

The tell-tale detail that everyone missed about Kate's mysterious absence from Ascot
BY RICHARD EDEN SEE PAGE 9

JENRICK: I'LL VOTE NO TO ASSISTED DYING FOR MY NANA'S SAKE

ROBERT Jenrick today makes an emotional appeal against assisted dying.

It comes as MPs prepare for a momentous vote on whether to let the terminally ill end their own lives.

Writing in the Mail, Mr Jenrick

EXCLUSIVE
By Jason Groves
Political Editor

reveals how he helped look after his grandmother, Dorothy, as a teenage boy – and how she continued to bring joy to the family as she defied a terminal diagnosis for nearly a decade. The Tory justice spokesman says the prospect of legalising assisted dying 'fills me with dread'.

He adds: 'My Nana felt like she was a burden. I know how much she hated the indignity she felt at having to ask my Mum or us to help her with basic needs.'

'People like her – and there are many such people – may consider an assisted death as another act of

Turn to Page 6

Zara keeps her cool at races – but it's going to get hotter!

SEE PAGES 4-5