrested for theft-related offenses. A6
- ◆ President Biden moved to enshrine the Equal Rights Amendment in the Constitution and said he was commuting nearly 2,500 nonviolent drug convictions. A6
- ◆ Biden issued orders to rein in offshore drilling for fossil fuels, accelerate the build-out of data centers for AI and promote cybersecurity. A6
- ◆ The U.S. government is constrained by its debt limit, the Treasury Department said, prompting measures to keep America's bills paid. A2
- ◆ The U.S. government named 15 drugs that will be subject to the second round of price negotiations by Medicare, including Ozempic. A3

NOONAN
You never forget a fire A17

NOTICE TO READERS
WSJ.com and WSJ mobile apps will publish throughout the weekend. The Wall Street Journal print edition won't be published on Monday, Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

CONTENTS
Markets & Fin.....	B11
Books.....	C7-12
Business & Fin. B9-10	Opinion..... A15-17
Design & Decor.....	Sports..... A14
Food.....	Style & Fashion D2-4
Gear & Gadgets. D10	Travel..... D6
U.S. News.....	A2-8
World News.....	A10-12

© 2025 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved

TikTok Loses at High Court

Justices uphold law forcing shutdown or sale of Chinese app days before deadline

By JESS BRAVIN AND SARAH E. NEEDLEMAN

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court unanimously upheld a federal law requiring TikTok's Chinese owners to sell or shut down the social-media app by Sunday, siding with Congress's national-security concerns over the platform and its users' claim that the ban violates the First Amendment. The Friday ruling means the platform could go dark—at least temporarily—on Sunday, depriving millions of teenagers and other TikTok users of their daily fix of short-form videos that keep them glued to their phones. President-elect Donald Trump and his allies are trying to find a political path forward to assuage security concerns and rescue the app. Biden administration officials have signaled they don't intend to enforce the ban before leaving office, but that hasn't been enough to give TikTok comfort. Late Friday, TikTok publicly pressed the administration for more assurance that it won't enforce the law, saying otherwise it will be forced to go dark. A White House official said: "We have already gone to extraordinary lengths to communicate our posture." TikTok, girding for a possible loss at the Supreme Court, has been planning to shut down the app in the U.S. to comply with the law and avoid exposing companies that sell or distribute the app to legal liability. It has also been exploring other maneuvers and Please turn to page A7

◆ Xi, Trump discuss thorny issues..... A7
◆ What's next for TikTok and the app's users?..... A7

Bone-Chilling Cold Sends Inauguration Indoors

CHANGE IN PLANS: Workers prepare the Capitol Rotunda on Friday for President-elect Donald Trump's inauguration on Monday. With frigid temperatures expected to grip Washington, D.C., the decision was made to move the event indoors.

Trump Is Ready To Bypass Congress

Plans for border and tariffs will push limits of presidential authority

WASHINGTON—Days before his inauguration, President-elect Donald Trump made clear in a two-hour private meeting with Senate Republicans that he wouldn't wait on them to start implementing his biggest policy priorities: overhauling the immigration system and reshaping the relationship with economic allies and adversaries.

By Tarini Parti, Brian Schwartz and Gavin Bade

With the experience of governing and a better knowledge of the levers of power, Trump has drafted expansive plans for tariffs and border restrictions, the centerpieces of his 2024 campaign. He has already prepared roughly 100 executive orders, Trump told lawmakers in the meeting, and said he would press the limits of his presidential authority at times to go it alone on those issues, according to people who attended. Trump's emphasis on immigration Please turn to page A13

Poll Suggests Voters Prefer MAGA Lite

By AARON ZITNER AND XAVIER MARTINEZ

Voters support many of the goals President-elect Donald Trump has set for his second term. They are just not on board with all the ways he wants to accomplish them. That is the central message voters are sending in a new Wall Street Journal poll, which finds that most want a tempered, less assertive set of policies than Trump promised in the most unbridled moments of his campaign. The appetite is for MAGA lite, rather than extra-strength MAGA. Some 53% want Trump to make significant changes in how government is run once he is inaugurated Monday. But more than 60% oppose one of his central ideas for doing so—replacing thousands of career civil service workers with people chosen by the president. More than 60% also oppose eliminating the Education Department, a marquee Trump proposal for paring the federal government. Only 18% would Please turn to page A4

