P2JW307000-5-A00100-16DDF61078D

ADVERTISEMENT

A signal from the crowd, not the capital.

Kalshi

Restrictions and eligibility requirements apply. Event contract trading involves significant risk and is not appropriate for everyone. Please carefully consider if it's appropriate for you in light of your personal financial circumstances. See kalshi.com/regulatory for more information.

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

DOW JONES | News Corp ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 2026 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVIII NO. 106 WSJ.com ★★★★ $5.00

DJIA 51983.98 ▲ 213.67 0.41% NASDAQ 25164.32 ▼ 1.1% STOXX 600 649.44 ▲ 0.4% 10-YR. TREAS. ▲ 9/32, yield 4.893% OIL $96.46 ▼ $7.66 GOLD $3,956.90 ▲ $71.20 EURO $1.1187 YEN 157.94

What's News

Business & Finance

◆ The Apple growth and profit machine is wavering and the boost from price increases might not be enough to keep it going at historic rates, putting pressure on CEO John Ternus. A1

◆ The selloff in U.S.-listed tech stocks continued, helping to depress the S&P 500 and Nasdaq by 0.5% and 1.1%, respectively, while the Dow rose 0.4%. B10

◆ A tungsten-mining company with ties to two of Trump's sons is preparing to go public next year through a direct U.S. listing that would supplant a pending merger. B1

◆ Artificial-intelligence chip maker Marvell agreed to buy data-center-optics maker Lumentum in an all-stock deal valued at roughly $80 billion. B1

◆ Marriott's quarterly revenue rose, with the hotel company pointing to broad-based demand in the U.S. and Canada and improving travel trends in the Middle East. B3

◆ CVR Energy, the oil refiner controlled by Carl Icahn, is nearing a more than $4 billion deal to buy refineries from Marathon Petroleum. B10

◆ Fox Corp. posted strong fiscal first-quarter results, boosted by the summer's FIFA World Cup and midterm election advertising sales. B4

◆ Palantir's revenue surged in its most-recent quarter, led by the company's U.S. commercial business. B4

Worldwide

◆ Party fracturing this season has created a historic opportunity for political realignment as new candidates and policies attempt to break through. A1, A4

◆ The U.S. attacked Iran's Qeshm Island on Monday, U.S. officials said, in the latest of a series of limited strikes Washington has secretly carried out against the country in recent weeks. A7

◆ The Supreme Court rejected a push for California to set aside thousands of mail ballots from people the Trump administration claims are noncitizens. A4

◆ A judge threw out charges against two former FBI officials accused of lying to Congress about their involvement in the Hunter Biden investigation, blasting the case as political theater. A3

◆ Virginia is pioneering the use of speed-limiters, using GPS technology to make reckless drivers slow down. A3

◆ Supermarkets in Sweden, Belgium, Luxembourg, Ireland and Estonia were hit with problems with freezers and fridges apparently caused by cyberattacks. A7

◆ Acting President Iliana Yotova won a runoff election to become Bulgaria's first elected female head of state. A8

◆ Died: Jerry Koosman, 83, Miracle Mets left-hander. A6

CONTENTS

Arts in Review..... A12
Business & Finance B2,10
Business News..... B3
Crossword..... A12
Heard on Street..... B11
Markets Digest..... B7
Money & Investing B11
Opinion..... A13-15
Personal Journal A9-10
Sports..... A16
Technology..... B4
U.S. News..... A2-4,6
World News..... A7-8

© 2026 Dow Jones & Company, Inc.
All Rights Reserved

JOE RAEDLE/GETTY IMAGES

EMILY ROSE BENNETT FOR THE WSJ

JABIN BOTSFORD FOR WSJ

JUSTIN SULLIVAN/GETTY IMAGES

Clockwise from top left: Republican Sen. Susan Collins in Maine; Democratic Senate candidate Abdul El-Sayed in Michigan; GOP Sen. Dan Sullivan in Alaska; Texas Democrats James Talarico, running for Senate, with governor hopeful Gina Hinojosa.

