

WSJ

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL WEEKEND

Use It All Up: How To Buy Less in 2026
OFF DUTY

DOW JONES | News Corp  SATURDAY/SUNDAY, JANUARY 24 - 25, 2026 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVII NO. 19 WSJ.com ★★★★★ $6.00

What's News

Business & Finance

- ◆ Hedge-fund performance in 2025 was the best it has been in more than a decade, with stock pickers and bond and currency traders reporting some of the best results. A1
- ◆ U.S. stocks ended a week that saw renewed threats of a trans-Atlantic trade war roughly where they began, after Friday's trading left the S&P 500 little changed, the Dow off by 0.6% and the Nasdaq up by 0.3%. A1
- ◆ Consumers felt a bit better about the economy in January as sentiment improved from near-historical lows reached late last year. A2
- ◆ The pushback against the immigration crackdown in Minneapolis is pulling more CEOs into the political arena, a place many of them have done their best to avoid. A1
- ◆ The Justice Department opened a criminal investigation into allegations that Deel, a human-resources company, recruited a spy inside a rival firm. B9
- ◆ Ericsson shares surged in Europe after the Swedish telecom-equipment company reported forecast-beating earnings and bumper shareholder returns. B9
- ◆ Shares of Prague-based arms maker CSG climbed in their trading debut in Amsterdam, implying a market value of €32 billion, or $37.62 billion. B9

Worldwide

- ◆ Canada and the Trump administration are locked in a war of words over Prime Minister Mark Carney's bid to chart a new model for small powers to fight back against the U.S.'s aggressive use of its economic and military might. A1
- ◆ Trump sparked outrage after he suggested that NATO allies avoided front-line combat during the war in Afghanistan. A6
- ◆ The Trump administration pushed out two officials focused on neutralizing technological threats from China, the latest dismissals of key personnel working on national-security issues tied to Beijing. A3
- ◆ Thousands took to the streets in subzero temperatures to protest the Trump administration's immigration crackdown in Minnesota, with many chanting slogans as they marched in Minneapolis. A4
- ◆ Elon Musk is reigniting his political apparatus for the mid-term elections after suggesting he would retreat to oversee his business empire. A5
- ◆ The French navy seized a tanker carrying Russian oil in the Mediterranean, escalating the West's efforts to paralyze a fleet transporting sanctioned oil around the world. A7
- ◆ Zelensky said the future of Ukraine's Donbas region is a key focus as negotiators from Ukraine, Russia and the U.S. met in Abu Dhabi for talks to end Russia's invasion. A8
- ◆ The U.S. completed its withdrawal from the World Health Organization one year after Trump announced the departure. A5

NOONAN
Trump can't tolerate peace and quiet A13

CONTENTS	Obituaries..... C6
Books..... C7-12	Opinion..... A11-13
Business & Finance B9-10	Sports..... A14
Design & Decor..... D4	Style & Fashion D2-3
Food..... D6	Travel..... D8-9
Gear & Gadgets..... D7	U.S. News..... A2-5
Heard on Street..... B11	World News..... A6-8

Winter Storm Threatens Much of the Nation

THE BIG FREEZE: A store employee restocks bags of ice melt Friday in Bethesda, Md., ahead of a massive weekend storm expected to bring snow, sleet, ice and frigid cold from Texas to New England, affecting about half the U.S. population. A3

Geopolitical Tensions Unleash Roller-Coaster Week in Markets

By DAVID UBERTI

A week that began with renewed threats of a trans-Atlantic trade war ended with the U.S. stock market finishing roughly where it began. The topsy-turvy path to Friday's quiet close reminded investors of the many forces that have made markets' record-breaking run in recent months feel more like a high-wire act. President Trump threatened additional tariffs on some of the U.S.'s longest-standing allies in a bid to acquire Greenland and then promptly walked them back. Investors momentarily revived a "Sell America" trade by unloading stocks and bonds—and quickly bought them back after the dip. And through this turbulence, inflation and consumer-spending data revealed a U.S. economy still powering ahead. Major indexes finished the week showing few signs that they had narrowly avoided a potential trade shock. The Dow Jones Industrial Average ticked 0.5% lower, while the S&P 500 inched downward by 0.4%. The Nasdaq composite slipped 0.1%.

