Putin and Zelensky set for peace summit

WASHINGTON

Russian and Ukrainian Presidents Vladimir Putin and Volodymyr Zelensky looked set for a peace summit after fast-moving talks Monday between Donald Trump and European leaders that focused on the key issue of long-term security guarantees for Kyiv.

Hopes of a breakthrough rose after Trump said he had spoken by phone with Russian counterpart Putin — whom he met in Alaska last week — following a “very good” meeting with the Europeans and the Ukrainian President at the White House.

First meeting

It would be the first meeting between the Russian and Ukrainian leaders since Moscow’s invasion nearly three and a half years ago, and comes as Trump tries to live up to his promise to quickly end the war.

Trump, 79, wrote on his Truth Social network that “everyone is very happy about the possibility of peace for Russia/Ukraine.”

“At the conclusion of the meetings, I called President Putin, and began the arrangements for a meeting, at a location to be determined, between President Putin and President Zelensky,” Trump said.

Trump added he would then hold a three-way summit with the Ukrainian and Russian leaders.

UAE’s ‘Lifeline’ water project reaches Al Mawasi in Gaza

7.5KM PIPELINE RUNS FROM EMIRATI DESALINATION PLANTS IN EGYPT’S RAFAH

ABU DHABI

The UAE’s ‘Lifeline’ water supply project has reached the southern areas of Al Mawasi in Khan Younis, one of the most crowded areas in Gaza sheltering displaced families.

To showcase this achievement, the UAE’s Operation Gallant Knight 3 organised a site visit for media personnel and stakeholders. The tour aimed to monitor the project’s implementation and assess how affected families, especially children and the elderly, are benefiting from the new water supply.

The new 7.5-kilometre pipeline runs from Emirati desalination plants in Egypt’s Rafah to the Al Mawasi area in southern Gaza. It is expected to benefit 600,000 Palestinians, providing each person with 15 litres of fresh water daily. This will help ease the severe water shortage that has affected residents for months.

Safeguarding public health

The ‘Lifeline’ project aims to alleviate the suffering of a population grappling with frequent water outages and high temperatures. By providing clean, safe drinking water, the initiative helps safeguard public health and reduces the daily burden on displaced families, who have endured months without functioning water stations and with damaged pipelines across Gaza.

The project is an extension of previous UAE efforts to address Gaza’s water crisis, which include building desalination plants, providing water tankers, digging wells, and maintaining water networks. This initiative is considered one of the most significant humanitarian projects responding to the urgent needs of displaced persons and local communities amid the severe humanitarian deterioration caused by the ongoing war.

The project is being implemented in cooperation with the Coastal Municipalities Water Utility in Gaza and in coordination with the relevant authorities on the Egyptian side. Its goal is to provide safe and clean water supplies that help mitigate humanitarian and health challenges, particularly under conditions of scarce resources, repeated water cuts, and high temperatures. The project is being carried out under the supervision of Emirati teams, in technical and field collaboration with the Coastal Municipalities Water Utility, to ensure compliance with technical standards and alignment with local needs.

The technical teams confirmed that work is progressing at an accelerated pace and in line with the scheduled timeline, with preparations underway to operate the pipeline and begin pumping water to distribution areas as soon as possible.

Now owners can fly with their furry companions in the cabin

Dubai-based Fly JetPets launches in-cabin pet travel service

DUBAI

A new private jet charter service is taking the stress out of pet travel by letting owners fly with their furry companions in the cabin, rather than leaving them in cargo. Fly JetPets, a licensed private aviation travel service provider based in Dubai, is now offering a private and shared flight model for pets and their owners on global private jet routes.

The global pet travel industry is expected to be worth $4.6 billion by 2032. According to recent reports, over 40 per cent of middle-aged travellers and nearly a quarter of seniors are now bringing their pets with them on trips.

Gunawan Wahab, the founder and CEO of Fly JetPets, said, “As a pet parent myself, I understand the anxiety and concern that can come with planning air travel with a pet.”

Fly JetPets handles all the details from start to finish, including securing pet-friendly aircraft and managing the often-complex travel documents. Through a joint effort with partners like Jetex and Pawsome Pets, the company can arrange flights from almost anywhere in the world. For now, travellers can book an entire plane for their own use, or they can opt for a shared charter. These shared flights are organised on demand, with the company grouping together people who are travelling to similar destinations at similar times.
