P2JW308000-7-A00100-16DDF61078D

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

DOW JONES | News Corp ★★★★★★★ WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 2026 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVIII NO. 107 WSJ.com ★★★★ $5.00

DJIA 51786.72 ▼ 197.26 0.38% NASDAQ 25372.01 ▲ 0.8% STOXX 600 645.66 ▼ 0.6% 10-YR. TREAS. ▼ 14/32, yield 4.951% OIL $96.09 ▼ $0.37 GOLD $3,927.90 ▼ $29.00 EURO $1.1192 YEN 158.69

What's News

Business & Finance

◆ U.S. stocks finished mixed amid investor trepidation ahead of the midterm election results, with the S&P 500 and Nasdaq rising 0.4% and 0.8%, respectively, and the Dow falling 0.4%. B11

◆ Elliott Investment Management compared the current state of the financial markets to the Roaring '20s that preceded the Great Depression. B1

◆ CVS Health will split into two publicly traded companies, dividing its retail pharmacies from its insurance and pharmacy-benefit operations in the first half of 2028. A1

◆ 3M said it agreed to settle long-running litigation brought by thousands of people who claim they were hurt by the so-called forever chemicals known as PFAS. B3

◆ China told its biggest securities firms and banks to throttle back their work on IPOs and focus on boosting the struggling stock market. B1

◆ U.S. job openings rose to 7.5 million in September from an upwardly revised 7.2 million in August while hiring held relatively steady. A2

◆ AMD's sales beat Wall Street's expectations, though a deal it made last year with OpenAI weighed on its third-quarter net income. B4

◆ Unilever aims to save the equivalent of about $1.12 billion and secure steady sales growth as it focuses its business on a slimmer core of nonfood products. B4

◆ Keurig Dr Pepper reported higher profit and sales for the latest quarter even though its coffee business is taking longer than expected to recover. B3

Worldwide

◆ Democrats delivered a blue shellacking in the midterm elections, reclaiming control of the Senate and putting the party on pace to recapture the House, as voters voiced their discontent with Trump. A1, A4-5

◆ Democrat Gina Hinojosa defeated Gov. Greg Abbott in a stunning flip in Texas. Georgia's Keisha Lance Bottoms became the first Black woman to be elected governor in U.S. history. A5

◆ Democrat Amy Acton defeated Republican Vivek Ramaswamy for Ohio governor after a race that was roiled by an attack ad featuring Acton's estranged mother. A5

◆ Trump said the U.S. would cut off military aid to Israel by the end of the year, suggesting the phaseout of such grants could occur much faster than expected. A1

◆ Pieces of the tail of the Bahamas-bound Learjet that crashed in Florida were found miles away from the impact site, indicating part of the aircraft separated before the plane hit the ground. A3

◆ A Russian airstrike killed at least 31 people, with nearly 50 more missing, at a school in southern Ukraine where humanitarian aid was being distributed. A6

◆ NATO is developing a response doctrine that includes strikes far inside Russia should Moscow attack alliance members' territory. A6

◆ The Supreme Court appeared likely to rule in favor of Catholic preschools in Colorado that want public subsidies but don't want to enroll children of LGBTQ parents. A3

CONTENTS

Arts in Review..... A14
Business & Finance.... B2
Business News..... B3
Crossword..... A13
Heard on Street... B11
Markets..... B11
Markets Digest..... B9
Opinion..... A15-17
Personal Journal A12-13
Property Report.... B6
Sports..... A18
U.S. News..... A2-5
World News.. A6-7,10

© 2026 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved

Democrats Score Big Wins

Historic victories in deep-red states flip Senate, House poised to slip from GOP control in major shift in power

MIC SMITH/AP

MATT RAMEY/AP

JABIN BOTSFORD FOR WSJ

ELIJAH NOUVELAGE/BLOOMBERG

Winners in the Senate elections include, clockwise from top left, Annie Andrews in South Carolina, Roy Cooper in North Carolina, Jon Ossoff in Georgia and James Talarico in Texas. Scan the code for the latest at WSJ.com.

Democrats delivered a blue shellacking in Tuesday's midterm elections, reclaiming control of the Senate and putting the party on pace to recapture the House, as voters voiced their discontent with President Trump and prepared to usher in a new era of divided government during his final two years in office.

*By Eliza Collins, Sabrina Rodriguez and Ken Thomas

"This is not a blue moment. Or a red moment. It's a red, white and blue moment because America has won tonight," said Rep. Hakeem Jeffries of New York, the House Democratic leader who is in line to become the nation's first Black speaker of the House in the next Congress.

Republicans lost Senate seats that they held in South Carolina, Texas, North Carolina, Ohio, Kansas and Iowa, according to the Associated Press, giving Democrats a Senate majority through a campaign map full of Republican terrain. All of those states Trump had won, in many cases by double digits, in 2024. Democrats had needed a net gain of four seats in order to reclaim a majority.

