

ADVERTISEMENT

IS YOUR FINANCIAL ADVISOR
A CFP PROFESSIONAL?

How YouTube Took Over
The American Classroom

REVIEW

WSJ

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL WEEKEND

A $1,000 Trip
To Venice
OFF DUTY

DOW JONES

News Corp

*****

SATURDAY/SUNDAY, MAY 2 - 3, 2026 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVII NO. 102

WSJ.com

★★★★ $6.00

What's
News

Business & Finance

◆ Spirit Airlines is preparing to cease operations after failing to strike a deal for a financial lifeline with the federal government amid a surge in jet-fuel costs following Trump's attack on Iran. A1

◆ The average price for a gallon of regular gasoline was $4.39 on Friday, a jump of 33 cents from week ago. A3

◆ The S&P 500 and Nasdaq set records and Brent crude oil futures fell 2% to $108.17 a barrel amid hopes for an end to the Iran war. For the week, the Dow, S&P and Nasdaq rose 0.5%, 0.9% and 1.1%, respectively. B10

◆ GameStop is preparing to make an offer for eBay, according to people familiar with the matter. B10

◆ Elon Musk's compensation package at Tesla came in at $158.4 billion for 2025. B9

◆ Occidental CEO Vicki Holub, the first woman to lead a major U.S. oil company, is retiring next month. B9

A MORE SECURE
TOMORROW
STARTS BY MAKING A FINANCIAL PLAN TODAY.

Worldwide

◆ Trump has ordered the withdrawal of 5,000 U.S. troops from Germany, escalating his clash with Berlin and NATO allies over their reluctance to support the war in Iran, officials said. A8

◆ Iran has handed Washington a new proposal for ending the war. A8

◆ Trump told Congress that hostilities against Iran ended in April, allowing him to bypass a deadline for lawmakers to approve the war. A8

◆ Hezbollah's military wing isn't going anywhere and has no immediate plans to disarm, the Lebanese militant group's spokesman said. A10

◆ A U.S. appeals court has blocked doctors from mailing a popular abortion drug to pregnant women. A4

◆ The U.S. will raise tariffs on automobiles from the EU to 25% from 15%, Trump said, as he accused the bloc of not complying with a trade deal. A2

PEGGY NOONAN

How not to respond to political violence. A15

JOURNAL REPORT

Formula One: An uproar over electric cars. R1-8

|                          |                       |
|--------------------------|-----------------------|
| CONTENTS                 | Obituaries..... C6    |
| Books..... C7-12         | Opinion..... A13-15   |
| Business & Finance... B9 | Sports..... A16       |
| Design & Decor. D6-7     | Style & Fashion D2-4  |
| Gear & Gadgets. D10      | Travel..... D8        |
| Hard on Street... B11    | U.S. News..... A2-4,6 |
| Markets..... B10         | World News A8,10-11   |

© 2026 Dow Jones & Company, Inc.
All Rights Reserved

Twin Spires and Traditions Herald Derby Day

MICHAEL REEVES/GETTY IMAGES

HORSE POWER: Six Speed works out on the track Friday ahead of Saturday's 152nd Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs in Louisville. The annual Run for the Roses brings excited crowds, mint juleps, big hats—and dreams of a Triple Crown winner. A16

Americans Become Easy Targets
In Nationwide Surveillance Dragnet

BY SHANE SHIFFLETT
AND HANNAH CRITCHFIELD

Liz McLellan spent a morning in January witnessing the work of federal agents who had arrived in Maine to pursue the Trump administration's immigration crackdown. Like other community activists, protesters and passersby around the U.S., McLellan took photos, including of an arrest. Then she followed a federal officer driving an unmarked vehicle to see where the agent was headed next.

McLellan was surprised when the agent led her to her own house and blocked her driveway. Other federal officers quickly arrived, boxing in her car with their vehicles.

"This is a warning," an agent told her, according to court records and a video recording. "We know you live right here."

In the battle against illegal immigration, the U.S. is spending hundreds of millions of dollars on tools that give federal agents easy access to the home and workplace addresses of American citizens, their social-media accounts, vehicle information, law-enforcement records and other personal information, as well

Please turn to page A12

EXCHANGE

THE KEY TO OPENAI
The company wants an IPO. First it needs to impress one woman. B1

This Website
Is Frozen
By Design

* * *

Berkshire is stuck
in the past online
and its fans love it

BY KRystal HUR

Some things never change at Berkshire Hathaway, even when they probably should. Berkshirehathaway.com, the company's "Official Home Page," as the top of the site helpfully notes, looks like its design has barely been updated since the days of Netscape and AOL. There's a reason for that: It hasn't.