First Raid Set For Chicago

Large-scale deportation action to begin on day after inauguration..... A4

U.S. Pressed Deadline For Deal In Gaza

It was Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath, when Steve Witkoff, President-elect Donald Trump's Middle East envoy, sat down with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu to deliver a stark message from his boss: It was time for a cease-fire deal in Gaza.

By Dov Lieber, Summer Said, Rory Jones and Anat Peled

Witkoff, a New York real-estate developer, told the prime minister choices had to be made and Israel's negotiators needed the authority to make decisions, said a person familiar with his conversations. If Netanyahu didn't want to work that way, said, everyone should just pack their bags and go home, the person said. Witkoff delivered the same imperative to Arab mediators. A day earlier in Doha, Qatar, he told them it was time for an agreement, not endless diplomatic back-and-forth, said the mediators and the person familiar with the conversations. Witkoff, a friend of Trump's—he was playing a round of golf with him during an assassination attempt in September—was new to diplomacy. But his push was well-timed, with both sides more inclined to a deal, and Trump Please turn to page A11

- ◆ Last-minute issues show tough road ahead..... A10
- ◆ Gazans aim to rebuild their lives..... A11

CBS Owner Discusses Settling Trump Suit

By JESSICA TOONKEL AND DREW FITZGERALD

Paramount Global executives have held internal discussions about settling a lawsuit filed by Donald Trump over a CBS News interview with Vice President Kamala Harris, according to people familiar with the situation, a sign of larger efforts to dial down tensions with the incoming president. Paramount, owner of CBS, its namesake studio and several cable channels, has a major piece of business in front of the new administration: its planned merger with Skydance Media. It has become clear to executives at both companies that Trump's dissatisfaction with CBS News will make the review tougher than they anticipated, and that they will likely need to offer concessions to win approval, people familiar with the situation said. Incoming Federal Communications Commission Chairman Brendan Carr gave Paramount executives a warning to that effect at a reception late last year following the taping of the Kennedy Center honors in Washington, according to people familiar with the exchange, and he has echoed the message in public remarks. The FCC has authority over the transaction because it would involve the transfer of Please turn to page A4

- ◆ CNN settles defamation lawsuit..... B9

Goldman Gives CEO $80 Million to Stay On

By ANNA MARIA ANDRIOTIS AND DEAN SEAL

Goldman Sachs gave Chief Executive David Solomon an $80 million bonus to stay for five more years, ending any lingering questions about his grasp on the Wall Street giant. Solomon had a bruising couple of years at Goldman that cast his longevity as CEO into doubt among many partners after taking over in 2018. Solomon directed an aggressive expansion of the consumer-lending business, started by his predecessor, but the business has flopped and Goldman is exiting the sector with more than $7 billion in losses to date. The firm has seen an exodus of partners, in part from frequent reorganizations of its asset-management business under his direction. Even his hobby of DJing had drawn criticism and negative headlines, personalizing the drama at the bank. Much of the furor has quieted, predictably for Wall Street, as the bank's profits improved. Goldman is now retrenching and focusing on its core businesses of global banking and markets as well as asset and wealth management. The bank earned $14.28 billion in 2024, a 68% increase from the year before. The Please turn to page A2

EXCHANGE

EPIC FAIL
Vail Resorts transformed skiing. Now it faces the backlash. B1

These Fans Are Rooting For a Meteor
* * *
Football playoff pits two teams Michigan loathes

By LAINE HIGGINS

On Monday night in Atlanta, a nightmare scenario will play out for University of Michigan football fans. Either their rival, Ohio State University, or the team they hate nearly as much, Notre Dame, will be crowned as champions of the College Football Playoff. "I basically view this game Please turn to page A13