PRESIDENT, MACRON REVIEW REGIONAL DEVELOPMENTS

- UAE President His Highness Sheikh Mohamed Bin Zayed Al Nahyan and French President Emmanuel Macron discussed the strategic ties between the two countries and ways to broaden their scope, in Abu Dhabi yesterday. The two sides also reviewed regional and international issues, foremost among them developments in the Middle East and ongoing efforts to address their impact on maritime security and global energy supplies.

His Highness Sheikh Mohammed Bin Rashid Al Maktoum, Vice-President and Prime Minister of the UAE and Ruler of Dubai, has called for greater unity and co-operation among GCC nations, warning that divisive media narratives and narrow agendas must not undermine centuries of shared history, kinship and common interests.

In a message addressed to the people of the Gulf, Sheikh Mohammed celebrated the region's remarkable transformation from modest coastal settlements into global economic centres, while stressing that its greatest achievement was investing in people and preserving its identity, culture and values.

Cherished dream

The message, titled "A letter to the People of the Gulf", forms part of the book titled The Letters, the section of his book Lessons from Life. "A letter to the people of the Gulf. A message to our most cherished dream, to our shared history, our vast and interconnected geography, our common ancestry and the enduring bonds of kinship that unite us. A message to the sea that brings us together and the boundless desert that embraces us. A message to our Arabian Gulf, to its people and generations, its intellectuals, thinkers and cultural figures," Sheikh Mohammed wrote.

Common history

He described the Gulf as a region bound by a common history, geography, family ties and aspirations, saying its people had succeeded in building modern cities, strong institutions and thriving economies without losing their distinctive heritage.

"We, the people of the GCC, have moved, by God's grace, from simple towns to global cities, from modest fishing ports to international shipping routes, and from searching for pearls to seeking the world's largest investments," Sheikh Mohammed said.

He added that despite embracing modernity and globalisation, GCC societies had maintained their strong identity, unique culture and deeply rooted traditions.

In one of the strongest passages of his message, Sheikh Mohammed warned against attempts to create divisions among GCC societies through media platforms and narrow political or personal agendas.

'UAE-SAUDI SECURITY, DESTINY SHARED: GARGASH

Dr Anwar Mohammed Gargash, Diplomatic Adviser to the UAE President, has reaffirmed the strength of UAE-Saudi relations, stressing that the two countries share a common security and destiny and that their strategic partnership is a cornerstone of Gulf stability and prosperity.

In a post on X, Gargash said the successful visit of Saudi Defence Minister Prince Khalid Bin Salman to the UAE and his meeting with President His Highness Sheikh Mohamed Bin Zayed Al Nahyan underscored the strength of relations between the two countries.

El Niño could bring more rain and a warmer winter to UAE

Weather influence across UAE to continue well into next spring

DUBAI
Gulf News Report

Winter in the UAE usually brings welcome relief from the heat. This year, it could also bring more rain than usual, as one of the world's most influential climate patterns approaches its expected peak.

El Niño, which develops when large areas of the tropical Pacific Ocean become unusually warm, is forecast to reach very strong levels in October and November, potentially influencing temperatures and rainfall across the UAE well into next spring. The National Centre of Meteorology (NCM) puts the probability of El Niño conditions at 96 per cent between November 2026 and March 2027, with temperatures and rainfall in the UAE expected to be near or above their seasonal averages.

There are early signs of what the coming winter could bring to the UAE, but predicting local weather from changes in the Pacific Ocean remains far from straightforward.

For now, the outlook points to a winter that could be warmer and wetter than usual, with a chance of more significant weather later in the season.
