TRUMP APPALS WORLD WITH 'DICTATOR' BLAST AT ZELENSKY

DONALD Trump branded Volodymyr Zelensky a 'dictator' yesterday as the rift between the US and Ukraine deepened.

In a blistering attack that sparked international outrage, the US President warned Ukraine's leader he 'better move fast or he is not going to have a country left'.

Having been sidelined from peace talks in Saudi Arabia – and following Mr Trump's astonishing claim that Ukraine started the war – a visibly irked Mr Zelensky hit back yesterday. This only served to anger the US President, who made a number of unfounded claims about aid money going missing while trying to pressure Mr Zelensky into calling an election – a key demand of Vladimir Putin.

Sir Keir Starmer, who is due to travel to Washington next week, did not issue a direct rebuke of Mr Trump's attack.

But in a thinly veiled swipe, he told

Mr Zelensky during a phone call last night that he backed him as Ukraine's 'democratically elected' leader.

Tory leader Kemi Badenoch issued a more direct statement, saying: 'President Zelensky is not a dictator. He is the democratically elected leader of Ukraine who bravely stood up to Putin's illegal invasion. Under my
