

Chicago Tribune

QUESTIONS? CALL 1-800-TRIBUNE

TUESDAY, JUNE 24, 2025

BREAKING NEWS AT CHICAGOTRIBUNE.COM

Trump: Israel, Iran agree to ceasefire

Missiles fired at US base in Qatar before truce announced

By Aamer Madhani
and Chris Megerian
Associated Press

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — President Donald Trump on Monday declared the “12 day war” between Israel and Iran as likely ending in a ceasefire, possibly validating the strategic gamble of a U.S. airstrike this weekend on three Iranian nuclear sites. “It has been fully agreed by and between Israel and Iran that there will be a Complete and Total CEASEFIRE,” Trump posted on social media, although there was no immediate word from either country on the announcement. The ceasefire would start with Iran and then joined by Israel 12 hours later, with Trump saying the respective sides would “remain PEACEFUL and RESPECTFUL.” The phased-in ceasefire means the war could end as soon as Wednesday. “This is a War that could have gone on for years, and destroyed the entire Middle East, but it didn’t, and never will!” Trump said. The announcement came after Iran attempted to retaliate for the U.S. assault with a Monday missile strike aimed at a major U.S. military installation in the Gulf nation of Qatar. Trump separately thanked Iran on social media for giving the U.S. and allies “early notice” of the retaliation. The president expressed hope that Tehran — with its reprisal for the U.S. bombardment of three key

Iranian nuclear facilities — had “gotten it all out of their ‘system’” and that the moment would lead to a de-escalation in the Israel-Iran war, an event that occurred a few hours after the posting. “I am pleased to report that NO Americans were harmed, and hardly any damage was done,” Trump said on social media. “I want to thank Iran for giving us

Turn to Iran, Page 9

TERRENCE ANTONIO JAMES/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

A temporary cooldown

Debra Green, of Calumet City, cools off at Mario’s Italian Lemonade stand on Taylor Street in Chicago as the temperatures hover in the upper 90s on Monday. Area temperatures are expected to cool off a little Tuesday with a chance of rain.

Ill. faces severe housing shortage

Report says 227,000 units need to be built over next five years

By Lizzie Kane
Chicago Tribune

Illinois has a shortage of about 142,000 housing units and must build 227,000 in the next five years to keep pace with demand, a number that would require recent annual production rates to double, according to a new economic study. The joint study published Tuesday by the Illinois Economic Policy Institute and the Project for Middle Class Renewal at the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign found that although the rental and for-sale housing markets in Chicago and Illinois as a whole remain more affordable than many coastal cities, such as New York and Los Angeles, and some other states, Illinois still faces a severe housing shortage that is escalating affordability challenges. National housing shortage estimates are wide-ranging, with Freddie Mac citing 3.7 million and the National Association of Realtors citing 5.5 million. “Prosperity and economic growth require people not only working, but then investing in their communities,” said report co-author Robert Bruno, a professor of labor and employment relations at the U. of I. and director of the Project for Middle Class Renewal. “A key asset is having a place to live. And there are multiple ways that you can provide that hous-

Turn to Housing, Page 4

PIPING PLOVER BOOM

Bigger brood: Chicks hatch at Montrose, Waukegan

By Lily Carey
Chicago Tribune

One of Chicago’s most famous families just welcomed three new hatchlings. Piping plovers Imani and Searocket, who live in a protected nesting area on Montrose Beach, hatched three chicks last week, marking a crucial boost to Chicago’s piping plover population. Volunteers with the Chicago Piping Plovers, a group that helps monitor and track the endangered seabirds, first spotted that one of the eggs hatched early Friday morning. By 6 a.m., the second egg had hatched, and a third chick hatched mid-morning. Plovers typically lay four eggs at a time, but the fourth was determined not to be viable Saturday. Despite an extreme heat advisory over the weekend, Tamima Itani, lead volunteer coordinator for Chicago Piping Plovers, said the three chicks and their parents were faring well. “Once we were able to spot the chicks on Saturday, I also noticed that they were keeping

Turn to Plover, Page 2

Cook County Commissioner Tara Stamps speaks alongside other elected officials at a One Fair Wage rally at the TNT Rooftop Restaurant in Chicago on Monday. ANTONIO PEREZ/CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Johnson firm on ending tipped subminimum wage

Restaurant and hospitality groups argue for reversal

By Jake Sheridan
Chicago Tribune

Mayor Brandon Johnson reaffirmed his support Monday for Chicago’s plan to end the subminimum wage for tipped workers, rejecting calls from hospitality business groups for City Hall to reverse course. Johnson pledged to continue the planned gradual raises for tipped worker minimum pay, including an hourly raise from $11.02 to $12.62 going into effect next week. He said he wanted to be “crystal clear” in his commitment to the ordinance set to bring pay for tipped workers in line with citywide minimum wages in 2028. “We’re not going back to the days where the government believed that some workers deserve less,” Johnson said. “Over the next several years, we’re going to continue to raise the wages of workers.” But as Johnson and allies lauded the so-called “One Fair Wage” ordinance passed by the City Council in 2023, restaurant groups argued it has forced businesses to shutter and led to a decrease in hospitality jobs.

Turn to Wage, Page 4

Family files lawsuit against the city

The mother of a woman killed during a Chicago police chase has filed a lawsuit, alleging that officers acted against department policy during the chase, resulting in the woman’s death. Chicagoland, Page 3

Northern Trust says it’s not for sale

Northern Trust said it plans to remain independent, despite reports that New York-based banking giant BNY Mellon reached out last week to discuss a possible merger. Business

Future of UN aid murky

As the U.N. marks its 80th anniversary, its humanitarian agencies are facing one of the greatest crises in their history. Nation & World

