

SARAH VINE

My ex-husband's PDA with a woman half my age – and why we should all be more Fergie this Christmas

As ministers refuse compensation for 3.8m WASPI women hit by pension age changes – despite a string of firm promises to help...

Betrayal that proves Labour cynically said ANYTHING to get elected

LABOUR was accused of hypocrisy last night after abandoning a vow to compensate women hit by increases in the state pension age.

Work and Pensions Secretary

By Jason Groves Political Editor

Liz Kendall said the Government would not pay a penny to the 3.8 million 'Waspi women' who were told they would have to work five years longer to receive their pension.

Senior Labour figures – including

Sir Keir Starmer, Rachel Reeves, Angela Rayner and Ms Kendall – all backed the women's campaign in opposition.

In 2022, Sir Keir signed a pledge calling for the women affected to receive 'fair and fast' compensation. Last year, he said they had faced a

Turn to Page 4

Keely's back to winning ways at BBC awards

Stunning outfit: Keely Hodgkinson last night