

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

DOW JONES | News Corp  WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18, 2026 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVII NO. 63 WSJ.com ★★★★★ $5.00

DJIA 46993.26 ▲ 46.85 0.10% NASDAQ 22479.53 ▲ 0.5% STOXX 600 602.45 ▲ 0.7% 10-YR. TREAS. ▲ 5/32, yield 4.201% OIL $96.21 ▲ $2.71 GOLD $5,001.00 ▲ $7.00 EURO $1.1542 YEN 159.00

What's News

Business & Finance

- ◆ OpenAI executives are completing plans to refocus the company on coding and business users, recognizing that a “do everything all at once” strategy has put them on the defensive. A1
- ◆ Microsoft unified the teams working on different versions of its Copilot artificial-intelligence product, aiming to deliver a more-coherent client experience. B1
- ◆ The broad-based S&P 500 index rose 0.2%, with energy the best performing sector, while the Nasdaq and Dow industrials gained 0.5% and 0.1%, respectively. B6
- ◆ A federal court in Texas struck down a law governing asset transfers between 401(k) accounts and IRAs that required financial advisers to act in the best interest of their clients. A2
- ◆ Amazon.com is introducing one- and three-hour delivery services in the U.S. as it moves to repel a growing threat from Walmart and respond to intensifying shipping competition. B1
- ◆ Airlines offered an early look at how they plan to outpace the rising cost of jet fuel as uncertainty lingers over the Middle East conflict. B1
- ◆ Nvidia has restarted manufacturing of its H200 processors for sale in China, CEO Jensen Huang said, signaling a possible shift in the chip giant's fortunes. B3
- ◆ The World Bank confessed to an error of more than three decades duration, moving to embrace industrial policy as interventions become increasingly popular with governments in search of growth. A9

Worldwide

- ◆ Israel's killing of Iranian security chief Ali Larjani removed a veteran leader in Tehran, shaking a regime that had appeared to be weathering airstrikes with its grip on the country intact. A1, A6-7
- ◆ Russia has been expanding its intelligence sharing and military cooperation with Iran, providing satellite imagery and improved drone technology to aid Tehran's targeting of U.S. forces in the region. A1
- ◆ The top U.S. counterterrorism official said he resigned over his concerns with the war in Iran, marking the first significant departure from the Trump administration because of the conflict. A5
- ◆ The MTA sued the Trump administration for withholding about $58.6 million earmarked for an expansion of New York City's subway system. A4
- ◆ The Trump administration, which has been skeptical of vaccines that prevent infections, is going all in on a new initiative to deploy novel vaccines against cancer. A3
- ◆ Afghan officials placed the death toll at 400 after rockets the government said were fired by Pakistan hit a drug-rehab clinic. A8
- ◆ Lt. Gov. Juliana Stratton won Illinois's Democratic primary in the race to succeed retiring Sen. Dick Durbin, in a boost for Gov. JB Pritzker. A4
- ◆ Cuba's communist government struggled to restore electricity across the island after its obsolete power grid collapsed on Monday. A8
- ◆ Venezuela won the World Baseball Classic, defeating the U.S., 3-2, in the final.

CONTENTS		Opinion.....	A13-15
Arts in Review.....	A12	Personal Journal A10-11
Business & Finance B2-3		Property Report....	B6
Crossword.....	A11	Sports.....	A16
From Page One.....	A9	Technology.....	B4
Heard on Street.....	B11	U.S. News.....	A2-4
Markets Digest.....	B7	World News.....	A5-9

© 2026 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved

The Pipes, the Pipes Are Calling

GAEL FORCE: The New York Police Department Emerald Society skirls down Fifth Avenue Tuesday in the St. Patrick's Day Parade.

OpenAI to Pare Side Projects To Focus on Its Core Business

AI pioneer plans to emphasize coding, enterprise work amid pressure from rivals

By BERBER JIN

OpenAI's top executives are finalizing plans for a major strategy shift to refocus the company around coding and business users, recognizing that a “do everything all at once” strategy has put them on the defensive.

Fidji Simo, OpenAI's CEO of applications, previewed the changes to employees in an all-hands meeting, telling them that top leaders including CEO Sam Altman and chief research officer Mark Chen were actively looking at which areas to deprioritize. They expect to notify staff about the changes in the coming weeks.

“We cannot miss this moment because we are distracted by side quests,” Simo told staff last week, according to remarks reviewed by The Wall Street Journal. “We really have to nail productivity in general and particularly productivity on the business front.”

Last year, OpenAI announced an array of new products including the video-generator Sora, a web browser called Atlas, a new hardware device, and e-commerce features for ChatGPT.

Altman has previously likened this approach to “betting on a series of startups” inside OpenAI, and the strategy helped burnish the company's reputation as the pioneer of the AI era. News Corp, owner of The Wall Street Journal, has a content-licensing partnership with OpenAI.

OpenAI is under growing pressure from rival Anthropic, which has become the dominant AI provider for businesses because of the viral success of its Claude Code and Cowork offerings. These products, which include so-called agents that can autonomously carry out complex tasks for users, have become all the rage in Silicon Valley, and even sparked a global stock-market selloff last month.

Anthropic has placed fewer product bets than OpenAI, focusing its efforts on the enterprise and coding market. The company has so far avoided image and video generation products, for example.