Midterms Lay Bare Parties' Fractures

Historic opportunity for a realignment arises as voters on left and right rebel

By Aaron Zitner

Election Day caps a tumultuous campaign season during which anger at the failures of the political system exposed extraordinary divisions within each party.

In Michigan last weekend, an astonishing Democratic rift emerged when the centrist Rep. Haley Stevens, who had narrowly lost the Senate primary, endorsed the Republican in the race and accused her party's nominee, Abdul El-Sayed, of infusing his progressive agenda with antisemitism.

Republicans, in turn, have watched as President Trump elevated Ken Paxton, the indicted and impeached attorney general in Texas, for a Senate seat over a politically safer option, only to mock Paxton continuously on the trail as his campaign struggled.

The seat is now in play, along with those in a handful of other states Trump won by double digits just two years ago, including Ohio, Iowa, Alaska and Kansas. One reason is that Trump angered many of his own voters by imposing tariffs and waging war with Iran, leading to higher prices.

The signs of the parties fracturing right before voters' eyes came early, when Democrat Graham Platner, an obscure and unvetted oysterman from Maine, surged past the pick of party leaders with an angry, populist battle cry. "People know that the system is screwing them," he said in a video launching his Senate bid. "They know it in their bones."

Less than a year later, his meteoric campaign imploded,

Please turn to page A4

Apple's Growth Slows, Pressing New Boss

Shares decline after hours as Ternus warns margins might weaken in the future

By Rolfe Winkler

The Apple growth and profit machine is wavering, and the boost from price increases might not be enough to keep it going at historic rates. The pressure is on new Chief Executive John Ternus to keep the momentum going.

The company saved the bad news for its earnings call, an hour after it posted its earnings for the September quarter, projecting that for the current quarter that its high-margin services business will continue to slow and that its widely watched gross profit margin will continue to fall.

Apple shares had been flat in post-close trading but declined as much as 4% after the company made the projections, which fell short of Wall Street estimates.

The impact of high memory costs are weighing even more heavily on the company, Ternus and Apple Chief Financial Officer Kevan Parekh said on

Please turn to page A2

'We're Out of Time!' Then Plane Crashed

By Andrew Tangel And Deborah Acosta

BOCA RATON, Fla.—It went from a calm request for a better route to sheer panic in a matter of seconds.

A Learjet pilot called air-traffic control for clearance to fly higher Sunday as a storm was generating ice and turbulence while the air temperature was 53 degrees below zero. The pilot said the crew was managing the ice on the business jet and noted they were picking up precipitation. Suddenly, it shifted.

"Mayday, mayday, we're descending 10,000 feet per minute," the pilot called out from within the cockpit of the doomed Learjet, according to air-traffic audio from LiveATC.net.

Quickly the flight stopped being able to ascend and began nosediving, falling faster and faster with every second. "Declare an emergency," she soon shrieked. "We are in an overspeed condition descending 20,000 feet per minute!"

"We are going to crash into the ground," she said,

Please turn to page A6

INSIDE

PERSONAL JOURNAL
The best college bargain in some states? A pricey elite liberal arts school. A9

Xi Challenges U.S. Ocean Dominance

Shipbuilding giant is undertaking one of the largest peacetime naval buildups

*By Niharika Mandhana, Josh Chin and Camille Bressange

SINGAPORE—In 1998, a shadowy entertainment company based in the gambling hub of Macau made an unusual purchase: an aircraft carrier. Called the Varyag, it was originally ordered for the Soviet Union, but was left to rust unfinished in a Ukrainian shipyard. Its Chinese buyers said they wanted to turn their $20 million acquisition into a floating casino. That turned out to be a ruse. China, whose inexperienced navy had never built or operated a carrier, decided to make an experiment of the Varyag. It took 15 years to transform

Please turn to page A8

Keep Calm, Stockpile Sauvignon

* * *

While world frets about doomsday, Britain has jokes

By James Hookway

Britain's defense secretary hoped to start a national conversation about resilience when he announced that everyone should stockpile enough supplies to survive 72 hours without food, water or power. Wes Streeting warned the country hasn't seen such a range of threats in decades, from Russian sabotage attempts to hacking attacks to flooding.

