

Now Tech Workers
Are Miserable, Too

EXCHANGE

WSJ

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL WEEKEND

Scrimping
Vs. Splurging
In London

OFF DUTY

What's
News

Business & Finance

◆ The Trump administration has developed a road map to streamline and standardize trade negotiations, people familiar with the matter said, as criticism mounts from businesses about the impact of the president's tariff policies. A1

◆ Americans are feeling gloomy about the economy, cutting back on vacations and accelerating purchases of products facing higher tariffs, but overall they are spending even more than before. A1, A2

◆ From industrial giants to luxury brands to telecoms, companies say they are making plans to pass along some of the cost of tariffs to consumers. B9

◆ The number of ships sailing from China to the U.S. laden with goods is plunging. B11

◆ Foreign demand for U.S. crops and meat is taking a hit from the trade war, export data showed. B11

◆ Chinese auto giant BYD continued to outpace Tesla in the first quarter. B10

◆ Food-delivery company Deliveroo said DoorDash offered to buy the U.K. company in a deal valued at $3.6 billion. B10

◆ Stocks extended their rally to a fourth day, with the Dow, S&P 500 and Nasdaq gaining less than 0.1%, 0.7% and 1.3%, respectively Friday. B11

World- Wide

◆ Several recent Trump reversals were a startling pattern for a president who prides himself on never backing down, potentially denting his political brand as an unflinching fighter. A1

◆ Russia described talks between Putin and President Trump's top negotiator as "constructive and useful" even as Russia defied U.S. appeals to halt its attacks on Ukraine and a car bomb explosion in Moscow killed a senior Russian general. A6

◆ George Santos, the disgraced former GOP congressman, was sentenced to just over seven years in prison for stealing from political donors and lying about his campaign fundraising. A3

◆ The Trump administration is restoring the legal status of thousands of international students whose status was suddenly terminated without warning or explanation. A3

◆ Federal regulators asked Novavax to complete an additional clinical trial on its Covid-19 vaccine, people familiar with the matter said, a request that could be so expensive the company might not be able to fulfill it. A3

◆ Indian and Pakistani soldiers briefly exchanged fire in the disputed Himalayan region of Kashmir, India said, as tensions soared after a recent massacre. A8

NOONAN

What we need in Pope Francis' successor A13

CONTENTS

Obituaries..... C6
Books..... C7-12
Business & Finance B9-10
Finance & Markets B11
Food..... D6-7
Gear & Gadgets..... D4
Heard on Street..... B12

Opinion..... A11-13
Sports..... A10
Style & Fashion D2-3
Travel..... D9
U.S. News..... A2-5
World News..... A6,8

17648>
0 78908 63144 2

© 2025 Dow Jones & Company, Inc.
All Rights Reserved

Church Bids Farewell, Looks Ahead to Pope Funeral

MOURNERS: Crowds filled St. Peter's Square on Friday, the third day Pope Francis lay in state before Saturday's funeral; the Vatican said about 250,000 paid their respects. The Catholic Church next turns to questions over what direction it will take. A8, C1

Consumers Feel Downbeat, But They Keep On Spending

By RACHEL LOUISE ENSIGN

Kyle Brooks worries that the Trump administration's budget cuts will keep weighing on business at the high-end Washington, D.C., restaurant where he works as a manager. But those concerns haven't prompted him to spend less.

"I haven't really traded down in anything yet," the 30-year-old said.

U.S. consumers are feeling gloomy about the economy after President Trump's market-rattling first few months in office.

They are cutting back on vacations and accelerating purchases of products such as cars and smartphones that could be hit by tariffs. But overall they are spending even more than before, which is keeping the economy humming—for now.

Retail sales surged 1.4% in March from a month earlier, the Commerce Department said earlier this month. While car sales posted a big jump, sales were up at restaurants and clothing stores, too.

Those figures are from before Trump's April 2 announcement of widespread tariffs, though the administration later paused some of those levies.

Other data show that overall spending growth continued after the tariff announcement, even as consumers made some big changes to what they were buying.

