

REVIEW

The Ideological Gurus
Of Trump World

WSJ

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL WEEKEND

Super
Over-60
Style

OFF DUTY

What's
News

Business & Finance

◆ China said exports to the U.S. plunged in April, as the Trump administration's tariff assault forced the world's second-largest economy to redirect more of its goods to other regions. A1, A2

◆ Panasonic plans to cut about 10,000 jobs globally as it streamlines operations at its headquarters and business units including consumer electronics. B9

◆ U.S. stocks finished the week virtually unchanged with the Dow, S&P 500 and Nasdaq down 0.3%, 0.5% and 0.3%, a rare respite from the turbulence that has roiled markets since Trump unveiled tariffs in early April. B11

◆ Elliott Investment is in talks to buy a stake in infrastructure assets, including a pipeline that carries Russian natural gas to Europe. B9

◆ British Airways owner International Consolidated Airlines said it ordered 53 planes from Boeing and Airbus. B9

◆ Italy's price comparison site operator Moltiply is suing Google for $3.33 billion in damages over what it called anti-competitive behavior. B9

◆ AMC Networks recorded a smaller profit in the first quarter on a lower base of revenue as steady declines in the linear-TV model continue to overwhelm gains in streaming. B9

World- Wide

◆ Pope Leo XIV celebrated his first Mass as pontiff, stressing the importance of missionary work in a world where many live "in a state of de facto atheism." A1, A6

◆ The first public version of the Republicans' tax bill aims to put more money in Americans' pockets quickly in early 2026, extending Trump's tax cuts and adding some new twists that would boost many tax refunds next year. A5

◆ A federal judge in Vermont ordered the government to release a Turkish Tufts University grad student while her case proceeds. A3

◆ Columbia University suspended 65 students involved in a pro-Palestinian protest that took over part of the school's main library. A3

◆ Putin hosted the largest gathering of foreign leaders since the start of Russia's invasion of Ukraine. A8

◆ A new technology outage took out radar and communications for Newark Liberty International Airport's controllers briefly. A4

◆ Taiwan has embarked on an urgent overhaul of its defenses to prepare for what it sees as the possibility of a Chinese invasion by 2027. A7

◆ Died: David Souter, a Republican appointee to the Supreme Court who preserved abortion rights, 85. A3

CONTENTS

Obituaries.....	C6
Books.....	C7-12
Opinion.....	A11-13
Business News.....	B10
Sports.....	A10
Food.....	D9-10
Style & Fashion.....	D2-3
Gear & Gadgets.....	D7
Travel.....	D8
Heard on Street.....	B12
U.S. News.....	A2-5
Markets & Business.....	B11
World News.....	A6-9

World War II Sacrifices Honored, 80 Years Later

REMEMBRANCE: Ukrainians lay flowers Friday at the Unknown Soldier monument in Kyiv during V-E Day commemorations. In Moscow, Russian President Vladimir Putin hosted foreign leaders at a military parade celebrating the Nazis' 1945 defeat. A8

Trump Vowed to End Two Wars, But He Is Increasingly Frustrated

By JOSH DAWSEY
AND ALEXANDER WARD

When President Trump spoke to a room of top donors at his Florida club last week, he described ending Russia's war in Ukraine as a growing frustration that keeps him up at night, people in the room said.

President Vladimir Putin of Russia was particularly tough to negotiate with, and wanted "the whole thing," Trump said, referring to Ukraine, according to an attendee. His comments came in response to a donor's question about his biggest foreign-policy concerns.

The war in Gaza was also challenging, Trump told the crowd. Finding any solution was hard because "they'd been fighting for a thousand years," he said.

When Trump campaigned to return to power, he vowed to end both of those wars diplomatically and argued that neither conflict would have begun if he had been in the White House at the time. He could even end the war in Ukraine on "on Day 1," he said.

Instead, as he passed the 100-day mark of his term with neither conflict closer to a resolution, negotiations to end Iran's nuclear program stalled, and a trade war straining relationships with allies, Trump is finding that solving the world's problems more difficult than he had thought.

"Bluster and theatrics have their role in diplomatic high

Please turn to page A4

Hunger, Sickness, Crime Stalk Gaza

When Israel blockaded the Gaza Strip in early March, banning entry of all aid and other goods, Fady Abed, a dentist who works for a medical non-profit there, thought it would last a few weeks at most.