Warren Buffett may have retired in December, ending his six-decade reign. Please turn to page A12

Democrats Court Wall Street Donors

BY BRIAN SCHWARTZ
AND JOHN MCCORMICK

The 2028 Democratic presidential primary race won't begin in earnest until after November's midterm elections. But speed dating is well under way among prospective candidates and major donors on Wall Street and elsewhere.

Sen. Mark Kelly (D., Ariz.), former Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel, Kentucky Gov. Andy

Beshear and Pennsylvania Gov. Josh Shapiro are among those who have already met with wealthy investors and financiers in recent months.

The flirtations are risky. Wall Street and wealth are viewed with great suspicion among many of the progressives likely to play a significant role in picking the party's nominee, and taxing the rich and bashing capitalism have become a rallying cry for many of them. Wall Street has nonetheless long been a significant source of money for the party, and that will continue to be the case in this year's midterm election and in 2028.

With no clear standard-bearer, many Democrats anticipate a crowded primary field that could grow as large as, if not larger, than the 2019-20 lineup of more than two dozen candidates. And potential

Please turn to page A4

Incoming Air Force One
To Retain Qatari Frills

BY MARCUS WEISGERBER

When the Qatari royal family acquired a luxury jet for its private fleet more than a decade ago, the Boeing 747 was outfitted with the lavish furnishings and ornate adornments that would befit one of the world's wealthiest families.

Now, as the jumbo jet is expected to become Air Force One this summer, officials said the plane's lavish interior will look remarkably similar.

The jet has undergone a $400 million overhaul to prepare it for the president. Those modifications, however, haven't centered on aesthetics, but rather top-secret communications gear that would enable the commander in chief to run the country from the skies.

Alterations to the interior have focused on removing the Arabic-language exit signs and the contemporary artwork once enjoyed by the Qatari royals. But the oversize leather seats, plush couches and even the faux library bookcases are all staying, albeit with U.S. presidential seals now affixed to the walls, officials said.

The description is the first public accounting by the Air Force on its efforts to overhaul the Boeing 747 as the president's new ride.

"By and large, the airplane that we're getting is in the same condition from an interior perspective," Gen. Dale White, the four-star Air Force officer tasked with the high-profile project last year, said in an interview.

The luxury jet was gifted to the U.S. by the Qatari government last year after President Trump complained that the planes he was required to fly on as president were too old and small.

Please turn to page A6

Spirit Set
To Close
As War
Strains
Airlines

A U.S. bailout falters as discount carrier bleeds cash and its bondholders balk

Spirit Airlines was preparing to cease operations after failing to strike a deal for a financial lifeline with the federal government, becoming the first U.S. airline casualty after President Trump's attack on Iran sparked a surge in jet-fuel costs.

By Alexander
Gladstone,
Brian Schwartz
and Alison Sider

Across the industry, airlines have been scrambling to deal with rising fuel costs that are threatening to add billions of dollars in unexpected extra expenses this year, and forcing carriers to raise fares and trim routes to hold the line on their billowing costs.

Budget carriers like Spirit have been especially squeezed, but even heavyweights like Delta Air Lines and United Airlines Holdings are trying to cope with a newly challenging business environment, while flyers face sticker shock over the prices for tickets and higher bag and other fees.

Analysts, meanwhile, have peppered industry executives with questions about potential mergers, wondering if, or when, weaker carriers might get swallowed up.

One of those weaker carriers appeared to be succumbing. Spirit, which helped pioneer the ultradiscount airline model in the U.S., had been hoping to finalize a $500 million lifeline from the government before running out of cash. But the discount carrier hasn't been able to get sufficient support. Please turn to page A2

◆ Gas price rise is one of history's sharpest..... A3
◆ Oil giants stay the course despite uncertainty..... B9

IT'S GOTTA BE A

CERTIFIED
FINANCIAL PLANNER®

FIND YOUR CFP® PROFESSIONAL AT LETSMAKEAPLAN.ORG

