

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

DOW JONES | News Corp

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 2025 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVI NO. 84

WSJ.com

★★★★ $5.00

DJIA 46602.98 ▼ 91.99 0.20% NASDAQ 22788.36 ▼ 0.7% STOXX 600 569.27 ▼ 0.2% 10-YR. TREAS. ▲ 9/32, yield 4.126% OIL $61.73 ▲ $0.04 GOLD $3,976.60 ▲ $28.10 EURO $1.1660 YEN 151.90

What's News

Business & Finance

◆ The gold price rose to a record, surpassing $4,000 a troy ounce for the first time, coinciding with concerns about the outlook for the U.S. economy and its place in the world. A1

◆ Major U.S. stock indexes fell, with the S&P 500, Nasdaq and Dow industrials retreating 0.4%, 0.7% and 0.2%, respectively. B11

◆ NYSE owner Intercontinental Exchange said it would invest up to $2 billion in Polymarket in a deal that values the crypto-based prediction market at roughly $8 billion. B1

◆ Tesla unveiled stripped-down versions of its bestselling SUV and sedan, but the new lower prices don't quite cover the recently expired $7,500 EV tax credit. B1

◆ The IEA slashed its forecast for renewable energy capacity growth in the U.S. this decade, citing the phase-out of tax incentives and U.S. regulatory changes. A2

◆ Shell said that it expects to report significantly higher third-quarter earnings from trading in its integrated gas division. B2

◆ Mercedes-Benz car and van sales fell 12% to 525,300 vehicles in the third quarter as a challenging Chinese market and U.S. tariffs softened consumer demand. B3

◆ Jaguar Land Rover launched a new plan to help boost cash flow for its suppliers as it announced the restart of further manufacturing after a cyberattack. B3

◆ South32 agreed to sell roughly $178 million of stock in Canada-based mineral-exploration company Trilogy to the U.S. Defense Department. B3

World-Wide

◆ Supreme Court justices voiced skepticism that states can ban counseling that aims to change a young patient's sexual orientation or gender identity. A1

◆ Illinois politicians rallied against the Trump administration's federalization of the National Guard in the state as guardsmen gathered and protesters vowed to continue to challenge their presence. A3

◆ The White House stepped up pressure on federal employees as it tries to persuade Democrats to get on board with Republicans' short-term spending plan. A4

◆ The U.S. aviation system is showing stress a week into the government shutdown, with thousands of flights delayed amid air-traffic control staffing shortages. A3

◆ The U.S. could negotiate separate trade deals with Canada and Mexico rather than revisiting the three-way agreement that is up for review next year, Trump said. A2

◆ The Nobel Prize in physics was awarded to John Clarke, Michel H. Devoret and John M. Martinis for work that laid a foundation for quantum computing and other technologies. A3

◆ The U.K. government is struggling with how to manage near daily pro-Palestine protests that officials say have fueled a rise in antisemitism. A7

◆ Pope Leo XIV said his trip to Turkey and Lebanon beginning Nov. 27 would be an opportunity to promote Christian unity and bring a message of peace and hope to Lebanon's people. A16

CONTENTS	Opinion..... A13-15
Arts in Review..... A11	Personal Journal A9-10
Business & Finance B2-3	Property Report..... B6
Business News..... B12	Sports..... A12
Crossword..... A12	Technology..... B4
Heard on Street..... B12	U.S. News..... A2-6
Markets..... B11	World News..... A7-16

© 2025 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved

Israelis Mark Anniversary of Hamas Massacre

REMEMBERING: An Israel soldier mourned Tuesday at a memorial for a friend killed at the Nova music festival during the Hamas attacks of Oct. 7, 2023. Negotiators arrived in Egypt for talks on freeing the remaining hostages taken that day. A7

Big Banks Court Trump to Win Lead Roles in Mortgage IPOs

Planned Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac offerings prompt an unusual 'bake-off'

Goldman Sachs Chief David Solomon was at the White House this summer pitching President Trump on why his bank should lead a huge coming deal: the initial public offering of mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

By Corrie Driebusch, Gina Heeb and AnnaMaria Andriotis

Midway through the presentation, Trump invited in a group of athletes from his council on sports and fitness. Solomon continued speaking as former professional wrestler Paul "Triple H" Levesque and golfer Bryson DeChambeau looked on.

It was a surreal meeting befitting what is perhaps the strangest IPO "bake-off" ever.

All of the major banks have been working to land roles on what could be one of the largest stock offerings in history. In doing so, the banks are wrestling with a host of novel issues because of the unpredictability of Trump and the complicated nature of taking government-backed entities public. The winners stand to earn not only hefty fees but bragging rights for having worked on a deal that could reap the government billions of dollars.

"Everyone wants to be on this," one bank executive said.

The CEOs of the country's six largest banks—Goldman Sachs, Citigroup, Bank of America, JPMorgan Chase, Morgan Stanley and Wells Fargo—have all made pilgrimages to the White House. They have courted Trump and others involved, including Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent, Federal Housing Finance Agency Chief Bill Pulte and Commerce Secretary Howard Lutnick.

