

Chicago Tribune

QUESTIONS? CALL 1-800-TRIBUNE

SATURDAY, JANUARY 10, 2026

BREAKING NEWS AT CHICAGOTRIBUNE.COM

DISTRICT COURT

Judge halts child care fund freeze

Temporary order comes as White House plans to withhold $10B from Illinois, other blue states

By Lisa Schencker
Chicago Tribune

A federal judge has temporarily halted the Trump administration's plans to withhold $10 billion in child care and family assistance funds from Illinois and four other states.

U.S. District Judge Arun Subramanian, who was appointed by President Joe Biden, issued a temporary restraining order Friday evening prohibiting the federal government from freezing the funds for now. The temporary restraining order is meant to "protect the status quo" while the court hears arguments and decides whether to issue a preliminary injunction to keep the freeze from taking effect while the case proceeds, according to the judge's order.

The temporary restraining order came after Illinois, California, Colorado, Minnesota and New York filed a lawsuit against the Trump administration in federal court in New York on Thursday alleging federal officials had no legal or constitutional authority to freeze the money. The states alleged in the lawsuit that the freeze was politically motivated, targeting states because of their leadership by Democrats.

"I'm pleased with the court's

Turn to Freeze, Page 2

Daphne Williams, director of the Smarty Pants Early Learning Center in Chicago's Bronzeville neighborhood, reads to children on Wednesday. The White House wants to freeze child care funding in Illinois, which state Attorney General Kwame Raoul says illegally and cruelly targets low-income families. TERRENCE ANTONIO JAMES/TRIBUNE

Jazmine Salas is escorted away from the microphone after her allotted time to speak was over at a Community Commission for Public Safety and Accountability listening session at Thalia Hall on Thursday in Chicago's Pilsen neighborhood. JOHN J. KIM/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Public seeks inquiry into CPD's actions amid blitz

Activists, officials tell oversight board to probe alleged cooperation with feds

By Caroline Kubzansky
Chicago Tribune

Chicago residents, activists and elected officials demanded that the city's civilian police oversight board launch a thorough probe into how the Chicago Police Department has interacted with or assisted federal immigration agents before, during and after Operation Midway Blitz at a heated Thursday night meeting.

Chicago police have been on the scenes of many of the highest-profile standoffs between residents and federal agents throughout the Trump administration's highly publicized 64-day immigration enforcement surge in the city and suburbs.

While prohibited from participating in or aiding that enforcement, the Police Department has often conducted crowd control or made arrests in the chaotic aftermath of federal raids. Police brass — who have both been accused of leaving federal agents out in the cold and of aiding their efforts at different points during the blitz — have said that they'll respond to any 911 call and ensure basic public safety when they are on-scene alongside federal agents.

Community Commission for Public Safety and Accountability President Remel Terry reminded the hundreds of people who filled

Pilsen's Thalia Hall of what the police is and isn't allowed to do at the top of the meeting Thursday night and encouraged people to report their concerns to the Civilian Office of Police Accountability and Chicago's Office of Inspector General. And most of the commissioners said they were looking forward to hearing from those at the meeting, which was intended

Turn to CPD, Page 4

Stymied by FBI, Minn. will review ICE killing

Local officials asking public to provide film of deadly shooting

By Rebecca Santana,
Tim Sullivan and
Giovanna Dell'Orto
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Hennepin County Attorney Mary Moriarty on Friday called on members of the public to send any video or other evidence in the fatal shooting of Renee Good to her office, challenging the Trump administration's decision to leave the investigation solely to the FBI.

Moriarty said that although her office has collaborated effectively with the FBI in past cases, she is concerned by the Trump administration's decision to bar state and local agencies from playing any role in the investigation into Wednesday's killing of Good by an Immigration and Customs Enforcement officer in Minneapolis.

She also said that despite the Trump administration's insistence that the officer who shot Good has complete legal immunity, that isn't the case.

"We do have jurisdiction to make this decision with what happened in this case," she said at a news conference. "It does not matter that it was a federal law enforcement agent."

Moriarty said her office would post a link for the public to submit footage of the shooting, even though she acknowledged that she wasn't sure what legal outcome submissions might produce.

Other Minnesota officials

Turn to Minnesota, Page 6

As Bears mull Indiana move, few parallels found in Kansas City

QB Williams ready for next big moment

The stage is larger, the lights are brighter and pressure is ratcheted up in the postseason as Bears quarterback Caleb Williams prepares for his first playoff game Saturday night against the Packers, but coach Ben Johnson says his young signal-caller was "built for these moments."

Chicago Sports, Page 1

READY TO STEP UP: Playoff heroes come in all shapes, and the Bears have likely candidates. Chicago Sports, Page 4

Packers at Bears
7 p.m. Saturday
Prime, Fox-32

Traffic in Lansing moves east into Indiana along I-94 on Dec. 17. DOMINIC DI PALERMO/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

By Rick Pearson
Chicago Tribune

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — As the Chicago Bears make their first NFL playoff appearance in five years while dangling the threat of moving to northwest Indiana, take a look westward to Kansas City where the Chiefs, failing to make the postseason for the first time in 11 years, have left their fans to ponder the team's move across the border to Kansas in what will be one of the nation's largest taxpayer-subsidized stadium deals in history.

"It's 20 minutes east to go to Arrowhead. It'll be 20 minutes west to go to the new stadium," said Stephen Fanning, a bartender for more than 40 years at the 80-year-old Quaff Sports Bar & Grill in downtown Kansas City, Missouri, representing minimized concerns over the move from the Chiefs' current stadium.

"This is a metropolitan area, so whether you're from Missouri or Kansas, both sides go back and forth and the whole area benefits," he said. "Nobody here says they're from Kansas City, Missouri, or Kansas City, Kansas. They say they're from Kansas City."

Unlike Chicago and northwest Indiana, which are not homogeneous regions, the Kansas City metroplex and its 2.4 million people are tightly intertwined across Missouri

Turn to Bears, Page 4

TODAY'S WEATHER

High 37 Low 22

Complete Chicagoland forecast on Page 8

$4.00 city and suburbs and elsewhere
178th year No. 10 © Chicago Tribune

