

Chicago Tribune

QUESTIONS? CALL 1-800-TRIBUNE

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 2025

BREAKING NEWS AT CHICAGOTRIBUNE.COM

Texas National Guard arrives

Members of the Texas National Guard arrive on Tuesday at the Army Reserve Training Center in Elwood. BRIAN CASSELLA/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Pritzker says Trump is sending troops due to fixations, ‘dementia’

By Jeremy Gorner and Rick Pearson
Chicago Tribune

In a scathing critique of President Donald Trump, Gov. JB Pritzker on Tuesday accused the Republican president of deploying National Guard troops to the Democratic cities of Chicago and Portland based on fixations that stem in part from his being mentally impaired.

“This is a man who’s suffering dementia,” Pritzker said in a telephone interview with the Tribune. “This is a man who has something stuck in his head. He can’t get it out of his head. He doesn’t read. He doesn’t know anything that’s up to date. It’s just something in the recesses of his brain that is effectuating to have him call out these cities.

“And then, unfortunately, he has the power of the military, the power of the federal government to do his bidding, and that’s what he’s doing.”

The governor’s comments came as National Guard troops from Texas were assembling at a U.S. Army Reserve training center in far southwest suburban Elwood and Trump’s administration was moving forward with deploying 300 members of the Illinois National Guard for at least 60 days over the vocal and legal objections of Pritzker and other local elected leaders.

The Trump administration has said the troops are needed to protect federal agents and facilities involved in its ongoing deportation surge and has sought to do

Turn to Pritzker, Page 2

Gov. JB Pritzker listens to a question during a news conference about the federal deployments to Illinois and the ongoing federal immigration enforcement activity in Chicago at his office in the West Loop on Monday. EILEENT. MESLAR/TRIBUNE

Troops deployed despite repeated objections by Illinois officials

By Alicia Fabbre, Angie Leventis Lourgos, Alice Yin, Jeremy Gorner and Jake Sheridan
Chicago Tribune

The Texas National Guard has arrived in the Chicago area despite the repeated objections of Illinois officials, who have rejected President Donald Trump’s pledge to deploy the military domestically in response to increasingly heated immigration crackdown protests here and in other Democratic-run cities across the country.

Tribune journalists saw multiple military members, dressed in camouflage and carrying long guns, on federal property in Elwood, a far southwest suburb that is home to a U.S. Army Reserve training center. Soldiers, who wore “T” patches on their arms identical to the ones shown in a picture tweeted by Texas Gov. Greg Abbott on Monday, could be seen walking in and out of mobile sleeping units on the site.

On Monday, a defense contractor told the Tribune that he was setting up sleeper units, showers and a dining hall for 250 people at the makeshift base.

The troops’ arrival angered Will County Executive Jennifer Bertino-Tarrant, a Democrat who oversees the state’s fourth most populous county. Bertino-Tarrant said her office had not been told about plans to garrison the Texas Guard at the training center, a 3,600-acre site that was previously part of the Joliet Army Ammunition Plant property.

“We received no information

Turn to Troops, Page 4

ACTIVISTS IN BACK OF THE YARDS: People from the community call on shopping plaza to block ICE operations on their property. Page 2

CLASH IN SENATE: U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin and Attorney General Pam Bondi grapple over National Guard in Illinois and Justice Department politicization. Page 3

CALLING FOR CRIMINAL CHARGES: Chicago Mayor Brandon Johnson says federal agents who break city law should be charged with a crime. Page 4

Deposition from Daley in Burge case to stay hidden

The ex-mayor has long been able to steer clear of a public accounting

By Sam Charles
Chicago Tribune

Sworn testimony from former Mayor Richard M. Daley regarding torture tactics used by detectives working for disgraced Chicago police Cmdr. Jon Burge will remain out of the public view, at least for now.

Daley has long been able to steer clear of the public accounting of the Burge case. And his video-recorded deposition in one lawsuit has remained under a protective order since 2018, when Daley testified in a federal civil rights lawsuit filed by Alonzo Smith.

Smith alleged Daley — then the Cook County state’s attorney — ignored evidence that Chicago Police Department detectives

Former Chicago police Cmdr. Jon Burge walks across the street after being in the Dirksen U.S. Courthouse on May 24, 2010, in Chicago. LANE CHRISTIANSEN/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

under Burge routinely tortured criminal suspects, mostly Black men. Peter Dignan and John Byrne, two detectives working under Burge at Area 2 detective headquarters, beat Smith with a rubber nightstick, kicked him in the groin and put a plastic bag over his head to force him to confess to the 1983 slaying of James Fullilove, the suit alleged.

Less than a year after Daley testified, the lawsuit was settled for $5.25 million before going to trial. Crucially, the settlement of the case also meant that Daley’s deposition was not entered into the court record. A protective order on the video forbids its distribution.

U.S. District Judge Virginia Kendall issued a memorandum order and opinion in late September following motions and arguments by attorneys for a documentary producer who sought to have the order lifted.

“While the Court recognizes

Turn to Burge, Page 6

Talks on Gaza war gain momentum

US, Qatari diplomats set to arrive; Hamas seeking guarantees

By Samy Magdy and David Rising
Associated Press

CAIRO — Peace talks between Israel and Hamas resumed at an Egyptian resort city Tuesday, the two-year anniversary of the militant group’s surprise attack on Israel that triggered the bloody conflict that has killed tens of thousands of Palestinians in the Gaza Strip.

In a sign the talks were gaining momentum, Qatar said its prime minister and top diplomat, Sheikh Mohammed bin Abdul-rahman Al Thani, would travel to Egypt on Wednesday to join the negotiations.

U.S. President Donald Trump’s Mideast envoy Steve Witkoff and the president’s son-in-law Jared Kushner as well as top Netanyahu adviser Ron Dermer are also expected to join the talks then.

The second day of indirect negotiations at the Red Sea resort of Sharm el-Sheikh is focused on a plan proposed by Trump last week that aims to bring about an end to the war.

A senior Egyptian official involved in the ceasefire talks said Hamas has demanded guarantees that Israel won’t return to

Turn to Talks, Page 7

‘The calm in the storm’

C The Cubs again turn to Jameson Taillon to stave off elimination in Game 3 NLDS start against the Brewers. Chicago Sports