While all three benchmarks have been relatively flat over the past month, they remain richly valued, helping flush investors continue to spend and help the economy keep humming. Gross-domestic product grew at a 4.4% annualized rate between July and September, the Commerce Department said Thursday. A University of

Please turn to page A4

Canada's Carney Infuriates Trump

By PAUL VIEIRA

OTTAWA—Canada and the Trump administration are locked in a war of words over Prime Minister Mark Carney's bid to chart a new model for small powers to fight back against the U.S.'s aggressive use of its economic and military might. In the past week, Carney has resolved a trade row with the U.S.'s biggest strategic competitor, China, and delivered a speech at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland, urging smaller powers to unite against economic coercion from the world's great powers.

The moves drew cheers at home and abroad as a template on how to stand up to the Trump administration's perceived bullying, just as the president was threatening Europe with retribution if Denmark didn't give the U.S. the Arctic island of Greenland. But it has also incensed the Trump administration.

On Wednesday, President Trump, speaking at Davos, called out Carney for his speech, saying he wasn't grateful enough to the U.S. "Canada lives because of the United States," Trump said. "Remember that, Mark, the next time you make your statements." On Thursday, Trump said on his

Please turn to page A8

- ◆ Beijing angles for deals with U.S. allies..... A6
- ◆ Trump stirs backlash with NATO troop remark..... A6

Why Congress Keeps Whiffing on War Powers

Changes in foreign conflict and Trump's grip on the GOP enable him to pursue a nearly unchecked agenda overseas

By ROBBIE GRAMER AND LINDSAY WISE

WASHINGTON—In a dizzying three weeks on the world stage, President Trump deposited Venezuela's leader, threatened its neighbors with military action, raised the specter of new strikes on Iran and ignited—then tamped down—a diplomatic crisis with Europe over his efforts to acquire Greenland. At each fresh turn, Congress has found itself scrambling to keep up, sparking new debates among lawmakers about how to claw back constitutional powers from the presidency over matters of foreign policy in the Trump era.

On Thursday, the Republican-led House defeated a resolution that would restrict Trump's ability to deploy troops to Venezuela—a full 19 days after the audacious military raid that captured the country's president. The vote was a tie, 215-215.

That follows a bipartisan Congressional visit to Denmark at the height of a diplomatic row with one of Washington's closest allies—Democrats and a small but growing number of Republicans—are searching for ways to rein in the president. At stake, they say, is the U.S.-led global order that's been in place since the end of World War II.

"Congress has ceded its authority in far

Please turn to page A9

Americans Travel the World Only to Wind Up in Costco

* * *

Fans skip the Louvre and other attractions to buy bulk souvenirs and try the hot dog

By Stu Woo

CHIBA, Japan—Japan was the trip of a lifetime for Annette Kujak.

The 58-year-old retiree from Brownsville, Minn., loved the ancient temples in Tokyo, neon lights in Osaka and free-roaming deer in Nara.

The other highlight of her vacation was a concrete box here in suburbia, surrounded by the same gray asphalt she sees at home. It was a Japanese outpost of Costco. "It ranks right up there with the temples," she said.

As the retailer planted its flag in 13 foreign markets, its devoted American members have followed. Search online for Costco in Sweden or Taiwan, and you'll find videos narrated in breathless wonder. Travelers hunt for regional souvenirs, soothe their homesickness and investigate a burning question: Is the hot dog different?

Please turn to page A9

Tourist trap

ICE Standoff Places CEOs in a Tough Spot

By CHIP CUTTER AND SARAH NASSAUER

CEOs have tried their hardest to stay on the political sidelines since President Trump started his second term—and mostly succeeded. Now the pushback against the immigration crackdown in Minneapolis is pulling more of them in.

Some of the country's biggest companies, including 3M, Medtronic, Ecolab, U.S. Bancorp and UnitedHealth, all have headquarters and thousands of employees in the Twin Cities. Though they have kept largely quiet in public, many of their leaders are trying to navigate the charged issue with employees and community members behind the scenes.

EXCHANGE

RUFFLED ALLIES AND LATE COCKTAILS
What it was really like at Davos. B1

Target—Minneapolis's best-known corporate brand—is a case in point. The hometown retailer hasn't issued any public statements since the detention of two local store workers, both U.S. citizens, earlier this month. But its executives agreed to meet with a group of local clergy who protested in the lobby of the company's headquarters this month.

The company also has circulated updated guidelines for how staff in stores and warehouses should respond to "un-

Please turn to page A4

- ◆ Democrats have an 'abolish ICE' issue..... A4