Israel Strikes Iran Nuclear Program

Attack ignites new conflict in the Middle East region; retaliation expected

AND ALEXANDER WARD

Israel launched a wide-ranging attack on Iran's nuclear program and military leadership early Friday, killing the head of the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps in a strike that threatens major disruptions to energy markets and economies around the world. Israel said the attack targeted Iran's nuclear program and other military sites, as well as Iranian military commanders and nuclear scientists. Dozens of planes wrapped up the first wave of the attack before dawn Friday, Israel said. Iranian state media said IRGC commander Hossein Salami was killed by an Israeli strike in Tehran, an attack at the top of the country's leadership. "We struck at the heart of Iran's nuclear enrichment program. We struck at the heart of Iran's nuclear weaponization program. We targeted Iran's main enrichment facility in Natanz. We targeted Iran's leading nuclear scientists working on the Iranian bomb. We also struck at the heart of Iran's ballistic missile program," Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said. News of the attack drove up oil prices, with benchmark Brent crude up about 12%. Iranian state TV reported explosions and showed smoke rising in the capital, Tehran. The strike came hours after U.S. and Israeli officials had warned one was imminent and cut short a U.S.-led effort to resolve the standoff over Iran's nuclear program diplomatically. Iran has warned it would the first fatal incident involving the aircraft known as the Dreamliner. "There is good news of one person surviving," said Home

Minister Amit Shah of India, after meeting the person in a hospital in Ahmedabad. The survivor was a British national seated in 11A. Shah said rescuers recovered most of the bodies from the crash site. The amount of fuel involved in the plane's explosion meant "there was no opportunity to save anyone," he said.

Within seconds of takeoff, it was clear that Air India Flight 171 was in trouble. The Boeing 787 Dreamliner strained to climb in the steamy midday heat. It barely cleared the rooftops of the residential neighborhood just beyond the of dollars due to plane groundings and production delays. Thursday's crash threatens the company's fragile recovery. The Boeing 787-8 jet crashed less than a minute after taking off. It isn't yet clear what caused the incident. Accidents can be caused by multiple and compounding factors, from flight crew errors and maintenance slip-ups to external forces or manufacturing and design faults. Boeing Chief Executive Kelly Ortberg said Thursday he spoke with Air India Chairman N. Chandrasekaran, adding the company stood ready to support the airline. "Our deepest condolences go out to the loved ones of the passengers and crew on board Air India Flight 171, as well as

ICE Raids Alarm Hispanic Consumers

Pullback by Latino shoppers dents sales for big brands istration's sweeping deportations of immigrants living in the country illegally have made many Latinos—including those with legal status—fearful of being stopped by immigration officers. Many consumers say they are retreating from public life, forgoing their regular shopping trips and restaurant meals. Beyond deportation fears, job losses in industries like construction have left Hispanics with less money to spend. And inflation has squeezed their monthly budgets.