OpenAI and Anthropic have

◆ Microsoft retools strategy on AI products..... B1

The ‘Wild West’ Of Ketamine

The psychedelic-like drug drives a booming, largely unregulated industry

By SHALINI RAMACHANDRAN AND BETSY MCKAY

Tricia Anne Dewey struggled for many years with domestic violence and a subsequent painkiller addiction.

As she emerged from that harrowing period by age 41, the Pound Ridge, N.Y., paralegal thought she'd found a way to repair some of the damage—a drug that internet ads and marketing on social media said would rewire her brain.

The drug was ketamine, a psychedelic-like anesthetic at the center of a booming, largely unregulated industry that promises to offer relief from conditions including depression, anxiety and insomnia. Dewey turned to Better U, one of several telehealth companies and online clinics that have emerged in recent years that offer ketamine to customers based on a remote consultation with a clinician.

“Reclaim your happiness with online ketamine therapy,” the ad read.

Please turn to page A9

Finance Bros to Tech Bros: Lay Off My Bloomberg Terminal

* * *

Wall Street pros worship the tool. So when AI evangelists declared it ‘cooked,’ it was war.

By ISABELLE BOUSQUETTE

A battle of insults and threats has broken out between the tech world and Wall Street.

What's got everyone so worked up? The same thing that starts most fights: business software.

A series of social-media posts went viral in recent days with claims that AI has created a worthy—and way cheaper—alternative to the Bloomberg terminal, a computer system that is like oxygen to professional investors.

Now “Bloomberg is cooked,” some posters argued as they heralded the arrival of a newly released AI tool from startup Perplexity.

Most people would be thrilled by the prospect of a tool that promises to do for $2,400 a year what they currently pay $30,000 a year to get. Not Wall Street.

Traders and investment research teams have a sacred bond with the Bloomberg terminal, which they use to track and analyze real-time and historical pricing for a variety of asset classes, execute and record trades, and chat with customers and peers through one of its most popular fea-

Please turn to page A11

Retail Space Gets a Workout

Retail leasing by service-oriented tenants—such as spas and gyms—outpaced goods-based retail leasing for the first time in 2025, accounting for just over 50% of total square footage. B1

U.S. retail leasing, by tenant type

Private Bankers Now Do Shopping, Travel, Repairs

By GUNJAN BANERJI AND JULIET CHUNG

Need a last-minute private jet from Paris to New York? Or someone to manage your Hamptons property? Your money manager says she will have someone take care of it.

Bankers and money managers are increasingly positioning themselves as one-stop shops for the richest families around the globe. With the great wealth transfer projected to top $100 trillion in the coming years, firms are adding bells and whistles in a bid to keep assets when their clients turn over the reins to their children, and to woo the next generation of clients.

These services are often packaged with other family-office services, with firms handling everything from paying clients' bills to helping with estate planning and prenuptial agreements. Money managers tap in-house resources, or outsource to other vendors. And fees vary from one-time charges to hourly rates, said Chayce Horton, associate director of wealth management at research firm Cerulli Associates. Some lump them in with fees they charge for asset management.

“It could be dog walking, or chopping down a tree for them,” Horton said. “You don't really say no to these sorts of families.”

The number of firms offering concierge services has swelled. Almost half of wealth managers working with high-

Please turn to page A4

Israeli Strikes Kill Top Iranian Leaders

Attacks on security chief and the militia head complicate how Tehran runs war

By ANAT PELED AND BENOIT FAUCON

Israel's killing of Iranian security chief Ali Larjani removes a veteran leader in Tehran, shaking a regime that had appeared to be weathering thousands of airstrikes with its grip on the country and war-fighting capability intact.

It was accompanied by a successful Israeli attack on the head of the country's repressive Basij militia the same day, a double blow analysts said could further complicate the regime's ability to run the war effort and maintain control, even though it isn't likely to bring it down. Israel's military said on Tuesday it hit more than 10 posts belonging to the militia over the past day.

Larjani's death, announced by Israel early Tuesday, was the biggest hit to the country's leadership since Supreme Leader Ali Khamenei was killed by Israel in the opening salvo of the war. The 67-year-old veteran leader was a central figure in Iran's aggressive, region-wide response to the U.S. and Israeli airstrikes, and oversaw the violent crackdown of anti-government protests in January that left thousands dead.

His killing could hurt the

Please turn to page A6

Kremlin Is Aiding Tehran In Fight With U.S.

Russia has been expanding its intelligence sharing and military cooperation with Iran, providing satellite imagery and improved drone technology to aid Tehran's targeting of U.S. forces in the region, people familiar with the matter said.

By Thomas Grove, Milan Czerny and Benoit Faucon

Russia is trying to keep its closest Middle Eastern partner in the fight against U.S. and Israeli military might and prolong a war that is benefiting Russia militarily and economically.

The technology provided includes components of modified Shahed drones, which are meant to improve communication, navigation and targeting, the people said. Russia has also been drawing on its experience using drones in Ukraine, offering tactical guidance on how many drones should be used in operations and what altitudes they should strike from, said the people, who included a senior European intelligence officer.

Russia has been providing Iran with the locations of U.S. military forces in the Middle East as well as those of its regional allies, The Wall Street Journal has reported. That cooperation has deepened in early days of the war, with Russia recently providing satellite imagery directly to Iran, said two of the people.

Please turn to page A5

War's Impact

- ◆ Counterterrorism official quits over war..... A5
- ◆ Dubai's safe image tarnished..... A7
- ◆ Heard on the Street: No rally in defense stocks... B11