

Chicago Tribune

$4.00 | TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 2026 | CHICAGOTRIBUNE.COM

News sites sue White House over ban

CNN, MS NOW, Politico cite abuse of 1st Amendment

By Jocelyn Noveck
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — CNN, MS NOW and Politico on Monday sued President Donald Trump’s administration days after they were barred from White House grounds, calling the selective ban — based on the content of their coverage — illegal and a “blatant violation” of the First Amendment.

Trump said in a post that he “cherished” a free press but not “FAKE NEWS.”

“White House access is a privilege — not a right,” the administration posted on X.

The extraordinary ban of the three news outlets’ reporters, which began over the weekend, represented a clear escalation of Trump’s long-running efforts — in the courts and through administrative action — to restrict coverage he finds objectionable or, in his words, “fake news.”

They were also the latest test of First Amendment protections in the U.S., where the government is constitutionally forbidden from restricting the press.

The Constitution, the banned outlets said in the suit, “does not allow a president or any other government official to deprive the press of their First Amendment rights and liberty and property interests with no notice or process based solely on his dislike of the content of their reporting”

The three outlets filed the joint lawsuit two days after their reporters were blocked from the White House. The reporters’ entry badges were disabled on Saturday, a day after Trump had suddenly announced he was barring the outlets because of reporting he found to be “fake news.”

On Monday morning, the banned TV networks were reporting from an intersection just outside the White House complex.

CNN was removed from its pool duties, shared by the five major networks. It had been scheduled to cover the president’s trip to New York for the U.N. General Assembly.

In an email to members, the TV pool wrote there would be no replacement coverage following the White House actions.

“Effective today, the TV pool will not be covering events designated as pool coverage of the President,” said the email, seen by The Associated Press. “This follows the White

See NEWS on Page A4

Family of slain judge recalls loss at hearing

Convicted killer set to be sentenced for 2017 fatal shooting

By Sam Charles
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Nearly 10 years have passed since Cook County Judge Raymond Myles was gunned down in a botched robbery attempt outside his home on the South Side.

A West Side native and the oldest of 10 children, Myles was his family’s patriarch and a pillar of the Cook County judiciary.

During a hearing Monday ahead of his convicted killer’s sentencing, Myles’ closest relatives remembered him as a loving, attentive father and a diligent jurist “with a servant’s heart” who sought to help whoever he could.

The judge’s son, Raymond Myles Jr., recalled when he received the news of his father’s death while he was deployed with the U.S. Army in Afghanistan.

The younger Myles rattled off several adjectives and accomplishments of his father’s, but “I knew him as ‘Dad.’”

“He passed down to me the wisdom, principles and values that his father had given to him,” Raymond Myles Jr. said. “I would give anything to have one more conversation with my father. I would give anything to hug him one more time and tell him how much I love him.”

Almost a decade since Myles’ passing, many relatives are still left to ask, “Why?”

“No one should be made to feel the kind of sorrow that my family has been made to feel,” Vernell Tibbs, Myles’ sister, said during the victim impact statement portion of the hearing. “I could empty the ocean with a thimble before I can understand why.”

“If I had a million tongues, I could not explain how important Judge Myles was to our family,” she added.

Myles Jr. and Tibbs were among about 30 relatives and friends

See JUDGE on Page A2

Trash bins sit in a muddy field on Monday after this weekend’s rainy weather at Riot Fest in Chicago’s Douglass Park. STACEY WESCOTT/TRIBUNE

MUDDY MAYHEM

Soaked Riot Fest forces restoration plans for swampy Douglass Park

By Robert McCoppin and Finnegan Belleau
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

All the punk rage in the world couldn’t stop a deluge of rain that turned Riot Fest into a mud-pocalypse over the weekend — but organizers say they are already working to repair the damage done to Douglass Park.

The three-day music fest, known for its eclectic mix of punk, metal, rap and, this year, mariachi, was drenched with the most rain to fall on Chicago in a two-day period in September since 2019, weather officials said Monday.

Douglass Park turned into a quagmire, as the grounds were slimed with a gooey layer of mud.

Fifty thousand fans a day made the best of it, with some going barefoot and diving through the muck, while others complained about the slippery and swampy conditions. Attendees had to help wheel-chair users whose wheels could no longer roll.

The 2 inches of rain forced organizers to cut short the festivities Saturday and Sunday. Riot Fest founder Mike Petryshyn pledged to restore the park to its previous state, which is required by contract.

“Our responsibility does not end when the festival does,” Petryshyn said in a news release. “We are committed to restoring the

Fans walk through muddy Douglass Park on the final day of Riot Fest in Chicago on Sunday. ARMANDO L. SANCHEZ/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

See MUD on Page A5

Pritzker discusses weight loss, diabetes

Gov. JB Pritzker disclosed that he was diagnosed with type 2 diabetes two years ago and has since lost 80 pounds using a GLP-1 drug. The Democrat described his weight-loss journey in an essay on Unstack and in select media interviews. Chicagoland, Page 3

City’s hotel workers authorize strike

Workers at dozens of Chicago hotels could go on strike at any time, according to their union, Unite Here Local 1. Contracts at 46 hotels covering about 7,000 workers expired as of Aug. 31, the union has said. Business

Johnson not ruling out Week 3 for Williams

Bears QB ‘will likely miss some time,’ but worst fears averted

By Sean Hammond
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Chicago Bears quarterback Caleb Williams may have avoided the worst-case scenarios after injuring his right hamstring Sunday, though coach Ben Johnson said Monday that Williams might miss “some time.”

Johnson declared Williams

“week to week” but did not rule out the possibility that Williams could play in Week 3 against the Philadelphia Eagles on “Monday Night Football” at Soldier Field.

At the same time, Johnson said he does not expect Williams to participate in practice this week in preparation for the Eagles game.

“He’s, right now, working through every avenue that he’s got available to get back on track here,” Johnson said. “We’ll see what that looks like.

See BEARS on Page A5

Bears quarterback Caleb Williams is attended to by the team’s medical staff after suffering an injury in the fourth quarter against the Vikings at Soldier Field on Sunday. CHRIS SWEDA/TRIBUNE

SUBSCRIPTION

Visit myaccount.chicagotribune.com or call 312-546-7900 to sign up for a subscription. To place an ad, visit placeanad.chicagotribune.com.

WEATHER FORECAST

TODAY H: 64 L: 58
WED. H: 65 L: 57
THU. H: 68 L: 55
FULL WEATHER REPORT, PAGE A14

INDEX

Almanac A9
Arts & Living B7
Business B1
Comics B10-11
Crossword B11
Editorials A6
Horoscope B10
Nation & World B4
Television B9

179th year No. 265
© Chicago Tribune

