

Chicago Tribune

QUESTIONS? CALL 1-800-TRIBUNE

WEDNESDAY, JULY 9, 2025

BREAKING NEWS AT CHICAGOTRIBUNE.COM

State fines, reprimands abortion provider

Champaign doctor accused of leaving half a fetus inside patient

By Angie Leventis Lourgos
Chicago Tribune

A Champaign abortion provider accused in a lawsuit of performing a patient's uterus and leaving half a fetus inside her body has been reprimanded and fined in connection with that case by the Illinois Department of Financial and Professional Regulation, according to records obtained by the Tribune.

Dr. Keith Reisinger-Kindle of Equity Clinic must pay a $5,000 fine and complete 20 hours of continuing medical education for "failing to evaluate a patient before a procedure which resulted in hospitalization due to complications," according to the May 16 disciplinary action by the state regulatory agency.

Reisinger-Kindle did not immediately return Tribune requests for comment on the reprimand and fine by the state. He also has not responded to previous requests for comment on the lawsuit, which is still pending. An attorney representing the physician declined to comment.

In March, an Indiana abortion patient identified as Jane Doe filed a medical negligence lawsuit against Reisinger-Kindle in Champaign County Circuit Court.

At roughly 22 weeks pregnant, the patient had a two-day procedure at the clinic that ended April 2, 2023, according to the lawsuit. In Reisinger-Kindle's notes, he stated the "products of conception were visually inspected and confirmed to be complete" after the abortion and the patient was discharged, according to the lawsuit.

The following day, the patient called the clinic to report heavy cramping and was instructed to take an over-the-counter pain reliever, the suit alleges. A few hours later, she called back after taking ibuprofen with limited relief and complained of pressure, which made it hard to breathe, the complaint said.

That message was given to Reisinger-Kindle and the

Turn to Doctor, Page 2

People walk near an ambulance while officers work the scene of a mass shooting near the 300 block of West Chicago Avenue in the River North neighborhood on July 2. ARMANDO L. SANCHEZ/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Gang feud resurfaces in River North shooting

'There's a motive there': Police, city officials say individuals targeted in drive-by

By Sam Charles
and Caroline Kubzansky
Chicago Tribune

It was a jarring act of violence that again put Chicago in an unwanted spotlight and left River North on edge.

A drive-by shooting into a crowd of people waiting outside a lounge on Chicago Avenue left four dead and 14 others injured, making it one of the worst such attacks in the city's recent memory.

Chicago police and City Hall officials were quick to note that the shooting was targeted and the victims didn't live in the neighborhood. And just hours after the gunfire, Chicago Police Department Superintendent Larry Snelling told reporters the shooting was not a random incident.

"Obviously, there's a motive there," Snelling said.

No arrests have been made in the shooting, according to CPD.

The party that was attacked was organized to celebrate an album release by Chicago drill rapper Mello Buckzz, a rising artist who on social media claims an affiliation with "NLMB," a gang faction based in the South Shore and Greater Grand Crossing neighborhoods that, sources say, is linked to a host of deadly shootings in recent years.

NLMB has feuded openly with opposing South Side gangs, sources have said, where each has used their music and social media to taunt each other before sometimes exchanging hits on opposition members.

Among the most high-profile NLMB associates is Chicago drill rapper G Herbo, who collaborated with Mello Buckzz in a song released in 2024.

On her social media channels, the rapper — born Melanie Doyle — has said that her significant other and best friend were among those killed.

Representatives for Doyle did not respond to requests for comment for this story.

Police also have provided no official updates in recent days. Snelling has said investigators were pulling video surveillance footage from the area, asking the

Turn to Feud, Page 4

Mello Buckzz performs with Latto at the Sahara Tent during the 2023 Coachella Valley Music and Arts Festival in Indio, California. EMMA MCINTYRE/GETTY

Former Ald. Ed Burke, 14th, exits the Dirksen U.S. Courthouse on June 5, 2024, following a post-trial motion hearing in his corruption trial, which ended in December 2023. VINCENT ALBAN/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Burke released early from federal prison

Feds: Ex-alderman to spend rest of sentence in the Chicago area

By Madeline Buckley
and Jason Meisner
Chicago Tribune

Less than 10 months after reporting to federal prison, former Chicago Ald. Edward Burke on Tuesday was released early to spend the rest of his sentence in the Chicago area, according to federal officials.

In late September, Burke, 81, had checked himself into the low-security federal prison camp at Thomson, Illinois, to start a two-year sentence on his corruption case. It was an ignominious moment for a onetime city leader who had wielded power for decades as the city's longest-serving alderman.

But Burke apparently qualified to leave the facility early due to his age. The camp, which houses about 133 male inmates, is situated about 2 ½ hours west of Chicago, along the Mississippi River.

In a statement, the U.S. Bureau of Prisons said Burke was transferred from the camp to community confinement, which is overseen by federal authorities in the Chicago area. Community confinement can be served either at home or in a residential reentry facility, the statement said.

Burke's projected release from community confinement is Feb. 20 of next year, officials said.

Most federal inmates are required to serve 85% of their sentences, which originally would have seen Burke released in May 2026 at age 82.

Burke lawyers Joseph Duffy and Charles Sklarsky were not immediately available to comment on the release.

Burke is expected to serve a year on court-ordered supervision. He also was to pay $65,000 in restitution to the owners of the Burger King franchise he was convicted of shaking down, as well as a $2 million fine imposed by U.S. District Chief Judge Virginia Kendall.

Turn to Burke, Page 2

Militant attack kills five Israeli soldiers in Gaza

Bloodshed may pressure Netanyahu to strike a deal for a ceasefire

By Tia Goldenberg, Fatma Khaled and Wafaa Shurafa
Associated Press

TEL AVIV, Israel — Five Israeli soldiers were killed in an attack in the northern Gaza Strip, Israel's military said Tuesday, while health officials in the Palestinian territory said that 51 people were killed in Israeli strikes.

The bloodshed came as Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu was visiting the White House for talks with President Donald Trump about a ceasefire plan to pause the Gaza fighting. While there was no announcement of a breakthrough, there were signs of progress toward a deal.

The soldiers' deaths could add to pressure on Netanyahu to strike a deal, as polls in Israel have shown widespread support for ending the 21-month war.

A senior Israeli official said that 80% to 90% of the details had been ironed out and a final agreement could be days away. The official spoke on condition of anonymity.

In a separate development, Israel said that it targeted a senior Hamas militant with a rare airstrike in northern Lebanon

Turn to Gaza, Page 4

INSIDE

Still an unfinished product

C The Cubs offense has been a machine so far this season — but it still could use a little help. Paul Sullivan in Chicago Sports

Providing a place to belong

Lombard's booming Yemeni coffee shops underscore demand for socialization and culturally appropriate nightlife. Food & Health

TODAY'S WEATHER

High 83 Low 66

Complete Chicagoland forecast on Page 20

$4.00 city and suburbs and elsewhere
178th year No. 190 © Chicago Tribune

