

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

DOW JONES | News Corp

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 2025 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVI NO. 89

WSJ.com

★★★★ $5.00

DJIA 46067.58 ▲ 587.98 1.29% NASDAQ 22694.61 ▲ 2.2% STOXX 600 566.63 ▲ 0.4% 10-YR. TREAS. Closed (4.053%) OIL $59.49 ▲ $0.59 GOLD $4,108.60 ▲ $132.70 EURO $1.1570 YEN 152.29

What's News

Business & Finance

◆ Trump is trying to publicly de-escalate tensions with China to soothe markets while privately keeping up pressure on Beijing—a difficult balancing act closely watched by Wall Street. A1

◆ Tech shares led a market rebound after comments from Trump and administration officials eased fears of a renewed trade war. The Nasdaq, S&P 500 and Dow rose 2.2%, 1.6% and 1.3%, respectively. B1

◆ Silver prices set an all-time high, eclipsing a 45-year-old record from 1980 when the Hunt brothers tried to corner the market for the precious metal. A1

◆ The CEO of bankrupt auto-parts supplier First Brands has resigned and will be succeeded by one of its restructuring advisers. B1

◆ OpenAI and Broadcom are working together to develop and deploy 10 gigawatts of custom AI chips and computing systems over the next four years. B1

◆ JPMorgan Chase said it would directly invest $10 billion in companies it deems key to U.S. national security. B1

◆ The Dutch government wrested control of a Netherlands-based semiconductor company, Nexperia, from its Chinese owner. B1

◆ Lottery operator Allwyn and Greece's OPAP said they agreed to merge to create a European gambling giant with a combined value of $18.59 billion. B3

◆ The founder and CEO of LendingTree, Doug Lebda, died Sunday in an all-terrain vehicle accident on his family farm in North Carolina. B2

World-Wide

◆ Trump declared an end to the Gaza war after more than two years and vowed to extend his peacemaking to the wider Middle East, taking a victory lap in a region facing deep divisions and numerous conflicts. A1

◆ The cease-fire deal between Israel and Hamas resulted in the return of all 20 living Israeli hostages and the release of nearly 2,000 Palestinian prisoners. A1

◆ Trump will host Ukrainian President Zelensky at the White House on Friday. A6

◆ An investment fund run by prominent Trump supporters pitched companies on sponsoring a conference it called the “Inaugural U.S. Treasury A.I. Summit,” but the agency said it hadn’t approved the distributed materials. A4

◆ Major media outlets have said they won’t agree to a new Defense Department policy restricting journalists’ communication with military sources. A4

◆ North Carolina Republican legislative leaders announced plans to vote next week on redrawing the state’s U.S. House district map, with a likely aim to secure another GOP seat. A4

◆ A small plane crashed in southeastern Massachusetts, killing both people on board and injuring another person on the ground. A4

◆ The death toll from last week’s torrential rains in Mexico jumped to 64. A6

◆ Madagascar President Rajoelina said he fled the country in fear for his life following a military rebellion but didn’t announce his resignation. A6

CONTENTS Markets Digest..... B7
Arts in Review..... A13 Opinion..... A15-17
Business & Finance..... B2 Personal Journal A11-12
Business News..... B3 Sports..... A14
Crossword..... A13 Technology..... B4
Heard on Street..... B10 U.S. News..... A2-4
Markets..... B9-10 World News..... A6-8-9

© 2025 Dow Jones & Company, Inc.
All Rights Reserved

Trump Hails ‘New Middle East’

Victory lap comes as the region still faces major obstacles to a broader, lasting peace

BY ROBBIE GRAMER
AND SHAYNDI RAICE

President Trump declared an end to the Gaza war Monday after more than two years and vowed to extend peacemaking to the wider Middle East, taking a victory lap in a region still facing deep divisions and numerous unresolved conflicts.

“This isn’t only the end of a war, this is the end of an age of terror and death,” Trump said in an address to the Israeli parliament, the Knesset. “This is the historic dawn of a new Middle East.”

Trump arrived in Israel as all 20 living Israeli hostages were released by Hamas and transferred to Israel’s military inside Gaza, in return for the release of nearly 2,000 Palestinians by Israel. The U.S. president later flew to Sharm El-Sheikh, an Egyptian Red Sea resort, for a summit meeting with other leaders aimed at spurring momentum for a broader postwar settlement.

While in Egypt, Trump and the leaders of Turkey, Qatar and Egypt signed a peace declaration that set out a lofty vision for peace and security in the Middle East, even as it lacked concrete steps to achieving it.

“We seek tolerance, dignity and equal opportunity for every person, ensuring this region is a place where all can

Please turn to page A8

◆ Trump sets his sights on peace in Ukraine..... A6

Alon Ohel, one of 20 Israeli hostages freed after two years of captivity, waves to well-wishers as he arrives with his family at a hospital in central Israel, top. Some of the nearly 2,000 Palestinian prisoners released by Israel gesture as they are welcomed in Khan Younis in the Gaza Strip, bottom left. President Trump lauds the cease-fire agreement in an address to Israel’s parliament.

Homecomings Bring Joy, Relief on Both Sides

Families desperately awaiting the release of the rest of the 20 living Israeli hostages still in Gaza after a first group was

By Anat Peled,
Feliz Solomon
and Summer Said

freed got a surprise Monday morning: A number of the hostages called home while still being held by Hamas.