Spending on airlines was down more than 13% the week ending April 19 compared with a year earlier, while on-line electronics sales were up 7.5%, an analysis of Bank of America debit- and credit-

Please turn to page A2

◆ Consumers serve up bleak outlook on economy..... A2
◆ Companies struggle to set the right price..... B9

Consumer-sentiment index, past 10 years

U.S. Drafts Strategy For Talks On Trade

Administration plans to stagger negotiations with about 18 countries

By GAVIN BADE

WASHINGTON—The Trump administration has developed a road map to both streamline and standardize coming trade negotiations, people familiar with the matter said, as criticism mounts from businesses about the impact of the president's tariff policies.

In an attempt to organize talks over President Trump's so-called reciprocal tariffs, officials plan to use a framework prepared by the U.S. Trade Representative's office that lays out broad categories for negotiation: tariffs and quotas; nontariff barriers to trade, such as regulations on U.S. goods; digital trade; rules of origin for products; and economic security and other commercial issues, according to people familiar with a draft document outlining the negotiating terms.

Within those categories, U.S. officials would spell out demands for individual nations, people familiar with the matter said, emphasizing that the document could change as the administration gets more input.

"USTR is working under an organized and rigorous framework and moving ahead quickly with willing trading partners," a USTR spokeswoman said. "President Trump and USTR have made

Please turn to page A4

◆ Made-in-China strollers, cribs hit by tariffs..... A4
◆ Trump policies boost left-leaning world leaders..... A8

INSIDE

U.S. NEWS
A Milwaukee judge has been charged for allegedly impeding immigration agents. A3

SPORTS
The 34-year-old football prodigy who just blew up the NFL draft. A10

Forget March Madness...
It's Conclave Time!

* * *

Cardinals will pick the next pope in private.
Outside the Vatican, it's a public contest.

By ANN-MARIE ALCÁNTARA
AND JOSEPH PISANI

Alicia Marchese was in bed watching TV when a vision came to her: Could the 21-year-old college student actually help pick the next pope? She spent four hours putting together video clips of her favorite cardinal, Matteo Zuppi, hoping to rally public support around him. She put a Charli XCX song over it with the lyrics, "I'm your number one, I'm your number one."

Holy smoke

Zuppi, like Marchese, is from Italy. He also shares progressive views similar to the late Pope Francis. Plus, the cardinal smiles a lot, she says. "He looks like a sweet, sweet, sweet grandpa to me."

Suddenly, everyone is a papal expert.

Please turn to page A9

Trump's Reversals Show Shift In 'Never Surrender' Approach

By MOLLY BALL

President Trump said this week he had "no intention" of seeking the ouster of the Federal Reserve chairman, Jerome Powell—despite having called for his "termination" just a few days earlier. Hours later, he allowed that tariffs on China were "not going to be that high"—weeks after escalating them to 145%.

All in all, it was an unusual week for a president whose rallying cry has long been "never surrender."

Those weren't the only fronts on which the past week saw Trump backpedal. Having once pledged to broker peace in Ukraine immediately upon taking office, he has now said the U.S. could walk away from the conflict entirely if the deal he has put forward isn't accepted. And having once boasted that DOGE would radically downsize the federal government, Elon Musk said this week he would step back from the effort, having reduced its top line goal by 90%. "He was always going to ease out," Trump said Wednesday. Taken together, the reversals were a startling pattern for a president who prides himself on never backing down, potentially denting his political brand as an unflinching fighter. As the 100-day mark of Trump's tumultuous second term draws near, the climbdowns were a signal that his ebbing popularity might be forcing him to moderate some

Please turn to page A5

◆ Trump's first 100 days, by the numbers..... A5

How Musk's Friends Sell Access To Stakes in His Companies

Lucrative stock deals have allowed SpaceX to avoid public scrutiny even as its valuation has skyrocketed

Antonio Gracias and Elon Musk go way back. The Valor Equity Partners founder and his family spend their Christmases with

By Susan Pulliam, Corrie Driebusch and Becky Peterson

Musk and vacation with him in the Bahamas and Jackson Hole, Wyo. For Gracias, it has been a lucrative relationship. He has become a multibillionaire in part by investing in nearly all of Musk's companies over the years, according to public filings and court documents.

Now, Gracias and his firm have found another way to cash in on his status in Musk's inner circle: by selling wealthy outsiders access to tightly controlled shares in Musk's privately held companies. Gracias, who is a current SpaceX and former Tesla board member, recently offered investors $1 billion worth of shares in SpaceX and xAI through Valor in an exclusive private sale that will net him and the bankers involved millions in fees, according to deal documents re-

Please turn to page A9