UAE AND EGYPTIAN PRESIDENTS DISCUSS FRATERNAL TIES

President His Highness Shaikh Mohammad Bin Zayed Al Nahyan received Abdul Fattah Al Sissi, President of Egypt, who arrived in Abu Dhabi yesterday on a fraternal visit to the UAE. The two leaders held discussions focusing on the deep-rooted fraternal relations between the two countries and ways to further strengthen cooperation across various sectors, particularly those that advance their shared development goals and serve the mutual interests of their peoples.

Dh1 million fine for violators of UAE's new media law

Penalties for false news, insult to religion, unlicensed publishing

A comprehensive regulatory framework governing media activities nationwide has come into effect in the UAE. With fines reaching up to Dh1 million, the legislation aims to ensure ethical, responsible content across both digital and traditional platforms.

Announced by the UAE Media Council, the law outlines a broad range of violations, with penalties scaled according to the severity and frequency of the offence. It also introduces updated licensing requirements and regulatory provisions for content creators, publishers, and media companies operating in the country.

The law stresses the need to respect the UAE's system of governance, national symbols, and institutions, and to safeguard the country's supreme interests and societal wellbeing.

The Council emphasised that media content must fully respect the divine being, Islamic beliefs, and other Abrahamic religions, prohibiting any form of offence towards them. It also stressed the need to respect the UAE's system of governance, national symbols, and institutions, and to safeguard the country's supreme interests and societal wellbeing.

Respecting the nation's official policies – both domestic and foreign – is a fundamental media obligation. Therefore, any material that could damage the UAE's foreign relations or harm its international reputation is strictly forbidden.

Upholding moral values

It also underlined the importance of upholding prevailing moral values, serving the public interest, and avoiding any disruption to it. Content that undermines the legal, economic, judicial, or security systems is strictly prohibited.

The Council declared it unacceptable to publish false news or forged documents falsely attributed to individuals or entities.

Regarding advertisements, it stressed that advertising content must respect the UAE's culture, identity, and values. Violations of these standards, or the broadcasting of media or advertising content that contradicts them, may lead to official warnings, financial penalties of up to Dh1 million, and, if repeated within a year, doubled fines not exceeding Dh2 million.

A viral video by Dubai-based content creator Jacquelyn May has attracted over one million views on TikTok, gone viral on Instagram, and even received a like from Shaikh Hamdan Bin Mohammad bin Rashid Al Maktoum, Crown Prince of Dubai, Deputy Prime Minister, Minister of Defence, and Chairman of The Executive Council of Dubai.

Posting under the username @jacquelynnmay, the content creator shared a video on May 28 in which she wears a traditional Emirati Mukhawwar Jalabiya. In the clip, she says: "You see how we show up to Dubai Mall? Very respectful, very put together."

She says her post was inspired by a woman wearing revealing clothing at Dubai Mall. "I wanted to address the issue in a light-hearted, humorous way as a reminder that we live in Dubai and must respect its culture and customs," May, a Canadian expat in the UAE for the past nine years, told Gulf News.

11 dead, dozens hurt in IPL win celebrations

KARNATAKA GOVERNMENT CANCELS PARADE CITING SECURITY REASONS

people were injured in the stampede in Bengaluru

The celebrations for the first-ever IPL victory of the Royal Challengers Bengaluru (RCB) turned tragic yesterday when 11 people died and 33 were injured in a stampede near the Chinnaswamy Stadium, according to official figures. The incident occurred while fans were attending the celebration event for the RCB team lifting the IPL 2025 trophy, with Prime Minister Narendra Modi calling the tragedy "absolutely heartrending".

The stampede took place when thousands of fans attempted to enter the stadium in a hurry from various gates. Police at the scene transported the injured to ambulances and shifted them to the nearby Bowring Hospital.

Police stated that the ambulances were unable to move quickly to the hospital due to the overcrowding on the roads. In a separate incident, one fan, while climbing a gate to jump into the stadium, fell and broke his leg.

Massive crowds

Despite the presence of numerous police personnel, they struggled to control the massive crowd. People were seen climbing trees and sitting on branches to catch a glimpse of the celebration. The government of Karnataka had earlier cancelled the victory parade from Vidhana Soudha to Chinnaswamy Cricket Stadium, citing security reasons.

Karnataka state Chief Minister Siddaramaiah told reporters, "No one expected such a huge crowd," but added that the entire police force of the city available had been deployed. "The stadium has a capacity of only 35,000 people, but 200,000-300,000 people came".

IPL chairman Arun Dharmal, speaking to NDTV, said organisers in the stadium had not been told about the stampede until later.

"At the time of the celebrations inside the stadium officials there did not know what had happened... I would like to send my heartfelt condolences," Dharmal said.

Karnataka Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar said cricket organisers had "shortened the programme" inside the stadium.

"The pain of this tragedy has even erased the joy of victory," added Siddaramaiah, who has ordered an inquiry into the deaths.