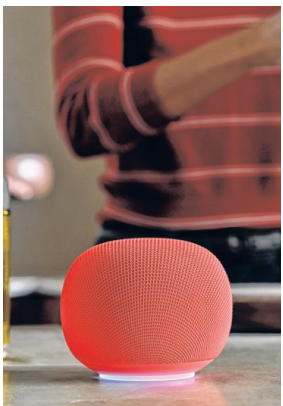

Trump officials have fielded calls from smaller investment banks, too.

Some of the bankers said their strategy has been to humor the administration's aspirations for the offering and highlight how they would structure it to make it a slam dunk for investors, the government and the public.

Trump officials have been envisioning IPOs that value the combined firms at about $500 billion and raise about $30 billion, The Wall Street Journal previously reported. While Fannie and Freddie could have separate offerings, if they raise that amount to

Please turn to page A6

INSIDE

PERSONAL JOURNAL

The radical changes that are making your smart home less dumb. A9

SPORTS

The Bill Belichick nightmare at North Carolina just keeps getting worse. A12

All This Town Wants Is a Home for Its Atom Smasher

Westinghouse device once made locals proud. Now it's an eyesore that makes them sad.

By KRIS MAHER

FOREST HILLS, Pa.—The Westinghouse Atom Smasher loomed like a mysterious cast-iron hot-air balloon when Jim Senkewitz was growing up in its shadow in the 1950s.

The particle accelerator towered over this Pittsburgh suburb built to house Westinghouse workers, and was a symbol of innovation for the company and region. Today, it lies on its side on cracked pavement, like an abandoned time capsule or a crashed U.F.O.

"I always told my brother, it's a wonder we don't all glow in the dark," Senkewitz said as he brushed his hand across the graffitied hull. "It's sad to see it like this."

Westinghouse built the silver, pear-shaped device in 1937 and it became known as the "world's first industrial atom smasher." For a time, it used 5 million volts of electricity to shoot hydrogen nuclei down a vacuum tube at up to 100 million miles an hour. Researchers studied the collisions.

Advances at the lab contributed to radar systems, micro-

Please turn to page A8

Justices Are Skeptical of Bans On LGBTQ 'Conversion Therapy'

By LOUISE RADNOFSKY

WASHINGTON—Supreme Court justices voiced skepticism Tuesday that states can ban counseling that aims to change a young patient's sexual orientation or gender identity.

The case comes from Colorado, where the state in 2019 enacted a law that prohibits licensed mental-health care providers from using conversion therapy with patients under 18.

At least 22 states have similar laws, the earliest of which came from California in 2012. Such prohibitions initially focused on therapy aimed at changing the sexual orientation of lesbian, gay and bisexual patients, but counseling over gender identity has become a bigger flashpoint recently.

Licensed professional counselor Kaley Chiles challenged the restrictions, arguing that Colorado was violating the Constitution's guarantee of free speech by stopping her from counseling young people who wanted guidance informed by Christian convictions.

The state's law bars therapists from "helping minors pursue state-disfavored goals on issues of gender and sexuality" and censors "widely held views on debated moral, religious and scientific questions," her lawyer, Jim Campbell from the conservative advocacy firm Alliance Defending Freedom, told the court.

Justice Samuel Alito signaled he agreed, saying the Colorado law "looks like blatant viewpoint discrimination."

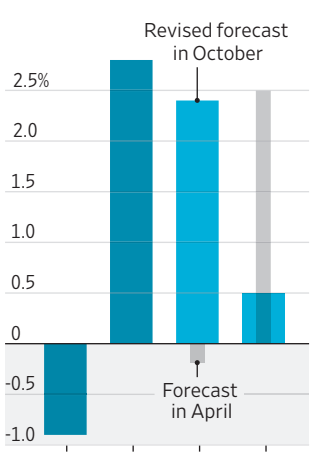

Justice Neil Gorsuch, another of the court's conservatives, raised concerns that a law like Colorado's might have prohibited therapists from affirming a gay patient's sexual orientation during the 1970s, when medical profes-

Please turn to page A4

Trade Gets An AI Boost

The WTO lifted its 2025 forecast for global trade, on a surge in purchases related to AI and a buildup in inventories. A2

World merchandise trade volume growth, change from a year earlier

Source: World Trade Organization

Iconic Office Towers Are on Life Support

Superman Building has been empty since 2013; 'It's dead down here now'

By PETER GRANT

PROVIDENCE, R.I.—The beloved 26-story office tower that defines this capital city's skyline has been empty since Bank of America pulled out in 2013. Its owner proposed converting it into apartments, but local officials balked, insisting it remain a commercial hub. It swiftly became a symbol of downtown blight.

This July, a solution finally seemed in reach. The 70-year-old developer who owned it, David Sweetser, had cobbled together a $308 million financing package for a conversion plan blessed by local officials. Then Sweetser died, once again clouding the future of the tower known locally as the Superman Building, for its resemblance to the fictional Daily Planet headquarters.

"This is the tallest building in the city," said Providence Mayor Brett Smiley. "It's on every postcard. And it's empty. That has a psychic effect."

The Superman Building's uncertain fate raises a larger question faced by many cities: What do you do when

Please turn to page A8

◆ Property Report..... B6