Not everyone seemed to get the memo.

"Let's see, mascara, concealer, a bottle of Sauvignon Blanc, a tin of baked beans, because you've got to have some

Please turn to page A10

AI Buildup Stirs Fight: Utility Wants 165-Foot Pole in Her Backyard

By Jennifer Hiller

Vicky Hu didn't realize she lived at the heart of the internet until the summer of 2025 when a representative from her utility called and said it might run a transmission line through her backyard and plant a pole there.

"He said, 'Oh, we will minimize the damage, the impact. You will not even notice the pole is in your backyard,'" Hu recalled.

The monopole tower would be about 165 feet tall. He told her it would require cutting down hundreds of trees on her 1.3-acre property and the woods behind it.

"What did you just say?" she asked him.

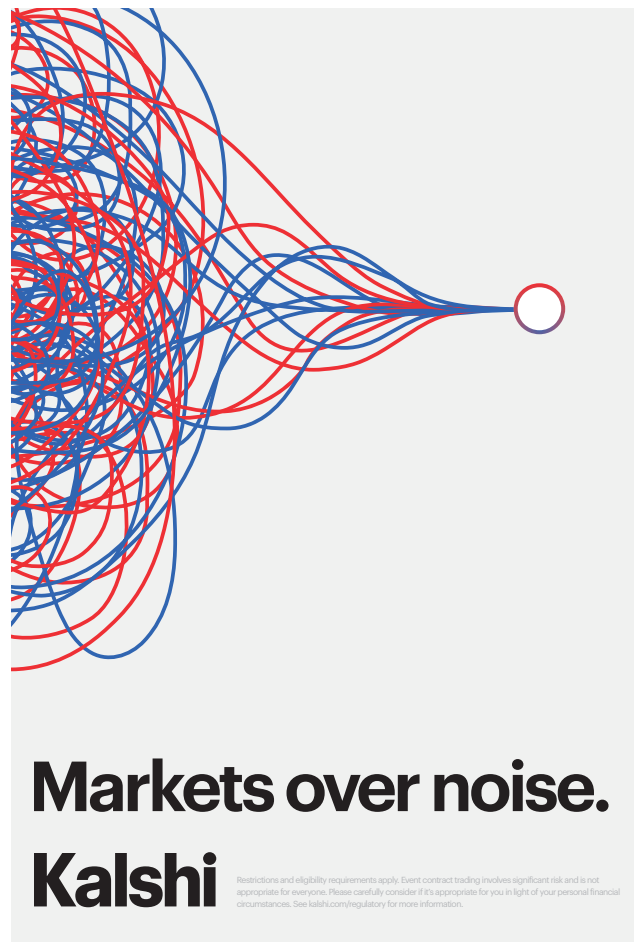

Hu, who works in real estate and construction, has lived for two decades on a street in Ashburn, Va., that backs up to a wooded conservation easement where, she thought, nothing could be built. It turns out her utility, Dominion Energy, has power of eminent domain, the right to take private property for a public use, provided it pays fair compensation.

Hu soon realized her home sits near the center of the world's largest data-center market. Virginia's Loudoun County tracked 233 data-center buildings completed or in some stage of the construction process as of March.

Now, Hu is part of a battle over the need for electric-grid upgrades driven largely—though Dominion said not entirely—by rising electricity demand for new data centers.

Fights over the placement

Please turn to page A2

Markets over noise.

Kalshi

Restrictions and eligibility requirements apply. Event contract trading involves significant risk and is not appropriate for everyone. Please carefully consider if it's appropriate for you in light of your personal financial circumstances. See kalshi.com/regulatory for more information.