Democratic Sen. Jon Ossoff cruised to re-election in Georgia in a race that Republicans had targeted at the start of Trump's second term. Democrats easily maintained a seat in New Hampshire and held a lead in Michigan, an open seat. Democrat Penny Flanagan held that party's Senate seat in Minnesota.

In South Carolina, Democrat Annie Andrews, a pediatrician and gun safety advocate, beat Republican Sen. Darline Graham, the sister of the late Sen. Lindsay Graham, an unthinkable pickup opportunity until recently. Trump won the state by 18 percentage points in 2024.

"We will not bow down. We will not back down. And we

Please turn to page A4

Voters Bemoan State of Economy

By John McCormick And Anthony DeBarros

Two years after handing Republicans control of Washington, voters in Tuesday's election expressed displeasure about President Trump's job performance while voicing angst about the cost of living and the nation's overall direction.

Results from a large national survey showed many voters went to the polls in a sour mood and looked to the midterm election for change in Washington as Democrats appeared well-positioned to take control of both the House and Senate.

High fuel and food prices were a top voter concern, with about nine in 10 of the electorate saying the cost of living was a crucial or major factor in their thinking on how to vote for Congress, according to the first wave of results from a poll of more than 79,000 registered voters for the Associated Press and all the major television and cable-news networks.

About six in 10 voters said they were very concerned about the cost of food, with a similar proportion registering that level of worry about the price of gasoline or diesel.

Please turn to page A4

Trump Plans to End Military Aid to Israel

WASHINGTON—President Trump said Tuesday that the U.S. would cut off military aid to Israel by the end of the year, suggesting the phaseout of grants to the U.S. ally could occur much faster than expected.

*By Marianne LeVine, Anat Peled and Vera Bergengruen

"We won't be paying anymore to Israel," Trump said during an interview with Fox News on Election Day. "We've already agreed that by the end of this year, we won't be paying Israel."

Israeli officials, including from the security establishment, were surprised by Trump's comments, according to a person familiar with the matter.

The phasing out of direct U.S. military aid to Israel has been under discussion for months, with Prime Minister

Please turn to page A10

INSIDE

MARK J. TERRILL/AP

SPORTS
He's the biggest ball hog in the NBA—and nobody can stop him. A18

CVS to Break Off Retail Pharmacies

By Anna Wilde Mathews

CVS Health has decided to split in two, reversing one of the signature deals that defined an era of health industry gigantism.

One company will house its insurance giant Aetna and pharmacy-benefit manager Caremark, the other its 9,000 retail pharmacies.

The breakup, planned for early 2028, comes a decade after the near-$70 billion merger that knit together Aetna and CVS, creating one of a new breed of giants that brought together multiple businesses spanning more and more of the healthcare industry.

Now, CVS said, the businesses will be better off on their own. "We believe based off of where we are and how we're performing, the businesses are best served by splitting," CVS Chief Executive David Joyner said. "We're ba-

Please turn to page A2

Divorce Lawyers To Clients: Dump AI

By Dalvin Brown

Steven Benmor, a Toronto family lawyer, recently drafted a prenuptial agreement the way he said his client asked. Then the client emailed him a 13-part list of revisions nearly as long as the prenup.

Some revisions went so deep into the weeds, Benmor said, that no human could have come up with them. Benmor knew his client had turned to an artificial-intelligence chatbot. And he knew that taking the time to explain why the chatbot was mistaken would require charging his client extra.

His mantra: "Don't spend money unduly by asking a hu-

Please turn to page A13

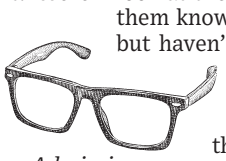

40-Somethings Refuse to Accept They Can No Longer See

* * *

Vision loss proves particularly traumatic for a cohort in full denial of the aging process

By Katherine Bindley

Erika Garcia-Niles was shopping for sunglasses at a T.J. Maxx when she put on a pair and couldn't believe how clearly she could see. The quality of the lenses was amazing, she thought. Were they polarized?

Admission impossible

"I took them off and it was a 2.0 correction," says Garcia-Niles, 49. "I did not know until that point that I needed any sort of readers."

In hindsight, her deteriorating vision shouldn't have come as a shock. In the months leading up to the T.J. Maxx incident she'd developed a system for reading small print: take pictures and zoom in to decipher it.

Friends have been suffering from the same condition. One bought a label maker for her lipstick tubes so she can see what shade she's applying. And on a recent girls trip, Garcia-Niles' friends were borrowing each other's readers to look at their phones. Some of them know they need glasses but haven't gotten their eyes checked or bought their own.

"If you don't buy them then you're not committing to them. Therefore, you are not committing to being old," she says.

Presbyopia is the natural change of the lens in your eye as you age, resulting in a harder time seeing things up close.

Please turn to page A13

salesforce

Thank you to our customers for making us the

#1 Agentic CRM

Based on G2 Grid Reports and verified customer reviews and ratings as of [February 2026].