Months later, he can't believe how much things have fallen apart. In Gaza City, where he lives, community kitchens are closing because they have nothing to cook. Each day, clinics run by his organization, MedGlobal, are visited by more children he described as "skin and bones."

By Feliz Solomon, Abeer Ayyoub and Suha Ma'ayeh

At night, hungry men and opportunistic gangsters roam the streets looking for places to loot. In the absence of authorities, armed vigilantes chase down and beat up suspected thieves. He worries about break-ins, because he has a bag of flour in his home.

"Things can't continue like this," Abed said. "We just won't survive."

Since Israel imposed the blockade—now the longest of the war set off by Hamas's deadly Oct. 7, 2023, attacks on southern Israel—the territory is descending into chaos amid a perfect storm of hunger, collapsed governance and intensifying conflict since a ceasefire fell apart in March.

"I've been doing this kind of work for two decades and I've never seen anything like

Please turn to page A7

RFK Jr. Is Boosting His Allies' Companies

By KRISTINA PETERSON
AND CORRIE DRIEBUSCH

WASHINGTON—Before taking office, Robert F. Kennedy Jr. vowed to avoid conflicts of interest in U.S. health policy-making and said food companies and drugmakers exerted too much influence.

Now that he is President Trump's secretary of health and human services, some companies run by Kennedy's allies in the Make America Healthy Again movement are getting a boost from the government.

Kennedy has surrounded himself with MAHA activists and entrepreneurs touting alternative health approaches that stand to benefit from his rhetoric, changes in policy, and being publicly linked with the top public-health official.

When Kennedy said at the Department of Health and Human Services headquarters

Please turn to page A4

Former Justice Souter Dies

David Souter, an appointee of Republican President George H.W. Bush who nevertheless became a member of the Supreme Court's liberal bloc, has died at the age of 85. Souter joined the court in 1990 and remained until 2009, when he retired to New Hampshire. A3

The Question of Leo's Devotion: Cubs Fan or White Sox Believer?

Both franchises quickly pounced on signs that the next leader was one of them

By JARED DIAMOND

From the moment the Roman Catholic Church revealed Thursday that its next leader hailed from Chicago, one question quickly dominated the world of sports: Which of the city's two Major League Baseball teams does Pope Leo XIV root for?

In the immediate aftermath of Robert Prevost's election, the widespread assumption was that he preferred the Cubs—especially after an ABC News journalist indicated as

Please turn to page A6

How a U.S. Cardinal Beat the Odds To Become the Pope

VATICAN CITY—Cardinal Robert Prevost, seated beneath Michelangelo's "Last Judgment," buried his head in his hands as the prelates running the conclave read out ballots bearing his name, and the sound echoed off the walls of the Sistine Chapel.

By Drew Hinshaw, Stacy Meichtry, Margherita Stancati and Ian Lovett

It was Thursday morning, and the papal election was shifting in favor of the Chicago-born cardinal. His support was rising as the rounds of voting progressed, while votes for the early front-runner—Italian Cardinal Pietro Parolin—were stagnating.

The realization that he was on track to become the 267th pope of the Catholic Church with 1.4 billion faithful worldwide appeared to weigh heavily on him, said two cardinals who watched his reaction.

China's Exports To U.S. Fall Ahead Of Talks

Data show impact of tariffs as officials from both countries meet this weekend

By LINGLING WEI
AND HANNAH MIAO

China said exports to the U.S. plunged in April, while President Trump signaled on Friday he would be open to cutting tariffs on the world's second-largest economy ahead of talks this weekend aimed at de-escalating tensions that have redrawn the global trade map.

Since starting his second term, Trump has slapped 145% tariffs on Chinese goods while Beijing has hit back with 125% duties on U.S. products. In a Truth Social post Friday morning, Trump indicated that he is willing to cut the levies to 80%—a level that would represent de-escalation but still prohibit normal bilateral trade.

"80% Tariff on China seems right! Up to Scott B.," Trump wrote, referring to Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent.

While the White House later said the figure was just a number Trump "threw out there" without explaining how he arrived at the figure, even

Please turn to page A2

- ◆ Customs brokers star in the trade wars..... A2
- ◆ China targets smuggling of critical minerals..... A2

EXCHANGE

SHELL SHOCK
The company whose profits are soaring because of the egg shortage. B1

◆ Pope warns against 'de facto atheism'..... A6