NOW SHUT MIGRANT PROTEST HOTEL

As demonstrators clash again in Epping, Tories demand that Labour listen to local concerns and move asylum seekers

LABOUR faced mounting pressure last night to shut the asylum hotel at the centre of angry protests.

But ministers stayed silent as senior Tories joined demands for migrants to be removed from The Bell Hotel in Epping, Essex, over 'legitimate' concerns about crime. As frustrated organisers of the growing demonstrations said they would not stop until it was closed, fresh clashes broke out outside the hotel yesterday, despite a heavy police presence to separate rival groups of protesters.

The demonstrations were triggered after Ethiopian man Hadush Kebatu was charged with sexually assaulting a schoolgirl just days after he arrived in Britain in a Channel dinghy.

Police chiefs have already described the unrest at The Bell as a 'signal flare' for another summer of disorder.

Epping Council voted unanimously