The family of hostage Bar Kupershtein, 23 years old, got one of the video calls. His family erupted with joy as he spoke while standing next to a masked Palestinian fighter.

“Everything is OK!” he said, as his family breathed a sigh of relief that he appeared healthy.

“My beautiful boy,” his mother exclaimed upon seeing his face. “Hey I’m not done yet, put him back on,” she said as the man began turning the camera away.

“Bar, here is Grandma,” she said turning the phone to her. They then raced into a room nearby to let him talk with his father, who was in a wheelchair. “Here is dad,” she laughed joyfully.

Kupershtein was one of the 20 Israeli hostages released from Gaza on Monday in exchange for the release of 2,000 Palestinian prisoners held by Israel as part of a cease-fire that began late last week.

President Trump, taking a victory lap on Monday, declared the end of the war in Gaza during a speech before the Knesset in Israel, but a number of issues between Israel and Hamas have yet to be resolved, including how Gaza will be governed.

Kupershtein’s extended family and friends, gathered at a watch party in the Israeli city of Holon, watched a video of his family receiving the incoming call and cheered when Trump and the leaders of Egypt, Turkey and Qatar signed a document recognizing the cease-fire deal, one that set out a lofty vision for

Please turn to page A9

L.A. Rebuild Draws A Powerball Winner

After a jackpot, Edwin Castro is buying burned-down lots in his hometown

By REBECCA PICCIOTTO
AND KONRAD PUTZIER

ALTADENA, Calif.—On a recent overcast morning, a group of investors surveyed one of their newly purchased, wildfire-scorched land plots, when a silver-haired woman approached.

“Who are all of you?” asked the woman, the resident across the street. “This is Edwin,” said one of them, nodding toward a stocky, ponytailed man in the group.

The woman sighed in relief. She, like many longtime Altadenans, knew exactly who Edwin Castro is: the guy who bought a record $2 billion Powerball lottery ticket at a local gas station in 2022.

He’s also one of the biggest buyers of Altadena lots after

Please turn to page A10

The Numbers Making Life Hell For Math Teachers This Fall

‘Six seven’ is sending teens into a frenzy; ‘it’s like throwing catnip at cats’

By ELLEN GAMERMAN

The name of this fall’s most obnoxious classmate: Six seven. Math teacher Cara Bearden braces herself for any equation that yields the two numbers, knowing her students will immediately scream their right back at her. “SIX Sevennnnn,” they squeal with a palms-up, seesaw hand gesture that looks somewhere between juggling and melon handling. The meme is ripping across the internet and spilling into real life, especially at school.

“If you’re like, ‘Hey, you need to do questions six, seven,’ they just immediately start yelling, ‘Six Seven!’” says Bearden, who teaches sixth- and eighth-graders at Austin Peace Academy in Austin, Texas. “It’s like throwing catnip at cats.”

Now teachers avoid breaking kids into groups of six or seven, or asking them to turn

Please turn to page A10

INSIDE

PERSONAL JOURNAL
AI tools mean your face is fair game and anyone can create a fake version of you. A11

U.S. and China Look To Ease Trade Feud

President Trump is trying to publicly de-escalate tensions with China to soothe markets while privately keeping up

By Brian Schwartz,
Lingling Wei
and Gavin Bade

pressure on Beijing—a difficult balancing act that is being closely watched by Wall Street.

After threatening additional 100% tariffs on Chinese imports starting Nov. 1, Trump in recent days spoke with senior officials, including Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent, about sending a message to the world that the U.S. wants to de-escalate trade tensions with China, according to people familiar with the matter.

Trump’s 100% tariff threat Friday came after Beijing moved to impose restrictions on the export of rare-earth minerals. The renewed conflict sparked a large U.S. market selloff, during which the president suggested he might not meet with Chinese leader

Please turn to page A4

◆ Technology stocks lead wide rebound..... B1

Silver Sets First Record Since 1980, Surging More Than 70% This Year

By RYAN DEZEMBER
AND JOE WALLACE

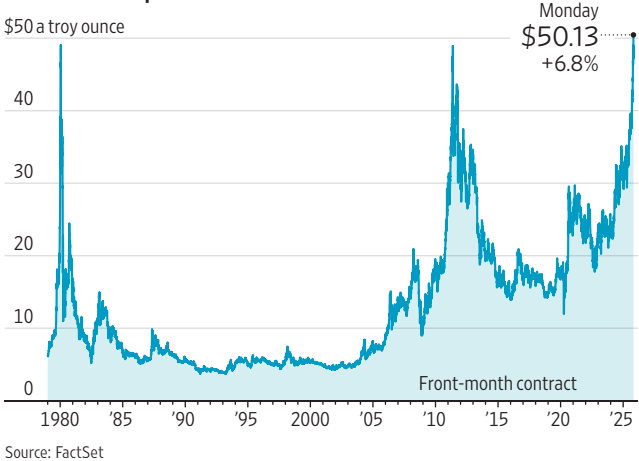

Silver prices set an all-time high Monday, eclipsing a 45-year-old record from 1980 when the Hunt brothers tried to corner the market for the precious metal.

Silver futures rose 6.8% Monday to settle at $50.13 a troy ounce, topping the long-standing record of $48.70, set in January 1980 during one of the 20th century’s biggest commodity-trading scandals.

Adjusted for inflation, silver would need to exceed $200 a

Please turn to page A2

Silver futures price

Source: FactSet